PREMIER CALLS FOR CONFIDENCE VOTE ON ISRAELI PULL-OUT ORDER

Pledge to U.N. and Life of Ben-Gurion Cabinet Are at Stake — Demonstrations of Protest Continue.

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, March 5 (UP)—Premier David Ben-Gurion tonight demanded a vote of confidence on his bitterly resented order to Israeli forces to withdraw from Gaza and the Gulf of Aqaba coast.

Informed sources said the withdrawal may begin as soon as he receives a confidence vote from the Knesset (Parliament), probably within 24 hours.

The vote will determine the life or death of Ben-Gurion's government, as well as whether he is able to carry out his promise to the United States and the United Nations that his forces would abandon positions seized in the invasion of Egypt last October.

Ben-Gurion's appearance before the Knesset came after a day of desperate political maneuvering and of massed demonstrations which condemned the withdrawal order as another "Munich."

Vote Expected Tomorrow.

Ben-Gurion was reported confident he could win the demanded vote of confidence on his bitterly-resented move in ordering Israeli troops out of Egypt without prior consultation with Parliament.

The confidence vote was expected to come about midday tomorrow.

Ben-Gurion obviously was suffering from severe fatigue when he appeared before Parliament.

Members of the Herut party, who had introduced a motion of no-confidence, interrupted him so much that several times he seemed on the point of leaving the rostrum, but he persisted through to the end of his scheduled speech.

Flags Draped in Mourning.

Police riot squads moved through new Jerusalem and erected barricades around the Parliament building to prevent violence between supporters of the government and the Herut party opposition.

Demonstrators poured into the square before the parliament building to hear speaker after speaker attack Ben-Gurion's withdrawal as a "munich" type surrender to the Arabs. National flags draped in mourning black fluttered over the streets.

Marchers carried placards proclaiming, "Munich Does Not Bring Peace But War and Suffering." Others said "Ben-Gurion Your Time has Come," and "Ben-Gurion Retreated at Gaza and Will also Give in at Jerusalem and let our Capital be Internationalized."

By 5 p.m., when the mass rally began, more than 5000 persons had crowded into the square and the crowd still was growing. However, the appearance of reinforced police apparently prevented bloodshed.

Plea by Herut Leader.

Meridor promised the crowds his party would take "all legal means" to topple the Ben-Gurion government and said he would call for new elections shortly.

Meanwhile, the Israeli frigates Miznak and Misgav headed toward Sharm el Sheikh in the Gulf of Aqaba to stand by to remove Israeli forces guarding the entrance to the gulf. Reinforcements poured toward the Gaza strip to strengthen the Israeli rearguard against any Arab violence when withdrawal starts.

POLLS WILL BE OPEN UNTIL 7 P.M.; NUMBERS TO CALL FOR INFORMATION

THE 786 polling places in St. Louis will be open until 7 p.m. for the city primary today.

As in previous elections the St. Louis League of Women Voters is furnishing information to persons wanting to know where to vote. The league's telephone number is FO 7-7166.

Voting information also can be obtained by calling City Hall, MA 1-5560, and asking for the Election Board.

HAIRCUTS TO COST $1.75, SHAVES $1.25 STARTING APRIL 1

A 25-cent increase in the cost of haircuts, shaves, facial massages and shampoos in all union barber shops here was voted last night at a special meeting of Barbers' Local 102, Secretary-Treasurer Raymond Ellis announced today.

Beginning April 1, haircuts will cost $1.75. Shaves, massages and shampoos will go to $1.25. Only scalp treatments with tonic will remain at 50 cents, Ellis said, in describing the across-the-board increase.

Children up to 12 years of age will pay $1.50 instead of $1.25 for haircuts provided they visit the barbershop on any day except Saturday. On that day, they, too, will be charged $1.75.

Ellis said the rise in the cost of living in the two years since the last price increase prompted the decision to boost prices. About 1000 members attended the meeting, with only about 50 expressing concern over the step, he said.

CITY POLICEMEN, FIREMEN ASSIST IMPATIENT STORK

The impatient stork had plenty of help when an ambulance, bound from Crystal City to Barnes Hospital, broke down in front of Engine Co. 36 at 5000 South Kingshighway early today.

A boy was born to the occupant of the ambulance, Mrs. Cleveland Henderson, Festus, before a city ambulance could be dispatched to the scene. Police and firemen joined with the driver, Ernest Pruneau, and the father in aiding the delivery.

Mrs. Henderson, 26 years old, and her newborn son then were placed in the city ambulance and the trip to Barnes Hospital was completed. Mother and son were reported in good condition. Crystal City is 35 miles south of St. Louis.

POST OFFICE SLIPS UP, LETS TB SEAL PASS AS POSTAGE

It was an unsigned fan letter, with a Christmas tuberculosis seal instead of a postage stamp, received in yesterday's mail by Duncan Pirnie, an announcer for the New York Times radio station.

The letter with the wrong stamp was canceled at the Bronx central station Saturday.

Pirnie was surprised, and so was New York Postmaster Robert H. Schaffer, who said that on occasion some such letters will slip through during the Christmas rush. He said he never heard of it happening before any other time.

PRIMARY VOTING LIGHT; 43,000 IN FIRST 9½ HOURS

Balloting Heavier in Outlying Wards — Total May Be Less Than 95,000.

Voting in today's city primary was unusually light, as indicated in pre-election forecasts.

A telephone canvass of sample precincts in each of the city's 28 wards showed 12.5 per cent of the registration, or about 43,000 voters, had cast ballots by 3:30 p.m., nine and one-half hours after the polls opened.

On this basis it appeared the total vote might run below the official estimate of 95,000, although heaviest voting normally occurs in the last few hours before the polls close. In the 1955 city primary 16 per cent of the registration had voted by 3:30.

Heavier in Outlying Wards.

Today's vote in the outlying wards was heavy by comparison with the so-called delivery wards. Examples were the Twelfth, where 16 per cent had voted by 3:30, the Twenty-fifth, with 16 per cent, and the Seventeenth, 25 per cent.

Voters are choosing Democratic and Republican nominees for Mayor, Comptroller and 14 seats on the Board of Aldermen from the city's odd-numbered wards.

The only city-wide contest is for Democratic nomination for Mayor, with the incumbent, Raymond R. Tucker, opposed by former Sheriff Thomas F. Callanan and Henry E. Kemper, a building contractor.

Comptroller John H. Poelker is unopposed for renomination on the Democratic ticket. Joseph J. Holland, Republican aspirant to that office, also is unopposed in the primary.

For aldermanic nominations there are only seven contests out of the 28 places to be filled on both tickets.

Partly cloudy skies and mild temperatures prevailed, leading to speculation that the late afternoon turnout might be heavier than usual.

In the mayoral primary four years ago the vote totaled 143,000, but then there were hot contests both in city-wide and ward races. Voter registration today is only 344,871, well under the 387,220 for the 1953 primary.

Activity for Callanan.

Some increase in voting was expected as a result of last-minute activity by several Democratic ward leaders on behalf of Callanan, who is trying to make a political comeback after a severe defeat for renomination for sheriff in 1952.

A total of 500,000 sample ballots for Callanan were printed and many of them were being handed out at polling places today. Others were distributed over the weekend.

Tucker has been considered certain of renomination and reelection, but some of his supporters expressed concern that voter apathy might result in an upset.

Contributing to this concern also was the knowledge that some Republican organization

Testifies Gov. Patterson Reinstated Suspended Official at Request of Teamsters, His Backers.

WASHINGTON, March 5 (UP)—A talkative racketeer charged today that the late Gov. Paul Patterson of Oregon "performed" for the Teamsters Union by reinstating suspended liquor commission official.

James B. Elkins of Portland, Ore., star witness at Senate Labor Rackets Committee hearings which started last week, testified that the Teamsters supported Patterson, a Republican.

The witness quoted a high Teamster official as saying, "We had just as well find out if we bought a pig in a poke or if he'll perform for us."

The upshot, Elkins said, was that the suspended liquor commission official was reinstated.

Tells of Tape Recordings.

Elkins also testified that he made tape recordings of conversations between the liquor official and a Teamsters-backed district attorney in which they discussed "whitewashing" an investigation of the liquor commission.

The commission controls Oregon's state liquor monopoly. Former State Democratic Chairman Howard Morgan testified last week that he was told the Teamsters would donate $10,000 to the campaign of Gov. Robert Holmes if their man were named to the commission.

Morgan said Holmes, a Democrat, spurned the offer.

Elkins, self-described racketeer, gambler and bootlegger, told of a 1954 meeting with Thomas J. Sheridan, assistant liquor commission administrator in charge of enforcement. Sheridan had been suspended for "accepting gratuities," Elkins said, and had come to him.

He said he took Sheridan to see Clyde C. Crosby, Teamsters union organizer for Oregon.

"Crosby said through their political influence he thought they could save him," Elkins testified. He said Crosby called the late John J. Sweeney of Seattle, secretary of the powerful Western Conference of Teamsters.

Elkins quoted Sweeney as saying the Teamsters might as well learn whether Patterson would "perform" for them.

Quickly Reinstated.

He said Sheridan and Crosby met the Governor the next day and Sheridan was reinstated.

In 1955, Elkins continued, State Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton "raised such a hue and cry" about the liquor commission that the then Gov. Patterson hired two Portland attorneys to investigate it.

Elkins said the Governor refused to give the attorney general the result of the inquiry but turned it over to William M. Langley, Multnomah county (Portland) district attorney who had been elected with Teamster backing.

Elkins testified that Thomas E. Maloney, Seattle gambler, told him often that the investigation would be "whitewashed." He identified Maloney last week as a friend of West Coast Teamster boss Frank W. Brewster. He said Maloney was sent to Portland after Langley's election to organize the city's vice and gambling.

Committee Counsel Robert F. Kennedy asked Elkins, "Did you aid in that whitewash?"

"Yes, I did," Elkins replied.

Offers Union Records.

By the Associated Press.

In advance of today's session, it was learned that a top union officer, sometimes critical of national Teamsters President Dave Beck has offered to turn over to the Senate group any records it seeks from the union's national headquarters here.

John F. English, the union's international secretary-treasurer, made the offer in a conference with Kennedy.

The records at Teamster National headquarters do not comprise all those the subcommittee has been seeking. For example, the national files do not include detailed records of locals or of the Eastern, West-

FINED $50 FOR PUSHING AUTO TO SERVICE STATION

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—His friend's car had a dead battery. So Willis L. Richardson pushed it, unassisted, to a service station for a battery recharge.

His Good Samaritan act cost him $50 fine in municipal court yesterday for operating the car without a driver's permit, even though the engine wasn't running and Richardson was outside the car.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Douglas Moore argued that since Richardson steered the car through the front window, he had enough control to come under the definition of an operator.

SAFETY STEPS COULD HAVE CUT DOWN FIRE TOLL, BLAIR IS TOLD

Investigator's Report Lists Hazardous Conditions at Warrenton Nursing Home Where 72 Persons Died.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 5—The death toll in the nursing home fire at Warrenton, Mo., in which 72 persons lost their lives, could have been reduced if hazardous conditions at the home had been eliminated and safety precautions taken, the State Highway Patrol reported yesterday to Gov. James T. Blair.

In another development in the aftermath of the fire, Gov. Blair announced appointment of Dr. Henry M. Hardwicke, director of the state Bureau of Gerontology, as acting director of the Division of Health. Dr. Hardwicke succeeds Dr. James R. Amos, who was fired by Blair a week ago.

The State Highway Patrol noted that the number of fatalities in the blaze could have been lessened if the Katie Jane Memorial nursing home had not lacked a fire alarm system, fire escapes, sprinkler system and emergency evacuation places.

The report, filed by Lt. W. L. Hutchings, who directed the investigation, said that housing bed patients on the second floor of the building and "lack of supervision" also contributed to the high percentage of fatalities—nearly half of the 151 patients living in the building that burned.

Additional Factor.

As another factor contributing to the high death toll, the report quoted a survivor as saying some patients had been locked in their rooms at the time of the fire. Woodrow S. O'Sullivan, operator of the home, reportedly said some rooms had "hooks" on door latches to keep patients from wandering about.

A number of other conditions that the State Patrol said could have contributed to the disaster, the worst nursing home fire in the history of the United States, were listed. They were:

Unenclosed stairways; open halls and doorways, "apparently" unguarded by fire doors; the fact that the building was more than 50 years old and "dry as a tinderbox" and windows that had been opened because of the warmth of the day.

Although the report said the cause of the fire was undetermined, it raised the possibility of a defect in electric wiring.

"Much of the wiring" in the two-and-a-half-story brick building had been replaced, Lt. Hutchings said. However, there still was "some of the old knob and tube wiring" in the structure, he said.

Request Ignored.

O'Sullivan failed to comply with a request by Joseph Grubbs, State Department of Public Health and Welfare inspector, that 30-ampere fuses be removed from a fuse box in the barber shop at the institution, Hutchings reported.

The barber shop was the only portion of the building not destroyed by the fire. The 30-ampere fuses were found in place in the fuse box there in an inspection subsequent to the fire, Hutchings stated. Usually fuses of lower amperage are recommended for general residential wiring systems.

The report credited O'Sullivan with carrying out some suggestions of the Warrenton volunteer fire department for safety precautions. It said he "apparently made an attempt to improve conditions at the home and stated he had spent $30,000 on improvements."

Conditions like those in the Warrenton home can be found in a number of nursing estab-

VAN DOREN WOULD RATHER PAY TAXES THAN GET MARRIED

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—Television quiz winner Charles Van Doren said yesterday he was not going to accept any of the numerous marriage proposals he has received lately—even though it might save him $20,000 in taxes.

Representative Robert W. Kean (Rep.), New Jersey, said in a letter to constituents last week that if Van Doren married this year and filed a joint income tax return, he would save about $20,000. Said Van Doren: "I've resisted this long. I'll still take my time."

The 31-year-old Columbia University instructor has won $143,000 so far, but probably will be allowed to keep only about $35,000 of it after taxes.

He also could lose some of his winnings next Monday when he appears again on the NBC program, "Twenty-One," to compete with attorney Vivienne Nearing.

TRIED 'THING THAT COULDN'T BE DONE,' STEVENSON SAYS

PRINCETON, N. J., March 5 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson last night summed up his two unsuccessful tries for the presidency with a paraphrase from a poem—"he tackled the thing that couldn't be done and he couldn't do it."

He spoke before the American Whig-Cliosophic Society of Princeton after receiving the college group's 1957 award for "outstanding service to the nation."

Jested Stevenson: "Somebody here should tell me how it feels to be President." He referred to out-going Princeton President Harold W. Dodds, who got an award for his support of the society throughout the 24 years of his presidency.

Stevenson told reporters he did not want to get into a discussion of the future governorship of Illinois. He said he was enjoying his present comparative leisure.

AIRLINER LOSES PROPELLER IN AIR, BUT LANDS SAFE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 5 (AP)—A propeller of an American Air Lines plane came off in flight at 14,000 feet today and knifed through the top of the cabin, but the airliner landed safe here at the municipal airport.

The accident happened about 15 minutes out of Memphis. There was no panic among the some 60 passengers aboard the ship, a DC-7. None was injured.

A passenger aboard the plane, en route from New York to Dallas, said the left outboard propeller shook loose "and went right through the top of the cabin."

"One-third of the cabin was stripped loose of its roof," said Pat McGrady, a passenger and science editor for the American Cancer Society."

McGrady said everyone aboard the plane was calm.

DR. E. A. GRAHAM DIES, PIONEER IN CHEST SURGERY

Succumbs to Lung Cancer — Acclaimed for Studies of Kinship of Disease and Smoking.

A memorial service will be held for Dr. Evarts A. Graham, dean of American surgeons, who died at Barnes Hospital yesterday of lung cancer. Time of the service will be announced later.

Dr. Graham was the first to remove a human lung successfully for treatment of cancer. He was known internationally, not only for his pioneer work in chest surgery but for development of an X-ray test for gall bladder disease.

More recently, the distinguished St. Louis surgeon, who was 73 years old, was widely acclaimed for studies of the relationship between cigarette smoking and lung cancer.

Of no less importance to the advancement of medicine was his work as an educator, administrator and member of many private and governmental commissions. Medical students from all over the world came here to study under him.

Retired in 1951.

Dr. Graham retired in 1951 after 32 years as chief surgeon at Barnes Hospital, head of the department of surgery at the Washington University School of Medicine, and as Bixby professor of surgery. He remained active in research as professor emeritus. His associates at the university considered that no contemporary surgeon had a greater influence on the medical profession.

Throughout his career, from the beginning and on through the long period during which he enjoyed great personal prestige, he waged vigorous warfare to improve standards of medical care and eliminate practices he considered undesirable. He was blunt, outspoken and fearless in his denunciation of such practices as "ghost" surgery (in which the patient does not know who the operating surgeon is) and fee splitting.

He played a major role in the development of chest surgery in the United States and the world, both in his own experiments and his advice and assistance to other men. His work in the field ranged from trying some of the early experiments in surgery of the heart to efforts to cure and prevent lung cancer.

First Lung Removal.

It was on April 5, 1933, at Barnes Hospital that Dr. Graham performed the first successful removal of an entire human lung. The patient, Dr.

FEDERAL TERMS IMPOSED AFTER MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL IS DENIED

Two Based Plea on Mental Condition of Late Judge Hulen — Convicted of Conspiracy in Tax Case.

T. Lamar Caudle and Matthew J. Connelly, former Truman Administration officials, were sentenced to two years in prison and fined $2500 each today by United States District Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye. They had been found guilty by a jury here last June 14 of conspiring to defraud the Government in an income tax case.

Before pronouncing sentence, Judge Nordbye overruled a motion for a new trial based on the contention that the late United States District Judge Rubey M. Hulen was not "in proper mental and physical condition" to conduct their trial.

Speaking for Connelly, his attorney, John H. Lashly, said: "Society does not need to be rid of Mr. Connelly. He was found guilty of a crime he feels he did not commit. Already he has been punished beyond any justified measure."

"A number of people have believed in me," Connelly told the court. "I have done nothing wrong. I was in a position of trust to the President of the United States and I never betrayed that trust."

Leniency Sought.

John J. Hooker, counsel for Caudle, asked the court for leniency. "Any further punishment for this man is beyond comprehension," he said. "Don't put a felon stripe on him."

Speaking on his own behalf, Caudle said:

"I have not been a party to any conspiracy. Thousands of tax cases have passed through my hands and lightning has struck all around, but never hit me. In 1950, four people died because I approved of income tax evasion prosecution against them. You may do what you please, but I would not take the life of someone else just by a stroke of the pen."

Judge Nordbye, who took over the case after Judge Hulen was found shot to death just three weeks after the trial ended, permitted the defendants to remain at liberty on their $5000 bonds pending an appeal. Maximum sentence wolud have been five years in prison and a $10,000 fine for each.

With the motion for a new trial, the defense supplied two affidavits from Dr. William B. Kountz, a physician and personal friend of Judge Hulen, and Dr. James N. Haddock, a psychiatrist, to whom Dr. Kountz referred the jurist.

Quotes Judge's Comment.

In his affidavit, Dr. Kountz said six days before Judge Hulen's death the judge "made a statement to me that 'Connelly was a glad-hander and a greeter and had done nothing more than I might have done had I been in his situation,' or words to that effect. He made some mention of Caudle as a public servant who was careless and this was the reason he was in trouble."

Dr. Kountz said he referred the Judge to Dr. Haddock in 1955 for treatment of "severe depression." Electric shock therapy was recommended, but Judge Hulen declined to submit, being fearful that the treatment "might injure his brain."

Under Dr. Haddock's treatment, the Judge's condition improved, but three weeks before the Connelly-Caudle trial he informed Dr. Kountz that he was again depressed and unable to sleep, the motion stated.

A liquid sedative was prescribed and "as the trial progressed it was necessary for the Judge to take more and more of this medication and he feared it would affect his mental capacity," the motion said.

Dr. Haddock's affidavit stated: "He continued to be in a state of melancholy and had he not been in daily session in the court, which required his constant presence, I would have considered prescribing electric shock therapy for him. However, electro-therapy involved temporary loss of memory and this would have made it impossible for Judge Hulen to carry on his duties at the trial. Therefore he was continued on the liquid sedative in rather heavy doses in an attempt to tide him over until the pressure of the trial abated."

Dr. Kountz said it was agreed that after the trial Judge Hulen would go to a hospital. He was scheduled to enter the hospital on the day he was found shot in the rear yard of his Clayton home. A revolver was nearby.

A coroner's jury returned an open verdict, saying it could

Governor Pumps Own Gasoline, Is Locked Out at Mansion Gate

JEFFERSON CITY, March 5 (UP)—Gov. James T. Blair's dislike for his official state limousine and his executive mansion are common knowledge by now. But fate still is giving the Governor static on both counts.

Last night, on a trip to Columbia to appear on a television program, the Governor stopped at a gasoline station and had to pump his own gasoline because the woman attendant was busy inside.

When he got back to Jefferson City Blair couldn't find a parking space downtown and decided to park in the driveway of the nearby executive mansion.

But attendants, apparently taking Blair at his word that he didn't want to live there, kept the gate locked. And nobody had given him a key. (Last week he couldn't get into his office because nobody had given him a key to that, either.)

Hunter Confirms Texan Killed Elephant With Bow and Arrow

NAIROBI, Kenya, March 5 (UP)—Eric Rundgren, a hunter of 20-years experience in East Africa, confirmed today that Texas oil man William Negley had won his $10,000 bet by killing an elephant with a bow and arrow.

A report from Negley's safari reaching here said Negley wounded the elephant with one steel-tipped arrow at a range of 10 yards. Rundgren stood by with a rifle.

Rundgren said the arrow went into the elephant so far that only the feather tips showed. Negley then followed the elephant into the bush and fired another arrow into its head to end its suffering after it collapsed.

Negley, director of natural history at the Wille Museum in San Antonio, made the bet with William K. Carpenter, of Wilmington, Del. A friend of Negley in San Antonio reported last week that the hunter had written Mrs. Negley that he had killed two elephants.

PRESIDENT ASKS THAT STATES PAY AT LEAST FOURTH OF DROUTH AID

Special Message Pledges More Effective U.S. Assistance, but Says Other Agencies Must Help.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 5 — President Eisenhower asked Congress today to enact legislation requiring the states to contribute a minimum of 25 per cent of the cost of some forms of drouth assistance as a condition for receiving federal help.

In a special message on the drouth emergency in the Midwest and Southwest, he said state and local governments "should assume a greater part in alleviating human distress" caused by natural disasters.

He pledged continued assistance from the Federal Government and said it would be made more "effective," but he said no single legislative program could cope with the problem. He urged "full co-operation" by states, communities and individuals.

Mr. Eisenhower drew Congress's attention to several recommendations made at a recent drouth meeting in Wichita, Kan., among them a proposal that income tax laws be amended to recognize the problems of farmers who have to sell their livestock because of drouth.

Study of Tax Change.

He did not comment on the merits of the suggestion, but it was learned the Administration is making a "further examination" of drouth-forced livestock sales in which farmers have to report the entire proceeds in one tax year. One possibility being considered would be a "spread-out" of income from such sales over several years.

The message, based in large part on Mr. Eisenhower's findings in his tour of drouth-stricken areas last January, was accompanied by legislative proposals on farm credit, deferred grazing and the role of the states.

The recommendations were largely an expansion of present programs and did not represent any basic change in administration drouth policy as far as the Federal Government's part was concerned.

However, the recommendation for a minimum state contribution, if enacted, would be a significant change in the approach to drouth aid. Administration officials said the states thus far had put up less than one per cent of the financial assistance given to farmers in drouth areas.

Some Expect Opposition.

They claimed "a considerable body of support" in Congress for the idea of requiring increased state participation. Other observers predicted the Administration proposal would encounter strong opposition.

An Agriculture Department spokesman said some new appropriations would be requested later to expand the deferred grazing program and for grasshopper control, but he refused to estimate the amount to be sought, saying this had not been worked out.

The message, phrased in general terms, was accompanied by a letter from Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, setting forth specific proposals.

"The prolonged drouth in a number of the Great Plains and southwestern states has long since reached disaster proportions," Mr. Eisenhower said.

He said the Federal Government had reviewed its role and had found "some important guide lines" to govern its actions in other natural disasters, as well as drouth.

He said he wanted to draw to the attention of Congress two "general conclusions":

"The first is that administration of emergency disaster programs must be kept close to the local people.

"The second is that state and local governments should assume a greater part in alleviating human distress and hardships and in meeting other local needs in times of disaster, calling on the Federal Government only to supplement their own resources."

Administration officials said the proposed minimum one-fourth contribution by states "certainly" would be sought in the feed grain and hay programs, two principal federal drouth aid measures.

Under the feed grain program, the Government gives farmers $1.50 a hundredweight toward the purchase of such livestock feeds as oats, corn, barley and grain sorghums. This is not a direct subsidy; dealers give discounts and are reimbursed in surplus commodities owned by the Government.

Under the hay and roughage program, the Government pays a straight subsidy, usually $7.50 a ton, toward the purchase of hay. Years of below-normal rainfall in some farm states have burned out pastures and created a hay shortage.

What U.S. Has Spent.

In seeking to force the states to contribute to these two programs, Administration officials said the Federal Government had spent $34,000,000 on hay and roughage assistance in the last three and a half years, and $195,000,000 on feed grain aid in the same period.

Total federal drouth assistance since the summer of 1953 has totaled $658,000,000, they said. An additional $184,000,000 has been spent to purchase beef and pork, which has benefited some farmers in drouth areas.

It was indicated the Administration would press for early consideration of the proposal for greater state participation.

Discussing the deferred grazing legislation which will be requested, officials said the Agriculture Department wants to expand its present program of paying farmers about 35 cents an acre for limiting the number of livestock they graze on pasture land damaged by drouth.

Benson said an appropriation would be sought to enable more effective utilization of this program.

Mr. Eisenhower's previous request for $76,000,000 for drouth aid was broken down into three categories: $25,000,000 for additional feed grain assistance; authority to use $25,000,000 in already-appropriated funds for conservation, including prevention of wind erosion, and $26,000,000 in new money to refinance indebtedness by direct loans.

Nixon Predicts Ghana Will Steer Clear of Foreign Domination

New African Nation to Be 'National but Not Neutral,' He Says After Seeing Premier.

ACCRA, Gold Coast, March 5 (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon predicts the new nation of Ghana "will be national but not neutral" after it achieves independence from Britain tomorrow.

After a private meeting with Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah, Nixon said the United States - educated Gold Coast leader told him: "We can never be neutral."

Nixon told a press conference Ghana, a British commonwealth nation formed from the Gold Coast and Togoland, will "forge policies which under no circumstances will accept foreign domination from any quarter."

He added that the plan was "for what we might term the democratic way of life.

Could Indicate Trend.

"Speaking for myself," Nixon said, "I believe this is very significant, because this could indicate the trend which will be followed in other African countries as they acquire their independence."

The area making up the new nation has been administered by Britain under a United Nations trusteeship. It will become independent within the British commonwealth.

Nixon's private meeting with Nkrumah was the Prime Minister's first with any of the representatives of the 70 nations gathering here for the celebrations marking the birth of Ghana.

The Vice President said he offered Ghana United States government technical aid but made no promise for large American financial assistance to help build a giant hydro-electric plant on the Volta river. The plant is the major development goal of the new government. Nixon said the project will be developed by British and Canadian interests and possibly the World Bank.

Miffed Over Seating.

Members of the United States delegation were reported miffed because a Chinese Communist delegate was seated at the head table at a state dinner and Nixon was not. Nixon was described as not upset himself.

Gold Coast officials who arranged the seats, explained the delegates were seated in alphabetical order.

Nixon, now fully recovered from a flu attack, kept up his swift-moving round of activities by presenting an "Eisenhower scholarship" to nearby Achimota College. This scholarship, supported by a private New York foundation, will pay for a year's tuition at any American university for an outstanding student.

Sees Soviet Officials.

A luncheon party brought Nixon together with Ivan A. Benediktov, Soviet minister of state farms. They discussed agricultural problems only, Nixon said.

The Vice President said the Soviet official told him Russia was having a "banner farm crop" this year and gave part of the credit to the visit a Soviet farm delegation made to United States farming areas last year.

Nixon invited the Rev. Martin Luther King, Montgomery (Ala.) Negro pastor, to talk with him in Washington about King's proposal that Nixon visit the South to study race problems.

Nixon extended the informal invitation to King, who directed the Negro bus boycott in Montgomery, when the two met on the campus of the Gold Coast college. King is attending the ceremonies here.

U.N. ASSEMBLY AWAITS REPORT ON ISRAELI STEPS

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., March 5—Debate in the United Nations General Assembly on action to be taken following the evacuation of Egypt and the Gaza strip by Israeli invaders was suspended today until Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold can report progress on the withdrawals under U. N. Emergency Force auspices "later this week."

Hammarskjold told the eighty-nation organization yesterday he had received word from Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, UNEF commander, informing him that "there was agreement on the technical arrangements for the withdrawal and for the movement of UNEF into the Gaza strip and the Sharm el Sheikh area."

His announcement followed the declaration to the Assembly by Israeli Foreign Minister Golda Meir that Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, Israel's army chief of staff, and Gen. Burns had agreed on measures insuring the "full and prompt" removal of Israeli troops from Egyptian territory.

The Secretary General did not disclose the details of the arrangements worked out by the military commanders. He recalled, however, that Gen. Burns was instructed to "arrange for full and unconditional withdrawal of Israel's military and civilian units with initial take-over exclusively by the UNEF."

Western speakers yesterday, including those representing Britain and Commonwealth nations, Latin American states and others, joined United States Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge in his declaration that most of the Israeli requirements for protection, including recognition of its right of self-defense if attacked were "not unreasonable."

On the other hand, Russia, India and Egypt, with Arab backing, contended that the "assumptions" put forth by Israel as prompting evacuation, were not binding on the Assembly.

DULLES PRAISES ISRAEL, URGES SUEZ BE OPENED

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 5—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today expressed the "great gratification" of the United States at Israel's decision to withdraw its troops from the Gaza strip and the Gulf of Aqaba and said he hoped Egypt would end promptly what he called its foot-dragging with respect to the re-opening of the Suez canal.

The canal could be opened in about 10 days, Dulles told his news conference.

The schedule for removal of Israeli soldiers is reasonably expeditious, Dulles said, adding that he was not at liberty to make public the exact timetable.

Egypt in No Hurry.

The Secretary, answering questions, said there were grounds for believing Egypt did not want to move forward on the Suez reopening until it was assured Israeli troops actually would be pulled out of the disputed area. He also said the United States had not asked Egypt to end the foot-dragging.

The United States has no policy, Dulles said, with regard to holding back American ships from passage through the canal until there are assurances that vessels of all nations will have the right of unhampered passage. There is no reason to believe, Dulles said, that there will be discrimination against the ships of Britain, France or Israel, which attacked Egypt last fall.

Dulles said that under normal shipping procedure a merchant vessel flying the United States flag probably would pass through the Strait of Tiran into the Gulf of Aqaba sometime soon, but that would be up to the shipping companies.

The United States holds that the gulf, leading to Israel's port of Eilat, as well the strait at its entrance, is international water. The strait, however, is narrow enough to qualify as territorial water, as Egypt and India contend it is. Dulles said if the question is submitted to the World Court for decision the United States holds the passage should remain open pending a ruling.

Israelis Barred.

Egypt controlled the entrance and barred Israeli shipping until the Israelis routed them from key positions in the Sinai peninsula campaign last fall.

Dulles said he had discussed with President Eisenhower the question of allowing American newspaper reporters to visit Communist China, from which they are barred by the State Department. There is no change in the Government position, Dulles said, but further inquiry is being made to find out whether the demands for news coverage can be met without dropping barriers to cultural exchange.

He doubted whether the Government planned any legal action against three correspondents who went to Red China in violation of passport restrictions.

Senate Writes Pledge to Back UNEF Into Mideast Resolution

Adopts Mansfield Amendment Over Vigorous Opposition of Knowland — Passage Expected Today.

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — The Senate wrote into the Middle East resolution today a provision pledging support to United Nations peacekeeping forces in the Egypt-Israel area.

Moving toward possible final action on the measure later in the day, the chamber approved an amendment by Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem.) of Montana over the vigorous protests of Senator William F. Knowland of California.

The roll call vote was 48 to 43.

The division was virtually on party lines, with Senators Francis Case (Rep.) of South Dakota and Jacob Javits (Rep.) of New York breaking the opposition G.O.P. line to vote for the Mansfield proposal. Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem.) of Louisiana was paired against it.

Knowland, the Republican leader, contended the amendment would be interpreted by other U.N. nations as congressional approval for the United States to "pick up the entire check."

Johnson Reply.

Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas retorted, in obvious reference to Knowland, that "some of us who hate the U.N.—some of us who may have a phobia on it" were trying to raise a "bald smokescreen."

As finally revised through efforts of Senator Case, the Mansfield amendment read:

"The President should continue to furnish facilities and military assistance, within the provisions of applicable law and established policies, to the United Nations Emergency Force in the Middle East, with a view to maintaining the truce in that region."

Mansfield denied Knowland's contention this would upset an agreement under which the United States will pay 50 per cent of the first $10,000,000 in costs.

Knowland said Congress wants to keep United States contributions to U.N. activities to one-third of the total costs.

Mansfield said President Eisenhower already had the authority covered by the amendment. He described the provision as an expression of support for the policy of having U.N. troops in the trouble areas to keep the peace.

"The Senator from California says he is afraid of setting a precedent," Mansfield said. "What I'm afraid of is the loss of American lives, not a few American dollars."

Earlier the Senate rejected by a voice vote a proposed amendment instructing the President to seek an international agreement setting up controls over shipments of arms and military "volunteers" into the area.

It also was offered by Mansfield, who told the Senate the State Department was "strongly opposed" to it on the ground that it might prevent assistance to Middle East allies including Turkey and Iran, with which this country has military aid pacts.

Before the day's debate got under way, Johnson expressed belief the Senate will adopt the resolution by a "lopsided" margin.

Foreign Aid Director John B. Hollister said final congressional action will speed a United States fact-finding mission to the Middle East "to show we mean business" on a concurrent program of aid.

In addition to its military provisions, the resolution would relax restrictions on $200,000,000 of available aid funds which could be used for either military or economic assistance in the Middle East.

The mission is headed by former Representative James P. Richards (Dem.) of South Carolina, who served as chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee before his retirement. Hollister said Richards will leave by Monday, possibly sooner.

McCarthy Clash.

One clash yesterday sparked what has been largely desultory debate on the resolution during the last two weeks. Senator George W. Malone (Rep.) of Nevada, was making a broadside attack on the resolution yesterday, when Senator Joseph W. McCarthy (Rep.) of Wisconsin, insisted there ought to be a quorum call for more Senators to hear him. Only five Senators were present.

Senator Richard L. Neuberger (Dem.) of Oregon, replied that he had been present during much of the debate and had not seen McCarthy on the floor most of that time.

SENATORS URGED TO CALL HUMPHREY

Neely Raises 'Possible Conflict of Interests' in Oil Lift.

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — Senator Matthew M. Neely (Dem.), West Virginia, urged a Senate investigating subcommittee today to call Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey for questioning "about a possible conflict of interests."

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, chairman of a joint anti-trust and public lands subcommittee looking into operations of the oil lift to Europe, told Neely his request "will be taken under consideration."

Neely, by a series of questions, contended that Humphrey and his family have large holdings in the M. A. Hanna Co., which Neely said has made large profits from operations of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. Standard of New Jersey is one of 15 oil firms participating in the program of emergency oil shipments to Europe.

Neely also raised the "possible conflicts of interest" question in the case of Stewart P. Coleman, vice president of Standard Oil of New Jersey and chairman of the voluntary committee of 15 major oil companies. The firms are operating the oil lift under general government supervision.

Neely described Humphrey as "the most influential man" in President Eisenhower's Cabinet and said he must have engaged "in behind-the-scenes control" of the oil lift.

Coleman, who appeared before the subcommittee with President M. J. Rathbone of Standard of New Jersey, denied that Humphrey had anything to do with Government orders to the industry oil lift committee.

Neely said the Hanna company holds some 400,000 shares in Standard of New Jersey. He asked Rathbone how much this was worth.

"About $55 a share or some $22,000,000," Rathbone said.

"I have not had the pleasure of meeting the gentleman (Humphrey)," Coleman said, adding that Humphrey had not participated in any of the conferences that put the plan into operation.

NEHRU PARTY WINS ELECTION

NEW DELHI, March 5 (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru's Congress party last night won the first election contest decided for the Indian parliament. Dr. P. Subbaroyan, former ambassador to Indonesia, was the victor.

Twelve Congress party candidates were returned unopposed to the 500-seat parliament. The voting began Feb. 24 and continues until March 14.

RECEPTION TONIGHT TO CLOSE WHITE HOUSE SOCIAL SEASON

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — The White House concludes its abbreviated social season with a reception tonight for members of Congress and heads of government departments.

In a little more than five weeks—from Jan. 24 to March 5—the President and Mrs. Eisenhower will have crammed in three state dinners and three receptions for official and diplomatic Washington. The White House also added to the schedule a stag dinner for visiting King Saud of Saudi Arabia early in February.

The Eisenhowers got started late with a diplomatic reception Jan. 24. But they wind up the social season tonight in accord with custom—on the eve of Lent.

BLAIR REQUESTS $50,000 FUND TO INVESTIGATE NURSING HOMES

Asks Legislature to Appropriate Money From General Revenues to Department of Health and Welfare.

By EDWARD H. THORNTON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 5—Gov. James T. Blair today asked the State Legislature for an emergency appropriation of $50,000 to finance "a more comprehensive and thorough investigation of nursing homes in the state."

In a special message to the House and Senate, the Governor asked that the funds be made available to the Department of Public Health and Welfare, which has jurisdiction over licensing and inspection of nursing homes.

The money would come from general revenue.

Inspection Ordered.

The emergency appropriation would be used to finance the state-wide inspection of all nursing homes, ordered by Gov. Blair shortly after the fire at the Katie Jane Memorial nursing home in Warrenton in which 72 persons lost their lives Feb. 17.

It was the Governor's plan to seek the appropriation to speed nursing home inspections that led to the dismissal a week ago of Dr. James R. Amos as director of the State Division of Health.

Blair said he fired Dr. Amos after the physician said he felt $50,000 would be too much "at this time" and did not see a way to use it for inspection purposes.

In another action bearing on the broadening nursing home situation, a House committee yesterday tentatively approved a bill setting up a permanent commission of nine members to study problems of the aged in Missouri.

Sponsored by Representatives A. Clifford Jones (Rep.), Clayton, and Floyd L. Snyder Sr. (Dem.), Independence, the measure provides for appointment of seven members by the Governor and the other two by the presiding officers of the Senate and House.

The commission would investigate problems confronting aged persons and would suggest solutions. It would work with federal, state, county and municipal agencies concerned with the administration of assistance to the elderly with a view to coordinating the programs.

Calls State Out of Step.

In urging approval of the measure Jones said: "Missouri is out of step. Many other states already have such commissions functioning."

Gov Blair, in a television interview at Columbia last night, said he wished Missouri had the $15,000,000 it would take to increase old-age pensions from $60 a month to $70.

A tax increase would be required, he declared, and "before additional taxes are imposed I think the question should be submitted to the people." The ballot in such an election should show the estimated cost and the plan to raise the money, he added.

A series of bills to increase salaries of office holders in St. Louis was laid over after the first of the measures, introduced by Representative Daniel Curran (Dem.), St. Louis, ran headlong into strong opposition by Jones, minority floor leader.

This bill would increase the salary of the clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction from $6000 to $10,000 a year, but would not apply to the incumbent, James P. Lavin, during his current term of office.

Contending that St. Louis "should have more home rule," Jones asserted that the duties of the officer concerned are strictly clerical and should be handled by the circuit clerk.

'On Level With Mayor.'

"Six thousand dollars a year is ample pay for this job," Jones said, "but this bill would place it on a salary level with that of the Mayor of St. Louis."

Other bills in the series called for salary increases for the clerk of the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, Circuit Clerk and Prosecuting Attorney.

A proposed amendment to the Missouri Constitution which would increase the permissible levy to cover cost of pensions paid blind persons under the state-financed program was introduced by Representative Arthur D. Smith (Rep.), Webb City.

The present levy is 3 cents per $100 assessed property valuation, the maximum permitted by the Constitution. It brings in about $2,000,000 a year. The minimum levy permitted at present is one-half cent on the $100 valuation.

The proposed amendment would increase the permissible levy to a range from 2½ cents to 7 cents.

Smith said he submitted the proposal to assure that the state will have sufficient revenue to continue its blind pension program in the event Missouri loses the federal aid it now receives.

Under a separate blind aid program, financed by the state and Federal Government, Missouri receives about $2,300,000 annually from the Federal Government.

The state stands to lose federal aid for the blind unless Congress votes to continue Missouri's authority to maintain both its blind aid programs, or unless the Legislature passes a pending measure to replace the programs with a single one based on need.

The House today passed a number of minor Senate-approved bills, including one raising the maximum age for compulsory education from 14 to 16 years. Between 14 and 16 years however, children could be excused from school attendance by school authorities if proper employment has been obtained and is desirable.

Three Other Bills Passed.

The measure was sent back to the Senate for concurrence in a minor amendment adopted by the House. Three other minor Senate-approved bills were passed in the House and sent to the Governor for signing.

Another constitutional amendment proposed yesterday would write restrictions on legislative committee actiins into the Constitution.

It was proposed by Representative James A. Noland Jr. (Rep.), Macks Creek, sponsor of a proposal to pay a state bonus to veterans of World War II and the Korean conflict. He said he has been unable to get a House committee to take up the bonus proposal.

Measures tentatively approved in the House included bills to:

Permit recovery of damages for mental pain and anguish in wrongful death cases.

Enable all political subdivisions of the state to establish recreational facilities and levy a tax of not more than 2 cents per $100 assessed property valuation for maintenance.

Increase the minimum appropriation for county agricultural extension work in third-class counties having more than $15,000,000 assessed property valuations from $3000 to $5000.

LOBBYISTS FIND SELVES BARRED BY MISSOURI HOUSE

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 5—Unusual decorum prevailed in the House chamber today as a result of decision by House leaders to enforce a little-used rule barring the general public from the lower galleries.

Representative Warren E. Hearnes (Dem.), East Prairie, majority floor leader, announced at the opening of the session that it would be the policy "from now on out" to enforce the rule in the interest of orderly conduct of business.

The doorkeepers were kept busy all morning ushering lobbyists and friends of the Legislators out of the lower galleries.

The action came as a surprise to the lobbyists. Many of them have been accustomed to walk to the edge of the chamber floor and beckon to the Representatives to whom they wanted to speak.

Under the new order of business they will have to send word by the doorkeeper to anyone they want to see to meet them in the corridor outside the chamber.

64 PINBALL MACHINES SEIZED HERE IN YEAR, REPORT SAYS

Sixty-four pinball machines were confiscated in St. Louis last year by police who obtained evidence of pay-offs to players, Lt. John Bloecher, head of the liquor and gambling squad, stated in a report made to Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell today.

The squad arrested 88 persons in investigation of pinball machines, the report said, and of these 56 were indicted. Fines totaling $8535 were assessed in pinball machine cases.

The machines were all five-ball devices on which there are no automatic pay-offs. One-ball machines are no longer seen in St. Louis because they have been ruled gambling devices.

MAN SHOT TO DEATH IN ROW OVER ALLEGED $10 DEBT

Jesse Wiley, 1316 (rear) Biddle street, was shot and killed today by Samuel Orlando, a coal dealer, 2900 block of Eads avenue, in a quarrel over $10 Wiley allegedly owed Orlando, police said.

Orlando was delivering coal to homes near Wiley's when he discovered Wiley, a Negro, was at home. He said he went in and asked for his money, but Wiley refused to pay him. A dispute followed in which Wiley shot Orlando in the right shoulder.

Orland fled from the house and when Wiley came out after him, he shot Wiley in the chest. Wiley was pronounced dead at City Hospital. Orlando was detained at the hospital for treatment.

BILL FOR HORSE BETTING SCRATCHED IN LEGISLATURE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 5—One of two bills introduced in the House this session to legalize betting on horse races in Missouri was "scratched" yesterday.

The measure, sponsored by Representative Anthony Pickrell (Dem.), Kansas City, had been on the informal docket for more than 10 legislative days without the author calling it up for consideration.

Under House rules any bill on the informal docket for more than 10 legislative days without action is automatically tabled. It takes a two-thirds vote of the members for the stricken measure to be reinstated.

BODY OF UNIDENTIFIED MAN TAKEN FROM MISSISSIPPI

The body of an unidentified man was recovered from the Mississippi river yesterday by the United States Coast Guard at the foot of Davis street.

Police estimated the body had been in the water about a week. A metal cigarette lighter bearing the inscription "Air Training Command, United States Air Force," was found in the pocket of a jacket the man was wearing

EISENHOWER MAY TAKE HIS COUGH TO DRY CLIMATE

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—President Eisenhower is considering a trip to "a warm, dry climate" to combat a cough which has bothered him since Jan. 21, the White House said yesterday.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters that "whether he (Eisenhower) would go to an area like Tucson (Ariz.) has been, of course, discussed, but there has been no final decision."

The President's cough is the aftermath of a cold he caught while reviewing his second inaugural parade.

Last week, Mr. Eisenhower mentioned to a White House visitor that it might be a good idea for him to get to a warm dry climate for a while. He mentioned Tucson as a possibility.

Any such trip apparently will not start before this weekend since Hagerty released Mr. Eisenhower's engagement schedule through Friday morning.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL HAS $37,535 DEFICIT FOR 1956

The 1956 financial report of St. Luke's Hospital showed a deficit of $37,535, with income of $1,888,939 and expenses of $1,926,475, hospital officials said today. Charity work exceeded $160,000.

Eugene F. Williams Jr., president of the hospital, said it was possible capacity might be expanded by adding one or more floors to the new Fowler wing. Modernization of old sections may reduce bed capacity in those areas, he said.

The 1956 deficit occurred despite $29,000 of assistance from the United Fund. Williams said the year was not as good financially as had been hoped for, and pointed out that operations had been made difficult by the building of new non-revenue producing areas without a matching increase in bed capacity.

TWO ARE SOUGHT IN BETTENDORF $10,900 HOLDUP

Habeas Corpus Writs Mistakenly Filed for Them After Arrest of One Suspect.

Police today were searching for Marvin Dale Berry, an ex-convict, and Forrest A. Parker, ex-reformatory inmate, for questioning in yesterday's $10,900 holdup of Bettendorf's supermarket on Riverview boulevard at Halls Ferry circle.

Efforts to find the men were redoubled after an attorney, apparently thinking they already were in custody, yesterday filed a writ of habeas corpus seeking their release. The writs were dismissed by Circuit Judge Robert L. Aronson after a police officer assured the court under oath the suspects had not been arrested.

Suspect Questioned.

Another suspect, James Patrick McNamee, who was seized with $2696 following the daylight robbery, was being questioned today. McNamee, a steamfitter living in the 2300 block of St. Louis avenue, was arrested by waiting detectives when he arrived at his home 90 minutes after the holdup.

The habeas corpus writs were served on the police department at 1 p.m., about five hours after the holdup. Judge Aronson set the case for 3 p.m. Detective Sgt. Francis E. Burke took the stand and testified Berry and Parker were not in custody.

Berry is under indictment, charged with the murder of John F. Bernal in a holdup at the Londoff Cocktail Lounge, 2357 Palm street, Feb. 22, 1955. A mistrial was declared in his trial last Tuesday by Circuit Judge David A. McMullan as a result of a broadcast and telecast which stated Berry's alleged accomplice had previously pleaded guilty and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Parker's Record.

Parker was caught by police May 12, 1953, hiding in a tavern at 6448 Farina avenue with another youth. He and his companion were quoted as admitting they had broken into the place. Parker also was one of four young persons riding in a stolen automobile which struck another machine in December 1952, causing the death of Charles P. Nichols, father of six small children.

Police arrested a woman companion of Berry at a house in the 4300 block of Pleasant street. They also seized two locked metal boxes of the type usually used for holding money. The boxes have not been opened.

Officers who arrested McNamee said he formerly operated a tavern in north St. Louis. His "family" trade quit coming to the tavern, they said, when hoodlums began hanging out there. The tavern lost money and McNamee was forced out of business.

Homes Under Watch.

Police said McNamee's home and several others have been under regular watch recently by officers investigating robberies.

After police learned one of the two automobiles used by the supermarket robbers was red, Detectives Edward Longinette and John Mohan were sent to McNamee's home by Detective Sgt. Charles Nash. McNamee was known to own a red and black Buick.

County May Seek Highway Tax Rise to Repair Winter Damage

Cost of Restoration Put at $400,000 to $500,000—Engineer Says It Could Have Been 75 Per Cent Less.

The St. Louis County Highway Department may have to seek a tax increase this year to cover the cost of repairing county roads damaged by unusually severe winter weather, John J. Leslie, county highway engineer, told the Post-Dispatch.

A survey of the 679 miles of roads and highways in unincorporated areas of the county showed that it will cost between $400,000 and $500,000 to repair damage caused by winter weather, Leslie said.

The repair bill would have been about 75 per cent less if the original paving work on the damaged roads had been done properly, John M. Crutsinger, assistant highway engineer said. Many of the roads could not withstand the series of snows and freezing rains that fell earlier this winter because they were not built in accordance with accepted road standards or because inferior materials were used, Crutsinger charged.

Tax Is Now 21 Cents.

The present county road and bridge tax is 21 cents on each $100 of assessed property valuation. Leslie has not estimated the amount of tax increase that would be needed.

The department has until August, when the County Council sets the tax rate, to determine what its needs will be.

This year the highway department will receive about $1,776,000, of which about $676,000 will be turned over to municipalities for maintenance they do on county roads, as provided under the road and bridge fund ordinance, Leslies said.

This leaves about $1,100,000 to pay for the usual repair and maintenance work as well as the unexpected extensive repairs from winter, the highway engineer said.

Inadequate Paving.

Discussing inadequate paving jobs on many county roads, Crutsinger said that 36 miles of roads paved last summer will have to be given a double seal because they were left unsealed during the winter, with the result that they were badly damaged. A single coat of sealing costs about $1200 a mile.

Crutsinger, who was appointed assistant engineer after Leslie, a Democrat, defeated Fred H. Kiburz, Republican, in the November elections, said he found that some roads were paved to a thickness of three-fourths of an inch, though the recommended thickness is two inches.

In other instances, Crutsinger said, a type of asphalt was used that gets too hard, causing cracks into which water may seep and freeze.

A check of some streets built by private contractors in subdivisions showed that many were not properly inspected as the work progressed, he said. He pointed out that the number of inspectors has been reduced from 28 to 25 since Leslie took office Jan. 1, but that these 25 will be given special training. The first inspectors' school is now under way and is being attended by 17 men.

CONGREGATION RAISING FUND FOR DR. YOUNGE'S CANDIDACY

The congregation of All Saints Episcopal Church, 2931 Locust street, is attempting to raise $100 in support of the campaign of Dr. Walter A. Younge for election to the St. Louis Board of Education, it was learned today.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph W. Nicholson, rector of the church, said parish support of Dr. Younge's campaign had been announced at services and that special offerings were received at all services one recent Sunday.

"This is a non-partisan campaign and we would like to see a Negro on the Board of Education," the Rev. Dr. Nicholson said. "We are going to do all we can to see him get elected."

Dr. Younge is a member of St. Paul's A.M.E. Church, the Rev. Dr. Nicholson said.

NEW G.O.P. COMMITTEE ORGANIZED IN COUNTY

A new Citizens' Republican Committee of St. Louis county has been formed as an outgrowth of criticism of the regular Republican county organization, it was announced yesterday.

Thomas W. Taylor, a Clayton attorney who has been selected acting chairman of the group, said that more than 2000 letters had been sent to county residents who had indicated their willingness to support the new organization.

Other acting officers of the committee are Mrs. Harold Feller, vice chairman; Peter Wulfing, treasurer, and Mrs. Arnold Wass, secretary.

POLICEMAN'S WIFE TRAPS SUSPECT IN THEFT OF UNIFORM

East St. Louis Police Sgt. Stanley J. Sieron Jr. received a valuable assist from his petite brunette wife yesterday in capturing a 205-pound man who allegedly stole a quantity of the sergeant's clothing from their parked automobile in the 300 block of Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis.

Sgt. and Mrs. Sieron left the machine to do some shopping. When they returned 15 minutes later, the clothing, which included his uniform and was destined for the cleaners, was gone. Mrs. Sieron spotted a suspect some distance away and went to him.

"Would you walk down the street with me?" she asked. The man, a Negro identified as Shelby Gregory, 1400 block of Russell avenue, East St. Louis, came along peaceably and Sgt. Sieron put him under arrest, whereupon he bolted.

The officer shouted and a passerby stepped into Gregory's path, knocking him into the plate glass window of a restaurant at 319 Collinsville. He was recaptured, and police said clothing in his possession was Sieron's. The sergeant gave his wife the credit, saying: "She did better than I did."

Bank Held Up, $50,000 Stolen.

SHARON, Pa., March 5 (AP)—A robber threatened to kill "anyone who moves" yesterday he he held up the Hickory branch of the McDowell National Bank on the outskirts of Sharon and fled with more than $50,000.

U.S. AID SOUGHT TO STUDY COUNTY LAND CLEARANCE

Agency Proposes Preliminary Work in Meacham Park and Elmwood Park Areas.

An application for $336,375 in federal funds to finance preliminary studies of the Meacham Park and Elmwood Park areas has been made by the St. Louis County Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority, it was announced today.

Robert J. Tracy, executive director of the county agency, said the application requested a loan of $190,375 and a capital grant allocation of $2,333,400 for Meacham Park revedopment, and a loan of $146,000 and a grant allocation of $407,626 for Elmwood Park.

The 157-acre Meacham Park area probably would be cleared for a housing project, Tracy indicated, while the 111 acres in Elmwood Park would be prepared for industrial redevelopment.

The two areas, both predominantly Negro in population, are marked by substandard housing and insanitary conditions. Meacham Park is a community of 1500 persons south of Kirkwood in the district near Lindbergh and Big Bend boulevards. Elmwood Park, which extends along Elmwood avenue north of Olive street road, borders the Rock Island Railroad tracks, and the rail facilities would be important in development of industrial sites.

Loans from the Urban Renewal Administration would be used for preliminary planning and surveys. Capital grant allocations are funds set aside to cover the federal share of the cost of clearing blighted areas and selling the ground at reduced price to private redevelopers.

The Federal Government defrays two thirds of the cost of such projects, the remainder being borne by the local agency. If the federal contribution for redevelopment of Meacham Park and Elmwood Park amounted to $2,741,026, as indicated in the application, the county's contribution would have to be $1,370,513.

Asked where the county would obtain the money to defray its share, Tracy said a bond issue might be necessary. The 1955 county bond issue allocated $2,200,000 for parks, and part of this fund might be utilized in Meacham Park, he added.

Do-It-Yourself Voodoo Kit.

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—Distributors of a do-it-yourself voodoo kit have promised not to sell the kit by mail. In turn, the Post Office Department dropped an inquiry into whether Swangren's, of Lombard, Ill., was fraudulently advertising the kit—which includes a witch doctor's pouch, straw doll, voodoo needles and "secret incantations."

not determine whether death was accidental.

"It is my professional opinion," Dr. Kountz said, "that during the period covered by the trial, Judge Hulen's emotional state was such as to make him somewhat indecisive and perhaps his medication would have impaired his judgment to some degree.

"However, he was not mentally incompetent or unable to perform his function as a judge by direct or indirect reason of any illness."

The affidavit also notes that after the trial was over Judge Hulen was "having great difficulty in concentrating and bringing his pencil down to the paper to write an opinion" on a motion for a new trial.

Motion Argued.

In arguing for a new trial, Attorney Hooker said on some days Judge Hulen was indecisive and on others he was decisive. He denied that the defense felt the judge was not in control of his faculties. Judge Nordbye asked the attorney if there was any question whether the defendants got a fair trial. Hocker answered that he thought the defendants were entitled to a trial by a judge "not burdened with depression."

Warren Olney III, assistant United States Attorney General in charge of criminal prosecutions, appeared for the Government. He said Judge Hulen was not worried about this case. His actions during the trial, he asserted, clearly indicate that the inference drawn by the defense is wrong. Judge Hulen was fully capable of performing his duties, Olney said.

In Irving Sachs Case.

Caudle, former head of the Justice Department's tax division, and Connelly, former appointments secretary to President Truman, were convicted of conspiring with Harry I. Schwimmer, former Kansas City attorney, to fix the tax evasion case of Irving Sachs, St. Louis shoe jobber.

Schwimmer was a defendant when the 27-day trial started here, but a mistrial was declared in his case when he became ill in the courtroom. He is now in a sanitarium in New York. The charge against him is still pending.

Sachs eventually paid a $40,000 fine, but avoided going to prison.

A deposition from former President Truman was read into the voluminous trial record. In it he said Connelly could not have been appointed to the various official positions he held in Washington "if his reputation had not been above reproach." Truman fired Caudle from his Justice Department position for having too many outside interests.

Oil Royalties Involved.

At the trial here, the Government contended that Schwimmer, using Sachs's money, gave oil royalties to Connelly and Caudle in an effort to persuade them to use their influence in Sachs's behalf. Caudle testified that he bought the royalties as an investment and later sent them back to Schwimmer.

Attorneys for Connelly and Caudle filed a motion with Judge Nordbye, seeking a judgment of acquittal or a new trial. In a 37-page opinion, the judge ruled against them last month, stating "It is clear that both Caudle and Connelly performed certain acts" which tended to further the illegal conspiracy.

Caudle is now an attorney in his home town, Wadesboro, N.C., and Connelly is in public relations work in New York.

across party lines in the Knesset and many deputies were reported to believe the past four months of negotiations had been wasted.

The deputies said Israel's bargaining power would have been much more greater if it had held onto the Sinai desert positions it captured less than 10 miles from the Suez canal where the Israeli army advanced in the first days of the October invasion.

The crisis was precipitated when members of the left-wing Mapam (United Workers) and Ahdut Avoda (Unity of Labor) parties said they would not vote with the government on two censure motions by the opposition, condemning his policy of withdrawing.

Both parties are members of his coalition and unless he can persuade them to reverse their decision, they could cause his government to fall.

Ben-Gurion was quoted as telling the political leaders that if the Egyptians returned to the Gaza strip "we have it in our powers to send them back into their territory in one day."

Military Situation.

Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, commander of the United Nations Emergency Force, conferred yesterday with Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, Israeli defense commander, and then reported to U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold.

Burns flies back today to his advance base at El Arish, 30 miles from the Gaza strip. He spent the night at government house in the no-man's land between Old and New Jerusalem. Dayan returned to Old Jerusalem for a conference with Ben-Gurion. It was understood he informed the Premier the withdrawal from Sheikh el Sharm would not be difficult but that turning over the Gaza strip to the UNEF would take at least three weeks.

Israel sources, expected the United Nations to seek Israel's help in maintaining administration of the strip "for a certain period" and that Israel would be asked to provide public services plus food for Arab refugees through the port of Haifa.

No Real Guarantees.

Despite strenuous Israeli efforts in Washington and at the United Nations, Israel has not yet received flat guarantees the Egyptians will not return to Gaza. However, Israeli sources said at the U.N. the nation had "moral commitments" from President Eisenhower.

Circles close to the Premier said there was a "reasonable prospect" that an exchange of letters between Foreign Minister Golda Meir and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles would lay down the foundations on which the withdrawal would be based.

Bunche Reported Slated for Head of UNEF in Egypt.

ACCRA, Gold Coast, March 5 (UP)—Dr. Ralph Bunche, assistant secretary general of the United Nations, now attending the Ghana independence celebration, is expected to take charge of the U.N. Emergency Force in Egypt soon, informed sources reported today.

The new assignment would put the UNEF under civilian direction at the height of its responsibilities for keeping the peace after the Israeli withdrawal.

Bunche refused to comment, but other sources here said he had been chosen to work out the many problems piling up for the U.N. police force.

Bunche, an American Negro, is Hammarskjold's chief aid.

leaders put out the word for workers to cross party lines and vote for Callanan. They hoped that his nomination might result in victory for Republican candidate Mehan at the April general election.

Tucker has the announced support of 20 of the 28 Democrat ward organizations. Of the rest, several have taken no position and there is outright opposition to the Mayor in only two or three.

Election results will be reported by Post-Dispatch Radio Station KSD on regular news broadcasts tonight at 10, 11, 11:30 o'clock and midnight, and on television by Station KSD-TV at 11 o'clock. In addition, bulletins will be given out at intervals.

Aldermanic Contests.

The contests for aldermanic nominations are in the Fifth and Twenty-seventh wards, where there is opposition on both tickets, and the Thirteenth, Fifteenth and Seventeenth, where there are Democratic contests.

Candidates for Democratic nominations for alderman in contested races are as follows:

Fifth Ward—John T. Curry, incumbent; Roscoe L. McCrary and James McQuary. Thirteenth Ward—Pat Burke, Nick Klaski and Stephen Winkeler. Fifteenth Ward—A. J. Cervantes, incumbent, and Gilbert W. Brine. Seventeenth Ward—Joseph P. Roddy, incumbent, and George Cady. Twenty-seventh Ward—Everett J. Taylor, incumbent; Raymond T. Percich and Joseph F. Noel.

Candidates in Republican contests: Fifth Ward—John Straughter and Raymond R. Deckman. Twenty-seventh Ward—William J. Stewart and John Cruvand.

lishments in the St. Louis area, Hutchings said significantly.

The report contained a suggestion a patient could have started the blaze by setting his bed on fire accidentally "or possibly on purpose, as many of the patients in the annex were mental cases."

No Arson Evidence.

However, Hutchings said no evidence of arson was found. Nor was there any indication of the presence of material that could have caused spontaneous combustion, he added.

Announcement of the appointment of Dr. Hardwicke as acting director of the Division of Health was coupled with an announcement that Dr. Elton S. Osborne Jr., United States Public Health Service officer, will serve as special consultant to the Governor on plans for improving services by the division.

Gov. Blair had announced Friday that he planned to appoint Dr. Osborne acting director of the department. However, upon Dr. Osborne's arrival here yesterday, it was learned there was a question whether he could accept such an appointment because it would involve dual state and federal responsibilities.

As a result, the Governor said, he named Dr. Hardwicke, who recently has been directing the state program of inspection of nursing homes. Dr. Amos was fired when he failed to act readily in co-operation with Gov. Blair's plans to expand the inspection program following the Warrenton fire.

Dr. Hardwicke will continue as acting director "until I find someone to take the place," the Governor announced. He said Dr. Hardwicke will retain his salary of $10,000 in his new capacity. The director's salary is only $7500.

Dr. Osborne is expected to remain here for 30 days. "He will look into the whole field of the health division's works, including nursing homes," Blair said.

Dr. Osborne, assistant chief of the division of special services in the Bureau of State Services of the federal health agency, said he will make recommendations to the Governor later.

Joining with Dr. Osborne in a two-hour conference with Gov. Blair here yesterday were two other public health service officers: Dr. Theodore J. Bauer of Washington, D.C., a deputy chief surgeon general, and Dr. Lewis Hoyle of Kansas City, regional medical director for the federal agency. They left here after the conference.

Dr. Osborne, who is on loan to the state, will be paid by the federal government. However, his expenses while he is here will be borne by the state, Blair said.

A special subcommittee of an emergency committee appointed last week by Gov. Blair will meet here tomorrow to begin drafting minimum fire protection standards for nursing homes. Blair has called on the group of fire and health experts and others to complete the job as rapidly as possible.

BECK IS DROPPED AS U.S. DELEGATE

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 5 — Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell last night rejected Dave Beck, international president of the Teamsters Union, as a United States representative to the International Labor Organization meeting this month.

Announced as it was, after Mitchell had conferred with Senator John L. McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, chairman of the special Senate committee investigating labor racketeering, the Secretary's action amounted to an official repudiation of Beck as qualified, at this time at least, to represent this country in the ILO—a sort of United Nations of the free world labor movements—and also deprived Beck of a reason for continued absence abroad.

Beck, whose financial and political operations over a period of years are under scrutiny by the Senate committee, has spent most of his time in Europe since the investigation began.

He had been expected to appear before the committee for questioning in early February but departed for Europe, instead, sending word that he would not be back in the United States until late March because he would be tied up with the ILO meetings at Hamburg, Germany, from March 11 through March 23.

The committee has shown considerable interest in the manner in which Beck has amassed great wealth in recent years. It wants to question him about allegations that Teamsters' funds were used to pay in part at least for construction of Beck's palatial $162,000 residence in Seattle, Wash., which the union then bought from him for $162,000 with the proviso that he could occupy it rent-free for the rest of his life.

CALICO WAIVES HEARING ON REMOVAL TO ST. LOUIS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, March 5 — Ralph Calico, St. Louis gangster, today waived a hearing on removal to St. Louis when he was arraigned before United States Commissioner C. S. Bentley Pike.

Calico, who had been sought for three years for alleged income tax evasion, will be returned to St. Louis to face charges of obstructing justice and tax evasion in United States District Court. He was indicted on the latter charge with two associates in operation of the Twin City Distributing Co., which formerly distributed cigarette vending machines.

A department store detective arrested Calico last Thursday for allegedly shoplifting a $7.95 hat. Chicago police discovered he was a fugitive from justice by checking his fingerprints.

NAVY ASKED TO RUSH CHOICE OF SITE FOR SECOND AIRPORT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 5 — Representative Frank M. Karsten (Dem.), St. Louis, today urged the Navy to speed up selection of a site for the proposed second major airport in the St. Louis area so that an appropriation may be sought in Congress before the end of the present session.

Karsten said he had been notified that the Navy, designated as the agency to select the site, had been asked to submit its report by Sept. 1. Since Congress is expected to adjourn before Sept. 1, adherence to this deadline would prevent submission of the site choice to the House and Senate armed services committees which must approve the site before an appropriation can be sought to begin construction, Karsten said.

He said he believed a choice could be made by June or July. Since the airport must be located close enough to St. Louis to be used by Navy reservists living in that area, the number of feasible sites is limited, he pointed out.

MRS. HAROLD M. SEAGO DIES; FUNERAL IN COLLINSVILLE

Mrs. Josephine G. Seago of Collinsville, died of cancer today at Lutheran Hospital here after an illness of several months. She was 45 years old and the wife of Harold M. Seago, vice President of the Hunter Engineering Co. in Ladue.

Mrs. Seago, daughter of the late Collinsville Mayor and Mrs. A. C. Gauen, is survived besides her husband, by three daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Foster of Fort Knox, Ky., and Misses Roberta and Helen Seago; one son, Harold M. Seago Jr., and three brothers, Francis A. and G. Robert Gauen of Collinsville and Richard Gauen of Chicago.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at St. John's Evangelical Church in Collinsville with burial in St. John's Cemetery there.

SOVIET-POLISH BORDER PACT

LONDON, March 5 (AP) — The Soviet Union and Poland today signed a treaty "on the demarcation of the existing Soviet-Polish state frontier in the sector adjacent to the Baltic sea," the Moscow radio reported. A broadcast said the treaty was signed by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and visiting Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki.

ICEBERGS FORCE SHIPPING DETOUR IN NORTH ATLANTIC

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—"Detour signs" have been posted on the world's busiest shipping lane, from northwest Europe to United States ports. The Navy Hydrographic office here says at least a dozen large icebergs have drifted into the area off the Grand Banks, causing a temporary change in ship traffic patterns.

SAFE WON'T OPEN, BURGLAR SETTLES FOR PETTY CASH

A metal safe at the Roman Art Co., 2704 Locust street, apparently proved too much for a burglar who tried in vain to open it over the weekend, police reported yesterday.

After stealing the necessary tools next door from the W. V. Baron Co. at 2700 Locust, the robber knocked the combination off the safe, then drilled a hole through the top. But the door still would not open. Even company officials could not get it open yesterday.

Satisfying himself with stealing $15 from a petty cash box in the Baron firm, the safecracker left a note for the owners of the safe at the Roman firm. It said: "Either I'm slipping or your tools are no good."

TOKYO, March 5 (AP)—Ambassadors of the United States and Russia were granted separate audiences with Empress Nagako of Japan this morning. United States Ambassador Douglas MacArthur II was accompanied by his wife and daughter. Ivan Fyodorovich Tevosyan, the Russian ambassador, went alone. Both envoys met Emperor Hirohito last month.

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, March 5—A public general court-martial was ordered yesterday for Col. John Nickerson Jr., a senior officer at the army ballistics missiles agency, Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala.

Among the charges is one that Nickerson released secret documents "relating to the national defense of the United States and containing information which he had reason to believe could be used to the injury of the United States or to the advantage of a foreign nation."

He was alleged to have turned over to certain representatives of industrial firms and certain newspaper men copies of official documents and his own memorandum disputing the wisdom of the Defense Department in its policies on the development and utilization of guided missiles.

Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, commanding general of the Third United States Army, directed from his headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga., that "only if true national security is in jeopardy of compromise will the court enter into executive sessions in the course of the court-martial."

Army-Air Force Dispute.

This presaged, according to some sources, a full airing of the Army-Air Force dispute over roles and missions in the field of guided missiles, particularly the rivalry between developers of Army's Jupiter intermediate range 1500-mile ballistics missile and the Air Force's Thor, of similar purpose.

Gen. Hickey ordered the court, consisting of 10 officers, including Maj. Gen. Crump Garvin, commanding general of Third Army Reserve Command, as president, be convened at Redstone Arsenal. It was expected that it would be called in four weeks.

Nickerson, who is a West Point graduate, was still restricted to Redstone Arsenal reservation as he has been since last January.

The general charges were that he unlawfully reproduced classified defense information, that he unlawfully distributed secret information to unauthorized persons, that he failed to safeguard defense information and that he committed "other acts prejudicial to good order and discipline in the armed forces of the United States."

The charges referred to Articles 92 and 134 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

The specifications said that Nickerson wrote a document entitled "Considerations of the Wilson Memorandum," consisting of 12 pages and alleged to have contained secret defense information, "The exposure of which could result in serious damage to the United States."

He was charged also with "causing the reproduction of" two documents containing "secret defense information." One of these, signed by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, was entitled "Memorandum for the Secretary of the Army and the Secretary of the Navy, subject: 'Management of the IRBM No. 2 Development Program'," and dated Nov. 9, 1956.

The other document, signed by Secretary of the Air Force Donald A. Quarles, was a memorandum for Wilson and dealt with "adjustment of Army-Air Force differences." It was dated Aug. 14, 1956.

LOS ANGELES, March 5 (AP)—The old age of four pet hens has been provided for by the will of a spinster, who set up a $200 chicken feed trust fund to save them from the stew pan. The will of Miss Claudia M. Du Vall, 79 years old, a piano teacher, was filed yesterday for probate.

WAGNER ELECTRIC PAY RISES

One hundred tool designers and draftsmen of the Wagner Electric Corp., 6400 Plymouth avenue, Wellston, obtained salary increases of $43 to $53 a month, it was announced yesterday.

The increases were obtained in negotiations between the corporation and the AFL-CIO American Federation of Technical Engineers, Local 23.

Ford of England on Full Time.

LONDON, March 5 (AP) — The Ford Motor Co. announced last night its employes in England are going back to full-time work. It said orders both from home and overseas are building up again following the slump that hit the motor industry here after the blocking of the Suez canal and the gasoline shortage.

In this week's Post!

Don Newcombe says— "I'm No Quitter"

"I didn't tell Manager Alston my arm was hurting," says Don Newcombe about his World Series mistake. "My teammates will learn for the first time why I didn't pitch in Yankee Stadium, where I might have done better."

Now, in this week's issue of The Saturday Evening Post, one of the most maligned pitchers in baseball unburdened himself on a sore subject: how it feels to have your courage questioned when you fail in the World Series.

You'll learn:

- The reason for Newcombe's celebrated "walkouts" and "rhubarbs."
- What Pee Wee Reese told him before the start of the World Series.
- What it's like to pitch to sluggers Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra.
- How he felt after Elston Howard homered in the seventh game.
- The real story behind his asking Manager Alston to trade him.
- His side of the run-in with a parking-lot attendant.

FBI OFFICIAL TO SURVEY CRIME RECORD SYSTEM HERE

A. E. Leonard, head of the statistical section of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, will make a survey of the St. Louis Police Department to see if it has a satisfactory system of keeping crime reports and crime statistics, H. Sam Priest, chairman of the Board of Police Commissioners, announced yesterday at the board meeting.

Leonard, secretary of the committee on uniform crime reports of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, arrived here yesterday to make the check. He made a similar survey in 1946 which led to the introduction of a number of changes in crime reporting. Priest was head of the police board then also.

HODGE QUERIED ON RACING TIE-UP WITH GANGSTERS

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, March 5—Former Illinois Auditor Orville E. Hodge, now in prison for stealing an estimated $1,500,000 from the state, was questioned yesterday by Internal Revenue agents assigned to a federal grand jury investigating income tax returns of Chicago gangsters and hoodlums.

The questioning took place in a cell in the United States Marshal's office shortly after a federal judge suspended half of the 20-year sentence imposed on Hodge for misapplying federally-insured bank funds.

Within a few hours after the federal agents talked to Hodge, the grand jury returned an income-tax indictment against Paul (The Waiter) Ricca, one-time lieutenant of the late Al Capone, but there was no indication that Hodge had given information concerning Ricca to the agents.

Not a Stockholder.

It was learned that the former State Auditor had been asked if he knew of any attemps by gangsters to "muscle in" at Cahokia Downs, a race track near East St. Louis.

Hodge confirmed this as he was being taken down an elevator in the Federal building to be returned to Menard penitentiary at Chester.

"They wanted to know who owned the land around Cahokia Downs," he said. "I didn't know. My property is in a different county. I am not a stockholder of Cahokia Downs."

One of the disbursements from the "brown envelope" account that Hodge kept in a Chicago bank when he was State Auditor was an item of $11,000 to A. E. Ryan, treasurer of Cahokia Downs.

Investigators were told the money was given to Ryan in payment of $10,000 worth of debentures and 1000 shares of Cahokia Downs common stock sold to Ellis Veech, sports editor of the East St. Louis Journal. Veech said he borrowed the $11,000 from Hodge but later repaid it.

There was no indication of any gangster or hoodlum participation in the transaction involving Veech, Ryan and Hodge.

Inquiry Continuing.

Assistant United States Attorney William Barnett, who handled the Ricca case before the grand jury, said the investigation is continuing against other hoodlums and the subject of the interview with Hodge might "come up on a future date."

Ricca is charged with not having paid income taxes of $128,346 due on unreported income totaling $308,833 for 1948, 1949 and 1950.

One of the four counts in the indictment is a conspiracy charge, accusing Ricca and his attorney, Joseph Imburgio Bulger, with making false statements to the effect Ricca concealed $300,000 in his former home in suburban River Forest.

The two men told Internal Revenue agents the huge sum of money was kept in Ricca's home while he was in prison serving a 10-year sentence for extorting tribute from leaders of the movie industry.

The $300,000 reportedly was hidden in Ricca's home from Dec. 25, 1943, to Aug. 13, 1947. The former henchman of the late Al Capone recently built a new home for $150,000 in River Forest.

The hidden money claim apparently was made in an effort to refute the Government's case, built on a net-worth basis.

Ricca, who also uses the names DeLucia and Salvi, is charged with reporting losses of $18,094, $2282 and $9838 for 1948, 1949 and 1950 whereas, the Government said, his actual income for these years was $143,957, $51,948 and $18,860.

The Government is seeking to denaturalize Ricca and deport him on the ground he committed two murders in Italy before arriving in this country in 1920.

325 STUDENTS TO WITNESS MOCK TRIAL AT CIVIL COURTS

About 325 public and parochial high school students will tour the Civil Courts building and witness a demonstration trial by seven lawyers of the Bar Association of St. Louis tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. as part of a court visitation program sponsored by the Association.

The program, first to be offered to area students, is given to provide American Government students with a rudimentary knowledge of court procedure and legal processes.

Following the mock trial, lawyers will schedule visits to the school classrooms to answer questions of students on the tour.

KANSAS FLIPPERS LOSE FLAPJACK DERBY TO ENGLISH

LIBERAL, Kan., March 5 (AP)—The international pancake racing title went back to Olney, England, today.

Liberal's feminine flapjack flippers gave it a nice try in near-freezing weather and under an overcast sky, but the best they could do in the Kansas leg of the pancake derby was a time of 1 minute 16 seconds turned in by Miss Mary Collingwood, 24 years old.

That was eight seconds slower than the showing made by 18-year-old Sandra Sibley in winning a similar race in Olney earlier in the day.

British chances in the race had been improved by an alteration in the course by the Rev. Ronald Collins, originator of the trans-Atlantic contest. He ordered the British leg of the race run on the main street of Olney instead of among the gravestones of the churchyard. The American course is almost straight.

Four persons were arrested early today when clothing taken from an automobile parked in the 4900 block of Maryland avenue was found in their vehicle, parked directly behind the robbed machine.

Sgt. Leroy Bircher and Patrolman Robert Gould made the arrest after noticing the ventilator window on an automobile belonging to Martin Kilbane of Daly City, Calif., had been broken open. Philip Coleman, Negro, of the 3200 block of Magazine street, driver of the car occupied by the suspects, said he found the Kilbane car open and decided to take the clothing.

A check at the home of one of the two Negro women arrested disclosed about $1000 worth of sample clothing that had been reported stolen from another car that had been parked in almost the identical spot on Maryland earlier last evening. The sample clothing had been taken from a car owned by David Hutkins, 8424 Korea drive, St. Louis county and was the object of a search by Officers Bircher and Gould when the second theft was discovered. Kilbane, owner of the second car described himself as a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent passing through St. Louis on his honeymoon.

CAMDEN, Ark., March 5 (AP)—The disappearance of Mrs. Maude Crawford from her home Saturday night apparently was no nearer solution today.

At Little Rock, Alton M. Bryant, special agent in charge, said the FBI was conducting an inquiry into the woman's disappearance "to determine whether any violation within the bureau's jurisdiction has occurred."

Mrs. Crawford is a civic leader and has been a member of the Camden law firm of Gaughan, McClellan and Laney for 30 years. Senator John McClellan of Arkansas is an inactive member of the firm.

E. ST. LOUIS TIRE FIRM'S SAFE IS ROBBED OF $800

More than $800 was taken from a safe by burglars who broke into the Goodyear Service Co., 701 St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis, Lester V. Vogler, the manager, reported today.

Police said the burglars entered through a window in the tire repair room and forced a door leading to the office. Filing cabinets were overturned and drawers were forced open.

Hinges had been pried off the safe from which an unknown amount of checks was taken in addition to the cash. Coins also were removed from several vending machines.

THREE MEN ADMIT DEALING IN OBSCENE MOVIE FILMS

Two men arrested in St. Louis and St. Louis county last night, and a third taken into custody in the county Friday night, have admitted dealing in obscene motion picture films, Lt. Richard Hackmeyer, head of the county police vice squad, said today.

Arrested last night were Sam Gold, a salesman, of the 4000 block of North Newstead avenue, and Richard Duncan, a salesman, of the 5600 block of Welmering drive, Affton. The third man was George R. Ruppels, salesman, who gave an address in the 1800 block of Franklin avenue when arrested in St. Louis county last week.

Detectives of the St. Louis police morality squad under Sgt. Bernard McDonnell took Gold into custody at his residence, and county police arrested Duncan two hours later. Police said Gold, who was held for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, had admitted importing 100 reels of film from Texas. Hackmeyer said the film-selling operation was the only one known to have been active in the St. Louis area.

Dr. Graham

Robert Gilmore, a Pittsburgh obstetrician, returned to his duties and made it a custom, in subsequent years, to send the surgeon a box of candy at Christmas and telephone him on the anniversary of his operation.

Dr. Gilmore came to St. Louis for treatment of what was thought to be a chronic lung abscess. Diagnosis with a bronchoscope revealed cancer. The patient went home to take care of personal affairs and returned to have a lobe of his left lung cut out. Dr. Graham had performed his first lobectomy—removal of the lobe of a lung—in 1918.

On the operating table matters took a more serious turn. After opening up the chest Dr. Graham found that the cancer involved both lobes of the left lung. A physician friend of Dr. Gilmore was watching from the gallery. Dr. Graham looked up at him and said:

"I'm not going to be able to remove the cancer without removing the whole lung. What do you think about it?"

"Has it ever been done before?" the physician, who knew nothing of lung surgery, asked.

"No. I have done it in animals," was the reply. "I don't see why it couldn't be done in a human."

Made Decision.

Ultimately the decision was up to Dr. Graham and he went ahead with it, blocking off the blood vessels and cutting out the entire lung. Years later he remarked that he knew his patient well, well enough to realize that he would prefer death on the table to a lingering death from cancer.

The lung removal operation, called a pneumonectomy, has become a routine surgical procedure that has saved the lives of thousands of cancer victims. Where both lungs are affected, no effective treatment has been developed.

In the last decade of his life Dr. Graham made repeated public warnings on the rising incidence of lung cancer, which he believed to be related to the smoking of cigarettes. Addressing the sixth Inter-American Congress of Surgery at Chicago in 1949, he noted that lung cancer, a rare condition 50 years ago, had become alarmingly common, particularly in men.

Dr. Graham alluded to his suspicions concerning cigarettes on that occasion, but in the December 1953 issue of Cancer Research he and two associates made it much more definite. Reporting on two years of laboratory research with mice, they claimed "positive evidence" that cancer could be produced by tar contained in cigarette smoke.

The Cancer Research article buttressed a statistical study that Dr. Graham and Dr. Ernest L. Wynder finished in 1950, showing that the more cigarettes a person smoked, the greater the chance of developing lung cancer.

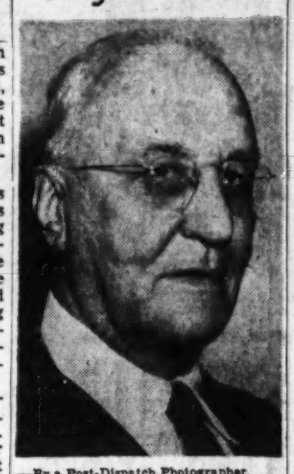
When the Public Health Cancer Association voted in 1954 to advise the public to stop smoking cigarettes, Dr. Graham hailed the action as a "momentous event." The action, he remarked, was the first instance of such an organization "acting to warn people not to do something because of possible harm."

The surgeon himself was a moderate smoker for many years, but gave up smoking six or seven years ago.

In the realm of academic medicine Dr. Graham had great stature. He considered the amphitheater type of group surgical instruction, in which students are herded in a gallery while a surgeon gives running comments on an operation, the useless survivor of a bygone age. In addition to his regular instruction of medical school classes, he taught six or seven graduate students in surgery each year, and they were taught at the operating table or at the patient's bedside.

Men who have studied under Dr. Graham head departments of surgery all over the world. His associates and disciples considered him warm-hearted and human, but a number have said that the greatest lesson to be learned from him was the example of his uncompromising integrity.

Surgeon Dead



—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.
DR. EVARTS A. GRAHAM

In the 1920s he achieved a major research success when he applied X-ray photography to the study of gall bladder diseases. This diagnostic technique is called cholecystography, and it was worked out for the first time by Dr. Graham and Dr. Warren H. Cole.

The problem was to find a substance opaque to X-ray that would go to the gall bladder, casting a shadow on the photographic plate and enable physicians to visualize the gall bladder, just as they visualize the stomach and alimentary canal.

Numerous substances were tried in experiments with animals. Finally six dogs were injected with a sodium salt. In five cases results were negative but in the sixth there was a faint shadow on the film.

On investigation, it was discovered that one of the dogs had not been fed on the morning of the injection. This suggested that in the case of the fed animals the chemical had not remained in the bladder long enough to be sufficiently concentrated to be opaque to X-ray. The treatment worked out for human beings, administration of a substance called phenoltetraiodophthalein plus fasting, has removed much of the guesswork from gall bladder diagnosis.

Knew Aim Early in Life.

Dr. Graham knew at an early age that he wanted to become a surgeon. He was born in Chicago, the son of the late Dr. David Wilson Graham and Mrs. Ida Barned Graham. He was graduated from Princeton in 1904 and in 1907 took his M.D. at Rush Medical College, Chicago, where his father was professor of surgery. He then studied chemistry at the University of Chicago.

For several years before the United States entered World War I, Dr. Graham was a surgeon on the staff of a private clinic at Mason City, Ia. There he encountered the practice of fee-splitting, in which a percentage of the charge for an operation is returned to the general practioner who refers a patient to the surgeon. Dr. Graham refused to condone the practice, and he continued to oppose it, vigorously and effectively, throughout his career.

He joined the Army Medical Corps in World War I and rose to the rank of major, commanding an evacuation hospital in France. Having had an unusually broad background in surgery, medicine and chemistry, he was named by the Surgeon General to a commission charged with finding out more about a death-dealing complication that often followed cases of influenza.

Scourge to Troops.

Influenza was a terrible scourge among American troops and one of its complications was empyema, a condition in which pus and other fluids accumulate in the lung cavity. Mortality in such cases was running as high as 90 per cent. At Camp Lee, Va., Dr. Graham watched such patients die under surgery. He then was given leave to spend several months at Johns Hopkins University, where he performed experiments on animals and cadavers.

He returned to Camp Lee and informed his superiors that the principal cause of high mortality from empyema was that surgeons were putting those patients under the knife too soon. He advised delaying surgery. Colleagues scoffed at this, but the Surgeon General permitted Dr. Graham to treat a group of patients in accordance with his ideas. Mortality dropped to 4 per cent.

Thus, he was already a noted surgeon when he was induced to come here to head the department of surgery at Washington University School of Medicine in 1919. He also was named chief of surgery at Barnes and St. Louis Children's hospitals.

The arrangement was a pioneering one. Medical reformers in the period before World War I believed that the then low estate of American medical education and medical care could be improved only by establishing a relatively small number of adequately - financed medical schools, each of which would be intimately associated with a hospital or a group of hospitals.

Many faculty members would be full-time staff members of the schools and their associated hospitals, paid a salary by the school and prohibited from taking fees for themselves from private practice. Dr. Graham came here to put the experiment into effect in St. Louis in the field of surgery.

Dr. Graham helped found the American Board of Surgery, which determines competence in the field, and served as its chairman from 1937 to 1941. He was president of the American Surgical Association and the International Congress of Surgeons. He served for varyng periods as co-editor of the Archives of Surgery and the Annals of Surgery, and was editor of the Journal of Thoracic Surgery and the Yearbook of Surgery. For many years he also was chairman of the Board of Regents of the American College of Surgeons, the principal organization of surgeons in the United States.

Chief among numerous awards and honors that came to Dr. Graham was the Lister Medal, a British award made every three years in memory of Joseph Lister, founder of antiseptic surgery. The selection of Dr. Graham to receive the award, together with his election as an honorary fellow in the Royal College of Surgeons, was announced in 1943.

He was the second American to be singled out for the Lister Medal, the first having been the late Dr. Harvey Cushing of Boston, the eminent brain surgeon, in 1930. Dr. Graham could not make the trip to England in wartime but received the bronze medal and an honorarium of £500 at a London ceremony in 1947.

He received the St. Louis Award in 1942 for his development of pulmonary surgery, his "pervasive influence" on surgical theory and practice, and his work in spreading information about treatment of war injuries. The American Medical Association gave him its distinguished service award in 1950.

Other honors included the gold medal of the Radiological Society of North America, 1925; the Gold Medal award of the St. Louis Medical Society, 1927; the John Scott Medal of the American Philosophical Society in Philadelphia, 1937; the Roswell Park Medal of the Buffalo (N.Y.) Surgical Society and the gold medal of the American College of Chest Physicians, 1949; the American Cancer Society's annual award, 1951, and many others.

The French Government made him a knight of the Legion of Honor.

Dr. Graham received an honorary degree from Washington University in 1952. He also held honorary degrees from Yale, Princeton, Western Reserve, Pennsylvania, Chicago, McGill, Emory and other universities in this country and abroad.

He was the first American to serve as temporary surgeon and professor of surgery at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London, in 1939.

He took an active part in public affairs. He was an organizer of the St. Louis Council for American Democracy, formed in 1937 to counter a pro-Nazi Volksbund meeting here. He was chairman of a surgical advisory committee on national defense in preparation for World War II. He publicly opposed what he thought were wasteful policies on use of medical manpower in World War II. He was for several years head of the board of trustees of John Burroughs School.

In 1953 Dr. Graham praised the national health program proposed by President Eisenhower, noting that some of its provisions paralleled recommendations of the Truman commission, of which he was a member, made some 13 months previously.

Proponent of U.S. Aid.

He was a strong proponent of federal assistance for medical schools, feeling that properly qualified young men and women should have the chance to get a medical education, regardless of their ability to pay.

In the 1956 presidential campaign, Dr. Graham joined a group of physicians and scientists in St. Louis and elsewhere in calling attention to the potential danger to human life posed by fallout from H-bomb tests, particularly radioactive strontium-90. He actively supported the Democratic candidate, Adlai E. Stevenson, who had raised the H-bomb issue.

The home of Dr. Graham and his wife, Mrs. Helen Tredway Graham, professor of pharmacology at Washington University School of Medicine, is on Old Jamestown road in north St. Louis county.

Their two sons are Dr. David T. Graham, assistant professor of psychiatry at the medical school, and Evarts A. Graham Jr., city editor of the Post-Dispatch. In addition, a brother, David B. Graham of Chicago, survives.

Members of Dr. Graham's family said persons wishing to do so might make contributions in his memory to Washington University School of Medicine, care of the Evarts A. Graham Research and Scholarship Fund.

BIG R.A.F. PLANE FALLS, HITS TWO HOUSES; 17 DEAD

DRAYTON, England, March 5 (AP) — A Royal Air Force transport plane crashed into two farmhouses near its base today and the Air Ministry announced 17 persons were killed.

Fifteen were airmen and two were occupants of the wrecked dwellings.

Six police dogs aboard the plane also perished.

The 70-ton, four-engine Beverley transport had taken off from the Abingdon R.A.F. base for Malta with 18 men, but developed engine trouble and turned back.

It was making an approach about two miles from the base, 75 miles northwest of London, when it smashed into the farmhouses and burned. Three of the airmen were thrown clear and escaped with injuries.

John Dawson, a witness, said one wing had struck a tree.

The farm buildings were demolished.

The tail of the plane landed on top of another farm house. A woman was trapped in the kitchen but was rescued.

The injured airmen were taken to a hospital.

MOTORCYCLE OFFICER HIT BY AUTO, SERIOUSLY HURT

Motorcycle Patrolman Frederick H. Meyer was injured seriously last night when his cycle was struck by an automobile as he made a U-turn in Natural Bridge avenue in pursuit of a speeder.

Meyer reported he had just given a summons to an eastbound speeder in the 3600 block of Natural Bridge when he saw another motorist headed west at about 75 miles an hour. He swung around to give chase and was struck by an automobile driven west by Thomas Jackson, 3937 Ashland avenue.

Jackson, a Negro, said he was driving about 20 miles an hour and was unable to avoid striking the motorcycle. He was booked on charges of careless driving and destruction of city property. Meyer, 27 years old, of 3837 Missouri avenue, was taken to City Hospital suffering from a head injury, fractured right leg and a hip injury.

COPIES OF PRELIMINARY CHARTER DRAFT AVAILABLE

Printed copies of the 89-page preliminary draft of the proposed new city charter will be available Friday for distribution to interested citizens or groups, it was announced today by the Charter Board of Freeholders.

Voters wishing to read the document in its entirety may obtain copies by writing to the freeholders' office, Kiel Auditorium, 1400 Market street.

The freeholders are scheduling evening meetings, the first to be held at Beaumont High School, 3836 Natural Bridge boulevard, at 8 o'clock on March 18, at which St. Louisans may ask questions and express their opinions. After the public meetings, the freeholders will reconvene to make any revisions deemed necessary.

Now your laundry can be more than a laundry with "world of tomorrow" appliances and ideas!

This is the year styling and color burst into full bloom in glamorous new home laundry appliances that make it fun to wash, dry, and care for clothes—and they transform a dull basement or utility room into a charming "family" room!

1957's washers, dryers, water heaters and ironers are more efficient than ever—have scads of new functional features. But, most importantly, their colorfully sleek new styling makes them as welcome an addition to your home as the nicest living-room furniture! And because they're electric, they're easy to install—you can place them almost anywhere!

So turn the page, see why we say, "Electrical laundering puts you in the 'world of tomorrow'—today!" UNION ELECTRIC

How a dull "utility area" became a bright laundry-playroom!

1. Giant checkerboard pattern in easy-to-clean, scuff-resistant tile floor keeps children playing happily—where Mom can watch them. 2. Sleek new console ironer, with open-at-both-ends feature that makes it possible to machine press almost everything—even delicate blouses! 3. Glamorous new automatic washer boasts hidden lint filter, suds saver that rescues gallons of water and boxes of detergent a year, selective washing time for every kind of fabric. In yellow (shown above), white, pink or green. 4. Matching marvel—this advanced electric dryer with its built-in sun lamp that freshens and fluffs clothes; choice of 5 temperatures to assure the right heat for every fabric. Same confection colors as the washer. 5. Stylish apothecary jars hold detergent and bleach, add a flattering decorative accent. 6. New automatic sewing machine, in striking contemporary cabinet, has push-button control to monogram, embroider, blindstitch, sew buttons and make buttonholes, applique, apply cording—all without attachments!

LIVE BETTER ELECTRICALLY in your "world of tomorrow"—today.

See all the new laundering ideas →

1 THE BREAKFAST–LAUNDRY ROOM IDEA. They added an inexpensive table and chairs, easy decorating touches, and achieved this bright double-duty room. The beautifully styled washer has a special built-in rinse to freshen clothes and protect them against soil, plus push-button controls, automatic pre-soak, and suds saver. Dryer features sealed Calrod heating units for fast operation, porcelain-finished drum, precision electric timer. Both beauties come in 5 color tones and white.

2 SEWING ROOM–LAUNDRY. Early American cabinets with modernistic sink and sewing machine give new beauty and versatility to this "utility" room. The clean-lined washer and dryer merge with the room design for a "built-in look." Small towers on back of both appliances replace conventional splashboards, locate all controls in one convenient place. Washer offers bleach dispenser, small-load water saver, as well as selection of hot or warm wash water, warm or cold rinse water—gets even delicate "miracle" fabrics wrinkle-free! Dryer provides an infinite number of heats from high to low, foot-pedal door control, lint and moisture remover—needs no vent.

8 Ways to transform your

5 BATHROOM–LAUNDRY. If yours is an older house and you don't like washday stair climbing, here's the solution! A compact combination washer-dryer like this one in your bathroom means less hauling of dirty clothes, fewer extra steps—clothes are washed and dried only a few feet from where they're taken off, and where they'll be stored! You don't need a gigantic bathroom for this idea, either. This washer-dryer measures only 27 inches wide by 25 inches deep, yet it washes and dries a full family wash. You just push one button and clothes are "delivered" ready to iron. Does an 8-pound load in only an hour and 11 minutes!

6 KITCHEN–LAUNDRY. Today, even the smallest house can have a complete home laundry . . . right in the kitchen! New washers and dryers are so compact and smartly styled they actually add to the appearance of any kitchen. Sleek washer shown here has two washing speeds and two spin-dry speeds, is equipped with a built-in filter for lint, sand and scum—gives you extra big capacity in a small space. The companion dryer does a typical clothes load in as little as 35 minutes. It sanitizes as it dries, reducing germ count on clothes. Both washer and dryer are styled in striking pastels.

3 LAUNDRY-HOME WORKSHOP. Stacked on top of each other, the washer and dryer save enough space to add a complete home workshop in this utility room! The big 80-gallon water heater fits in beautifully, and provides hot water galore . . . round the clock . . . for all their needs. Smartly styled dryer—here stacked atop the washer—lets you see inside, remove clothes without stooping. It dries regular washables and synthetics perfectly on the same time setting, holds a big 16-pound load, comes in 5 confection colors. Washer has a safety door, takes 8 pounds of clothes, and its "Full-Fill" water control insures the proper proportion of water and detergent every time! Same colors as dryer. Power tool set-up features just about everything a "do-it-yourselfer" could need—all combined in one unit.

4 LAUNDRY IN A SMALL APARTMENT is what this handsome portable washer gives you! It holds a week's wash for one person . . . operates completely automatically . . . can be stored easily in closet or cabinet. Ideal, too, for daily washings, such as lingerie and stockings . . . and baby's diapers!

7 LAUNDRY-TV ROOM. Another smart use for the extra space in your utility room or basement—add simple furniture, your TV set, and create an additional room for living. High-capacity washer features push-button "water miser" and ball-point balance that automatically adjusts washing speed to the load, preventing damage to even most delicate fabrics. Dryer utilizes both warm air and infrared radiation to dry clothes quickly and germ-clean, needs no vent, and its built-in lint trap requires cleaning only once every 20 loads! Sewing machine shown comes in a variety of decorator cabinets, has automatic "snarled-thread" protector, does scores of stitches! Handsome water heater has exclusive action that prevents incoming water from mixing immediately with heated water, delivers extra gallons of clean hot water . . . and you get extra working space on the wide counter-height top. TV set on bench gives you big-screen viewing in a small space, fits in well with any decor.

8 RECREATION ROOM-LAUNDRY. The laundry area of almost any basement can double as a recreation center, too. Here, the smart tile floor and insulation-board ceiling stop teen-age sounds. Advanced design of matching washer and dryer contributes to room's good looks. The all-fabric washer has the right water temperature for every load and all materials, allows a cold-water rinse after any temperature washing. Color-twin dryer is made for true flush-to-wall installation, has push-button switches. Both come in blue, pink, gold, red, green or white. Console sit-down ironer is gentle and versatile enough for even finest clothes, harmonizes with washer and dryer. The big, beautiful freezer holds enough reserve food for the largest family, makes it easy to get foods out—no stooping! Newest table model Hi-Fi sets have exceptional sound quality, cost far less than Hi-Fi did just a couple of years ago.

LAUNDRIES NEED BUT LITTLE SPACE

A lot of laundry efficiency can be fitted into a small space.

Housing today is proving this. Modern appliances, recessed storage units, and waterproof surfaces are making it not only possible but eminently practical to have a laundry in limited quarters.

In many new homes there is no space available for a separate laundry room. Actually, none is needed. Why waste large space on a laundry when it could be better used as a play area, extra bath, or storage closet?

The very popular ranch-type homes going up today will often have the small, compact, but highly efficient laundry right in the kitchen. One part of even a moderate-sized kitchen, by means of extending the walls and floor, can hold the automatic washer and dryer. Experts estimate that only five-and-a-half feet are required for these two appliances.

Because of the extremely small space required, bathrooms often prove a fine location for the laundry. In new homes, you will often find them adjacent to the "second" bathroom.

But it's well to remember that appliances alone do not make an efficient laundry. Storage is vital. You will find builders installing recessed cabinet and shelf units in compact sizes all around the washer and dryer. The same goes for work surfaces. No laundry can function without at least one fairly spacious sorting center of easily cleaned tile. Ideally, there should be two — one at the washer, the second at the dryer.

In larger new homes, space for ironing equipment will be found in the laundry. But smart homemakers can make the space if they don't have it. An ironing board that folds up against the wall and hangers which open out from the wall accordion-fashion will do the trick.

Washday Almost Playday

Washday is almost playday for mother as well as for the children these days, thanks to automatic equipment for washing, rinsing and drying. And the laundry room, far from being a place of wet and slushy dreariness, is gay and light and pleasant. Even the most filmy and ruffly fabrics, like the nylon petticoat in the picture, may be safely handled by vari-speed wash, rinse cycles and controlled temperature drying.

All-In-One Washer-Dryer

Here is a space into which a separate washer and dryer would not fit with room for handy storage cabinets. With home laundering's development of an all-in-one combination washer-dryer, there is storage room for soaps, detergents, towels and other cleaning supplies. This is an attractive, airy laundry area, separated from the dining area by a bamboo curtain.

ADVICE FROM EXPERT ON USE OF DRYER

Whether you get best service from your automatic dryer depends considerably on how you use it, Elaine Knowles Weaver of the Ohio Experiment Station reminds homemakers, as a result of her studies with these convenient appliances. Here are some suggestions from Dr. Weaver and other researchers:

Be sure clothes are thoroughly rinsed before they go into the dryer. This is to prevent the possibility of yellowing from detergent left in fabric.

Be careful not to put too heavy a load of clothes in your dryer. Overloading increases the drying time, prevents uniform drying, and causes clothes to wrinkle, making ironing more difficult. Though a dryer, like a washer, may take eight or nine pounds (dry weight) of clothes, research shows that a lighter load of about six pounds washes better and dries faster.

When the automatic dryer turns off, it pays to remove clothes promptly to prevent wrinkles. Careful timing pays, too, because overdrying causes wrinkles and uses more fuel than necessary.

When sorting clothes for the washer, think ahead to the dryer, because it's more convenient to transfer the load directly from washer to dryer than to sort the damp load. Dr. Weaver suggests that homemakers may want to consider the weight of the fabric for greater drying efficiency and ease of handling loads. Turkish towels or other heavy fabrics, for example, take considerably longer in the dryer than lightweight nylons.

The time required to dry a load depends on the kind of fabric, the weight, the size of the load and the amount of moisture in the clothes. If you wish to feel the dryness of clothes, Dr. Weaver suggests pulling an item out into the air, because it will feel moist inside the dryer. Remember, too, that clothes don't have to get "bone dry" in the dryer—in fact, it's generally better for the fabric if they don't. Clothes come out hot, and the heat left in them gives the final drying outside the dryer.

DRYING A BLANKET

When drying a blanket, place it in the dryer with three or four clean, dry bath towels. These act as a cushion for the blanket and help it retain its original size and shape.

LAUNDRY PLAN GUIDE BOOK IS AVAILABLE

Having trouble laying out your laundry room? Deciding what appliances are needed? Determining how far from the hot water heater the washer should be? Which side of the washer to locate the dryer? How much space is needed for an automatic ironer? How to utilize space now going to waste?

The American Home Laundry Manufacturers' Association has prepared a booklet entitled "Plan For All Three," that gives the answers to all the above questions and dozens more, plus pages of possible laundry layouts and arrangements.

It's information that you can use, so write to American Home Laundry Manufacturers' Association, 20 N. Wacker Drive, Chicago 6, Illinois.

ALL-OUT CAMPAIGN BY REDS REPORTED IN SOUTHEAST ASIA

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP)—The Manila pact nations reported today that the Communists are waging "an all out campaign of subversion" in southeast Asia while keeping armies strong enough "to commit aggression."

This was the basic point spotlighted in the second annual report of the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty alliance. However, the report added that Communism "has made no substantial progress in member countries" during the past year.

The report was made public in the capitals of the United States and the seven other treaty members — Australia, France, New Zealand, Pakistan, Philippines, Thailand, and Britain.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will lead the United States delegation to the fourth annual treaty council meeting March 11-13 at Canberra, Australia.

The report said the year since the last meeting was "one of quiet and steady development" of defenses against Communism.

"Subversion, which has always been a major problem, is the main threat we now face," the report said.

GENERAL 13A

Emily Post SAYS:
Upon the death of a friend you should go at once to the house, write "With sympathy" on your card and leave it at the door. Or, you write a letter to the family. In either case you send flowers, addressed to the funeral of (name of the deceased) or to the nearest relative. The latter method is preferable, if the relative is a friend. But the former method is followed if the deceased alone was known to you.

POWER FOR OUTER SPACE
The last frontier still facing man—the world beyond the stars, is now within reach.
Rocketdyne, a division of North American Aviation, Inc., the nation's leading producer of large, liquid propellant rocket engines, is now furnishing high thrust engines which will power missiles for the ballistic missile program. These complex engines, the mightiest yet developed by man, are being produced in our new Neosho plant. Challenging problems still remain for technical men, challenges vital to our country's defense.
Today the emphasis is on the best possible engines to safeguard our nation. Tomorrow Rocketdyne will be furnishing power for the ships that explore outer space. There are good jobs open now for men with these skills:
MANUFACTURING ENGINEERS
Should have experience in Machine Shop Production Processes
METALLURGISTS
Need degree in Chemical or Metallurgical Engineering 2-5 years experience or familiarity with high temperature alloys or welding or brazing. For employment in quality control organization.
ESTIMATOR
Must Be Qualified to Read Blueprints and Have Knowledge of All Types of Machine Shop Operations in Order to Assign Time Values to Arrive at Estimated Cost.
Our new plant is located just south of Neosho, Mo., known nationally for its community Flower Box program. There are good schools, fine churches and exceptional recreational facilities in the area for family living. Investigate today the outstanding career opportunities with Rocketdyne, the nation's largest employer in the rocket engine field.

"Leisur Lea"
Beginning at 2 p.m.—
To be held on premises
Inside Shelter in Case of Rain

One of St. Louis County's largest and finest estates known as "Leisur Lea," where, for the past four years, many private groups and organizations have enjoyed their summer and winter sports. Property consists of 100 acres, fronting approximately 900' on Baxter Road (legal description in title to govern), together with all improvements thereon; including large colonial residence, servants' quarters, guest house, recreation building, stables, three-car garage, bath house, first class swimming pool, etc. Conveniently located on Baxter Road, ½ mile north of Clayton Road, 8 miles west of Lindbergh. Acreage fenced and cross fenced, with large pond and spring-fed creek providing ample water for livestock. Deep well. Spacious grounds, beautiful large trees, and most of the facilities of a Country Club make this an inviting retreat for the tired or retired business executive or professional man. Also ideal for private club, golf course, school, recreations area for corporation, religious or civic organization and many other uses. Zoned for 1-acre home sites; in path of growing development, such as subdivisions, schools, churches and hospitals. County water scheduled to be made available within this year. Property is suitable for division into two tracts; one of 90 acres, more or less, unimproved, the other of 10 acres, more or less, with improvements. Total present liens and incumbrances on property of approximately $85,000 include principal notes in the amount of $80,300 of which $3500, plus interest, taxes for 1956, penalties, etc., are currently past due and shall be paid out of earnest money. Taxes assessed from January 1, 1957, and interest accrued but not due will be adjusted to date of closing. All deeds of trusts contain full prepayment privilege without penalty.

PROPERTY IS TO BE SOLD, by owner, at public auction, ON PREMISES, beginning at 2:00 p.m. Saturday, March 9, 1957, TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER. Cashier's Check in the amount of $10,000, as earnest money, required at time of sale, will be credited against the purchase price. Balance shall be paid in full, in cash, on closing, or, by purchaser assuming unpaid notes secured by deeds of trust on property recorded in book (3081), page 221, book 3563, page 485, and book 3699, page 528, of the St. Louis County Records and balance of purchase price, if any, in cash, on closing.

If sale is for cash in full, sellers will give merchantable title by General Warranty Deed, free and clear of all liens and encumbrances, except 1957 and subsequent taxes. If purchaser assumes and agrees to pay said deeds of trust, as aforesaid, deed will be subject thereto and to 1957 and subsequent taxes. Closing shall be in Title Company Escrow on or before March 22, 1957, according to closing practices of St. Louis County Real Estate Board, possession 30 days after closing.

This is NOT a foreclosure sale.

Purchaser shall have option to purchase on day of sale such implements, equipment and furnishings as are listed in current inventory for the sum of $2500. Forms containing conditions and terms of said deeds of trust and a survey of property will be mailed to any prospective buyer upon request. Call owner at LAfayette 7-8896.

Inspection of property daily, 1-5 p.m., by appointment.

Moderate and Cloudy Outlook

—Associated Press Wirephoto
Low temperatures and areas of precipitation expected tonight.

Partly cloudy to cloudy weather with moderate temperatures through Thursday was the forecast today by Acting Meteorologist Arthur A. Rausch. There is the possibility of rain in the St. Louis area sometime Thursday, Rausch said, depending upon the movement of a cold front in the north.

There were several rain and snow areas over the nation this morning, Rausch noted. Rain covered southern Idaho, eastern Nevada, Utah, and parts of Wyoming and Colorado, while small rain areas dotted the California coast northwest. Locally heavy showers also fell in Texas.

In the South, precipitation was reported in eastern Georgia yesterday, and in Florida yesterday and today. A thunderstorm hit Fort Myers late last night, with gusts of wind reaching 53 miles an hour.

The only rain reported in the state yesterday was in the extreme southern counties. The wet weather continued today for some areas in the southeastern portion. High temperatures over the state yesterday were from 53 at Kansas City, West Plains and Malden to 49 at Farmington and St. Louis, both downtown and at the airport. Lows this morning ranged from 27 at Farmington and Union to 38 at Joplin.

SENATE GROUP URGES COLD WAR TREASON LAWS

WASHINGTON, March 5 (UP)—The Senate Internal Security subcommittee said yesterday some Americans have engaged in acts in the cold war which "if a state of declared war existed, would have been treasonable."

The subcommittee urged that Congress pass legislation to provide "proper punishment" for such acts committed in the cold war.

It said also "Congress should by law make it an act of self-expatriation for a United States citizen to assist in the communization of any foreign nation or its subdivision . . . or to accept office or employment in or under the government of any Communist country."

The subcommittee made the statements in the tenth of a series of reports on its 1956 hearings. This report covered "Americans who are helping in the Soviet conquest of Asia."

Among the witnesses the subcommittee heard last year were John W. Powell, his wife, Sylvia, and Julian Schuman, all of the China Review. The China Review was named by other witnesses as a publication used to help in the brainwashing of prisoners of the Communist Chinese.

All three pleaded the Fifth Amendment when asked if they were or had been Communists.

In another report, the subcommittee asked Congress to authorize its investigating committees to bring into the United States "aliens whose testimony is desired as witnesses and whose admission will not endanger the national security."

It said that because this country "has a legitimate interest in the world-wide Soviet activity" to further the Communist conspiracy, witnesses from all over the world are of "great value" in helping the committees "to understand the nature and scope of Communist activities which threaten our internal security."

CONGRESS URGED TO MODERNIZE U.S. TARIFF POLICIES

WASHINGTON, March 5 (UP)—The American Tariff League urged Congress yesterday to revaluate United States tariff policies. It said "the nation lacks a balanced program which will both bolster domestic production and abet fair competition in our foreign trade."

The league, in a report to Congress on tariff and foreign trade, said that "as the major productive force of the free world, our nation must be in a position to fulfill the function which history has assigned us, maintenance of democracy's productive arsenal."

It said the United States tariff structure has not kept pace with the times. "The categories and definitions of the still basic tariff act of 1930 fit the technologies of a quarter of a century ago, not today's."

United States policies should act "as an incentive to foreign countries to raise their workers' wages and living standards." It said present tariff policies accentuate "the advantages which the lowest wage countries have over the higher ones in gaining American markets for their production."

The league said a system of "sliding-scale tariffs would reward those countries which raise their peoples' living standards." This system, it said, would allow import tariffs to be lowered as a country raises its living standards. The present law does not allow such a system.

No Firm Basis to Build Peace Established So Far in Mideast Despite All Diplomatic Efforts

Withdrawal of Israel Will Leave Situation So Confused That U.S. Is Opposed to Spelling Out Conditions Now—Russia Offers Threat to Solution.

By DONALD GRANT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., March 5.

IT IS MORE than eight years since an armistice agreement was signed, ending hostilities begun by Egypt's invasion of Israel. It is more than four months since Israel, in its turn, invaded Egypt, last Oct. 29. As of today, despite the most strenuous diplomatic efforts inside and outside the United Nations, there is no firm and agreed basis for peace between those countries.

This is a measure of the degree of anarchy existing in the relations between nations.

Israel, it is true, has twice affirmed its intention of removing the last of its troops from Egyptian soil. There is, however, so little agreement concerning the conditions which then will prevail that it is United States policy to oppose a further attempt to spell them out. Such an attempt, it is believed, would at this point only lead to more confusion.

Israel, for instance, declares that the 1949 armistice agreement itself has "collapsed" as a result of Egyptian action since it was signed. United Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, on the other hand, has based most of his suggestions for the establishment of peace between Egypt and Israel on a return to that agreement.

The United States, acting through its chief U.N. delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge, backs Hammarskjold. It was Lodge's statement to this effect in the U.N. last Friday that was said by Israeli spokesmen to have aroused the opposition of Israeli public opinion over the weekend.

Internal Threat Diminished.

For a time, even the implementation of Israeli's commitment to withdraw its troops was believed to have been endangered by internal Israeli reactions. Israeli spokesmen now declare there can be no doubt that Israel will withdraw the last of its troops from Egypt.

Soviet Russia, however, takes the position that even withdrawal is by no means unconditional, in response to United Nations resolutions, but is conditioned by agreements between Israel and the United States, concluded outside the United Nations.

Arkady A. Sobolev, the Russian delegate, has added a threat: "Egypt is not alone. There are in the world powerful, peace-loving forces." This camp has sufficient means to put an end to aggression from whatever quarter and wherever it occurs, including the Near and Middle East.

Instead of a legal basis for the establishment of peace in the Middle East, therefore — through the implementation of the 1949 armistice or otherwise—events are being influenced by the interplay of the great powers. Sobolev's statement was intended by the Soviet Union to counter not only United States support for Israel, but also the Eisenhower Doctrine under which any Middle Eastern nation wishing to oppose Communist aggression would be supported by the United States.

In such a situation, mere legalisms are bound to play a minor role.

Six U.N. Resolutions.

Withdrawal of Israeli forces has been demanded by the United Nations in six General Assembly resolutions. A seventh resolution, recommending economic sanctions against Israel, if it fails to comply to the first six resolutions, is still pending.

The closest thing to a U.N. resolution spelling out the conditions that would prevail after withdrawal was the measure passed by the General Assembly Feb. 2, on the insistence of the United States. This calls upon the governments of Egypt and Israel "scrupulously to observe the provisions of the 1949 armistice agreement," and indorses the suggestions by the Secretary General for the achievement of peace in the Middle East.

The Secretary General's suggestions, in turn, were based on a judgment that the full implementation of the armistice agreement would lead to peace. Two main issues were—and are—involved, between Egypt and Israel: the Gaza strip and the gulf of Aqaba.

Israel still demands that Egypt be excluded from the Gaza strip and that the gulf of Aqaba be kept open for Israeli shipping.

Hammarskjold said a better implementation of the armistice agreement would tend to demolish Egypt's claim that it was exercising legitimate right as a belligerent in closing Aqaba to Israel. The armistice agreement itself might become a kind of non-aggression pact, Hammarskjold argued.

Gaza Issue More Difficult.

On the Gaza issue, however, Hammarskjold took the view that Israel's demand for Egyptian exclusion "cannot be reconciled with maintaining the validity of the armistice agreement."

Most of the fedayeen Arab raiders have come over the line into Israel from the Gaza strip, and Israel is most reluctant to have that territory returned to Egypt. Israel's position, that the armistice agreement no longer is valid—though Israel is not now intending to denounce the agreement—is based on a desire to avoid future fedayeen raids from this area.

Under the armistice agreement, the Gaza strip was turned over to Egyptian administration. If Israel should, in formal fact, denounce the armistice agreement it would again open the door for a possible adjustment of the borders between Israel and the surrounding Arab states to the pre-armistice lines. This might mean that Israel would lose the considerable territories gained in the war of 1948-49.

On the other hand, the full implementation of the armistice agreement would face Israel with a possible loss of these territories. That agreement provides that no political advantage should be gained by the truce, and that the armistice demarcation line "is not to be considered in any sense as a political or territorial boundary." That boundary was to be determined in an ultimate settlement that has not yet taken place.

Instead of such a peace settlement, there have been raids by both Arabs and Israelis, and the blockade of Israeli shipping in Aqaba and the Suez canal. Arab raids and the blockade are mentioned by Israeli spokesmen as the basis for the claim that the armistice agreement has "collapsed."

Question of Influence.

In short, there is no clear basis, spelled out in agreements or international law, on which any of the disputes between Egypt and Israel may be settled. Legal questions involved in the Gulf of Aqaba blockade may be referred to the International Court of Justice.

Meanwhile, Israel has the statement of the United States that this nation considers the Gulf of Aqaba an international waterway, open to all "innocent" shipping, including Israeli shipping. To this was added yesterday a whole parade of similar statements by Britain, Italy, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Australia, Belgium, Canada, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Portugal. France had made a similar statement last Friday.

It is perfectly obvious that Isreal has been trying to line up as much potential international force as it can in support of its efforts to gain freedom from Arab raids and for its own commerce. This attempt has gone on both inside and outside the United Nations.

It is equally obvious that, not only does this exercise have little to do with legal niceties, but that Israel would prefer that legalisms not be drawn too finely. The United States is inclined to join Israel in this preference.

Efforts to Define 'Rights.'

Two attempts were made yesterday to spell out the "rights" of Israel and Egypt, following the Israeli troop withdrawal. One was by the Indian delegate, Arthur S. Lall. He upheld Egypt's right to control the gulf of Aqaba, to administer the Gaza strip and to name the date of departure from Egyptian soil of the United Nations Emergency Force.

Almost the same position was taken by Ambassador Francisco Urrutia of Colombia. On the use of the U.N. Emergency Force, Hammarskjold also agrees that in general it cannot remain in Egypt except with Egypt's consent.

It is the United States hope, however, that such matters will not be pinned down too exactly, that without either Egypt or Israel asserting all of its "rights" the tension can be allowed to relax. In this process, the United States hopes the U.N. Emergency Force will be able to play a part.

Quietly, it is hoped, the UNEF will be able somehow to take over enough functions in the Gaza strip so that the 100,000 Arab refugees there will not be used as fedayeen raiders against Israel. It is hoped that the UNEF may be deployed all along the truce line and also on the Egyptian shores of the Aqaba gulf, so that Egyptian guns menacing Israeli shipping there will not be re-emplanted.

What is back of this hope is not the force of binding agreements and international law; the world does not now offer such instruments of certitude. What is back of the precarious truce in the Middle East is a widespread will for peace—the force of world opinion—which has been brought to bear here in the United Nations. This force, it is hoped, may even be strong enough to restrain the will for power, by great nations and small.

RESTON

Emphasis on Politics in Change Of Most Major Ambassadors

By JAMES RESTON
WASHINGTON, March 5.

SINCE THE NOVEMBER ELECTION, President Eisenhower has changed almost every major United States ambassador overseas and is now working on a long list of minor post changes.

In the Cabinet and in almost all home front jobs, the President has retained the men who wanted to stay on for the second term, but he has appointed a new Under Secretary of State, new Deputy Under Secretary, and new ambassadors in London, Paris, Bonn, Rome, New Delhi, Tokyo, Cairo and Jakarta.

Changes have also been made, or are about to be made in the leadership of United States diplomatic missions in Belgium, The Netherlands, Norway, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Burma, Hungary, Luxembourg, Viet Nam, Ceylon, Haiti and several Latin American countries.

All this adds up to the biggest wholesale move in United States diplomatic representation ever taken by a President who was re-elected. It is taking place in the period of the most lively diplomatic negotiations since the war.

No Change in Moscow.

The only major posts not changed, in fact, have been Moscow, Vienna and Madrid, and there is considerable speculation that Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen in Moscow will be moved before the end of the summer.

There are a number of reasons for this striking contrast between retaining the Eisenhower "team" at home and sweeping it out overseas, including that old familiar reason, "politics."

President Eisenhower, has apparently adapted the rule of inflation to political pay-offs. This is that a contributor's money no longer buys as much as it used to in the realm of diplomatic appointments. Specifically, the rule now seems to be that unless a political diplomat proves to be unusually successful (or politically powerful), he is expected to make way after one term to a new group of political contributors.

Thus Ambassador Frederick M. Alger in Belgium, who was generally thought to be doing a good job and who wanted to stay on, was asked to resign in favor of J. Clifford Folger of Washington, chairman of the Republican National Finance Committee.

Houghton Can't Speak French.

Thus, too, Amory Houghton, chairman of the board of the Corning Glass Works of Corning, N. Y., who is listed as having contributed $6000 to the Republican treasury in the last election, was given the key ambassadorial post in Paris. He comes from a distinguished family with a long diplomatic record and is himself highly regarded, though he suffers from the handicap of not being able to speak French. This has not amused the officials in Paris.

There is nothing new in all this except the unusual number of changes between administrations of the same party. The normal thing is to retain a political ambassador from one term to another if he is doing a competent job, particularly if important negotiations are in progress with the country concerned.

It does not follow that large contributors are replacing career ambassadors or that they are necessarily less competent than the men they are replacing. The opposite is the case in some of the new appointments.

An Improvement.

For example, the appointment to London of John Hay Whitney (who contributed $24,500 and whose wife added another $9000 to the Republican treasury in the 1952 campaign) is generally regarded here as an improvement on Winthrop W. Aldrich, who was United States ambassador there in the first Eisenhower term.

The same is thought here to be true of the appointment of the experienced Democrat, David Bruce, to take Ambassador James Conant's place in West Germany, though Bruce, like Houghton, does not speak the language of the country to which he has been appointed.

Eisenhower had no choice but to appoint new ambassadors in several posts. Two vacancies were caused by death and several ambassadors—for example, Clare Boothe Luce in Rome — insisted on retiring. Also, it is regarded as normal that career ambassadors change

Tour by Nixon Is Irritating To Nasser

By HOMER BIGART
CAIRO, March 5.

EGYPT continues to take a cynical view of President Eisenhower's Mideast policies, despite a grudging admission that the United States was the compelling force in the Israeli decision to withdraw from the Gulf of Aqaba and the Gaza strip.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser is reported to be disturbed at signs the United States is attempting to isolate him. Washington's "playing up" to King Saud of Saudi Arabia was annoying enough. More vexing was Vice President Richard Nixon's itinerary. Nixon next week will visit three neighboring countries whose relations with Cairo are currently strained.

Two of these countries, Ethiopia and the Sudan, are seeking economic and military aid from the United States. Libya, the third country, tends toward acceptance of the Eisenhower Doctrine.

Nasser's dream of hegemony over these countries is jarred by any suspected intrusion of foreign influence. Thus the Cairo press is putting the most sinister interpretations on the Nixon tour. Yesterday's newspaper Rose el Youssef had a cartoon depicting the Vice President as a villainous munitions salesman carrying a bomb in one hand and a satchel full of assorted weapons in the other. He is approaching a grass hut in front of which sits Mother Ethiopia comforting a small child, who is obviously frightened by Nixon.

In an apparent effort to neutralize Nixon, Egypt is sending Assistant Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs Mustapha Youssef on a good-will tour of Africa, shortly after the Nixon trip. Youssef will visit Addis Ababa and Khartoum soon after Nixon's departure.

Egyptian sources said they did not regard Nixon's skipping Cairo as snub. "We are delighted he is not coming," said one with acerbity. "He would only be a nuisance. Besides, he could only repeat what Saud already told Nasser about the Eisenhower Doctrine."

Despite these irritants, rela-

Newly-Appointed U.S. Judge Was Dean of Lincoln University Law School From 1944 to 1953.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, March 5.

SCOVEL RICHARDSON of St. Louis, nominated by President Eisenhower yesterday as a judge in the United States Customs Court, will be the second Negro to serve on that court.

The first, Judge Irvin C. Mollison, was named by President Truman in 1945.

Richardson learned of the nomination, which is subject to Senate confirmation, only yesterday morning. Deputy Attorney General William P. Rogers telephoned Richardson to tell him the nomination was being sent to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

It was five weeks ago, however, that Richardson knew he was being considered for the customs bench. He was invited to the Justice Department for discussions of the matter with Rogers and with Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr.

$22,500-a-Year Salary.

The change will mean for Richardson a salary increase from $12,690 to $22,500 a year. It also will mean moving his family from Washington, where he has served on the United States Board of Parole since 1953, to New York, headquarters of the Customs Court.

Tenure on the United States Customs Court is for life.

For several months, there has been speculation here and in St. Louis that Richardson would be offered some new appointment.

Last October, just before the presidential election, there were published rumors that he would be named to succeed United States District Judge Rubey M. Hulen, who died July 7, at St. Louis. That appointment would have made him the first Negro in the nation's history to be a United States district judge.

Brownell, in effect, encouraged this rumor by declining to confirm or deny its truth. Richardson said at the time he had no conversations with Brownell or anyone else.

Sketch of His Career.

Scovel Richardson was born Feb. 4, 1912, in Nashville, Tenn., son of a Baptist preacher. After attending Wendell Phillips High School in Chicago, he earned the degrees of bachelor of arts in 1934 and master of arts in 1936 at the University of Illinois. He obtained a bachelor of laws degree at Howard University School of Law in Washington in 1937.

He practiced law in Chicago for two years and then joined the faculty of Lincoln University Law School in St. Louis as an associate professor when the school was founded in 1939. In 1943 and 1944, he was a senior attorney in the Office of Price Administration in Washington. Returning to the law school in 1944, he became dean and full professor. He remained there until named to the Board of Parole in 1953.

As dean of the Lincoln University Law School, Richardson probably headed the only law school ever established as the result of a Supreme Court decision. This was the case of Gaines vs. Missouri, decided in 1938.

The University of Missouri Law School rejected a Negro applicant, but the state offered to send him to a law school outside the state and pay for his education. The United States Supreme Court eventually ruled in effect that Missouri had to provide a legal education for its citizens regardless of their color. As a consequence, the law school for Negro students was founded at St. Louis

Brownell named Richardson chairman of the Parole Board Sept. 28, 1954, for an indefinite term, and he continued to hold the chairmanship after his appointment last year to a new six-year term on the board.

Four Daughters.

He married the former Inez Williston, whom he met when she was an elementary school teacher in Washington and he was in law school here. They have four daughters, Frances Elaine, 17 years old, a sophomore at American University here; Alice Inez, 14, and Mary Louise and Marjorie Linda, twins, 13. The three younger daughters all are students at a public junior high school here.

In St. Louis, he was president of the Urban League and the first Negro lawyer in Missouri to be admitted to the American Bar Association. He also was the first Negro to become a member of the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis. He is a past president of the National Bar Association. He stills owns a home at 4635 North Market street, in St. Louis, and an 80-acre farm at

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Ripples of Extremism

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It is interesting that the two extremist political groups held meetings recently on the same weekend.

The reactionaries of the extreme right, the so-called "Abraham Lincoln National Republican Club," held a rally in Chicago, and the radicals of the extreme left, the Communist party, held a convention in New York.

In the first instance the leaders were Senators McCarthy and Jenner, former Senator Welker and former Gov. Lee. In the latter case the leaders were William Z. Foster, Eugene Dennis, John G. Gates and Benjamin J. Davis Jr.

It is evidence of the liberalism and solidity of American institutions that these fringe groups encountered no obstacles to obtaining the opportunity to meet and speak and be reported in the press. That these leaders have a following insignificant in numbers is proved by the facts that the vote for other than the Republican and the Democratic presidential candidates last fall was less than 1 per cent of the total, and the membership of the Communist party has dropped from 100,000 to less than 10,000!

These two groups represent not the wave of the future but a ripple from the past, for the overwhelming majority of the American people consistently manifest their wisdom by rejecting extremism in favor of the broad middle road.

JAMES KERNEY JR.,
Chairman,
American Liberal Association.
New York City.

Unjustified Fears

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Many people express the fear that federal aid for schools would bring about federal control of schools. It has been said before but let me say it again: Each state and territory has a land grant school.

These land grant schools have gotten in the past and continue to receive federal aid for research, building, etc. And yet the policies and practices of these schools have never been dictated or attacked by the federal government.

I think the fears are unjustified.

EDWARD C. WICKLEIN.

Playing at Government

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

This year, for the first time in seven years, I neglected to buy my Berkeley city auto license within the prescribed time. I was ticketed and I guess I deserved to be.

The standard traffic ticket issued states that within three days of issuance, traffic violators may appear before the Traffic Violation Bureau and pay their fine. Not so for the taxpayer of the city who didn't buy his sticker. He must appear in court, await his turn and play "follow the leader" through the rows of chairs until, about two hours later, he appears before the "judge" who checks the taxpayer's tax record, whispers "Buy it earlier next year," and nicks the poor sucker $1 fine and $4 costs.

The fine may be deserved; the treatment and handling of the situation were ridiculous. The judge missed a good bet. He could have fined everyone there for contempt of court and been perfectly within his rights. Well, the officials have until April to get in their "last licks" at the taxpayers who recently voted to at least try to remedy situations like this.

I certainly hope a hired city manager can be more efficient and more considerate toward the constituents of the community. I look forward to the day these juvenile governments are eliminated and city and county communities are merged.

Perhaps then we will get the true services our tax dollars are supposed to be used for now.

CITY MANAGER NOW,
CITY-COUNTY MERGER AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

Extending the Franchise

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I was greatly elated to read the amendment to lower the voting age to 18 was tentatively approved by the Missouri House. This proposal is amply justified as an attempt to broaden and extend the base of our democratic society—not only by adding a preponderant number to our voting population but also by encouraging the participation of people at an age when they are enthusiastic and greatly interested in politics and government.

HUGH FLEISCHER.
Webster Groves.

One Good Word

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

So much has been published here lately in regard to the nursing homes and what's wrong with them that I would like to say a good word for nursing homes and how a good one operates.

I know of one home in the St. Louis area which was opened about two years ago. Before the owners took in one patient, they spent $15,000 for sprinkler systems. This was done voluntarily, without any pressure from anyone. They have just recently completed a new addition that is completely sprinklered and air conditioned. They have large rooms for television and recreation. It is a better than 15 acre park-like tract. The care and attention that I have seen patients receive is as fine as in any hospital that I have visited in St. Louis.

There are other nursing homes of equal caliber in this area.

NATHAN WOLFF.

Where Plans Are Needed

Attorney General Brownell is to be commended for undertaking to summarize and evaluate for a special House Judiciary subcommittee the various suggestions concerning procedures in the event of the incapacity of an occupant of the presidential office.

A series of proposals is already before Congress. One of the stanchest of Eisenhower Republicans in the House, Representative Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, wants to amend the Constitution so as to fix the responsibility for determining presidential inability in a two-step process. Congress would note the situation and then formally suggest to the Supreme Court that a determination appeared to be required.

Maine's junior Senator, Frederick G. Payne, would set up a "high-level, non-partisan, 12-member commission," modeled frankly after the first and second Hoover commissions. This commission would study the problem and report its findings to Congress.

The House Judiciary Committee chairman, Representative Celler of New York, and the ranking G.O.P. member, Representative Keating, also of New York, propose to give the Vice President authority to decide when he should take over from a stricken President. They believe that the man elected Vice President could be trusted not to assume the duties and responsibilities of the office until it was clear that the President could not perform as the Constitution expects him to do.

There can be no question that this field is a proper one for inquiry and remedial legislation. Last year the Senate gave unanimous consent to a resolution for study by a joint committee of Congress. The terms allowed broad inquiry into "all questions" relating to the offices of President and Vice President and the determination of the incapacity of the former.

Doubtless it was a good idea to hold up on the study in a presidential election year, as the House Judiciary Committee did. But there is no election in 1957. It is desirable that the hearings proceed. The country may hope for thoughtful reports and recommendations from the committee members who hear the testimony and weigh the plans.

To continue without wisely laid and accepted procedures is to run the risk of serious controversy at a time of potential emergency.

Red China and the News Within

The story of Samuel David Hawkins, the seventh of the turncoat G.I.s to leave Red China, is one plainly emphasizing the need for the State Department to allow American reporters to visit that country. What Hawkins told his first American interviewers may be discounted or disbelieved. It still stands as proof that trusted representatives of the American press should be permitted to describe exactly what is going on in the second largest nation in the world.

Hawkins, now 23, was only 17 when he was captured during the Korean War. He explains that he "half-way believed what I was told—we were brainwashed and I was afraid." Then the Chinese gave him work in a factory and later sent him to the People's University in Peiping where he advanced rapidly but could not abide the strict rules for discipline.

He said that, like other foreigners, he was allowed to have a radio and listen to anything he desired, including the Voice of America. He heard of the "wanton killings by Soviet troops in Hungary." This, he said, was his main reason for deciding to return home. The Chinese gave him his exit visa 15 minutes after he asked for it.

Reporters at Hong Kong sized up Hawkins as decidedly the most intelligent of the turncoats. That lends weight to his assertions such as Chinese workers backed their leaders and were not seriously unhappy, as dispatches of some reporters from other Western nations agree. If the lot of the people is not quite so burdensome as it was during the first years of the Red regime it would be most interesting to know how that is being accomplished and what the prospects are.

It is no wonder that the Inland Daily Press Association, representing 476 newspapers in 20 states, last week joined the ranks of organizations asking President Eisenhower to lift the Government's ban on American reporters going to Red China. There is a wealth of news there that should not have to emerge entirely in the form of Communist propaganda and in rehashes from the reporters of other nations.

Israel Reaffirms

After a weekend of uneasy delay, Israel's Prime Minister Ben-Gurion has reaffirmed the decision to complete withdrawal from Egypt, and arrangements for the take-over by the U.N. Emergency Force have been completed with Israeli generals.

Let us hope that the transfer of power in the Gaza strip and along the Gulf of Aqaba will be swift and unequivocal. Evidently feelings are so wrought up in Israel that any further delay might stretch into indefinite postponement. And Israel, having broken the 1949 armistice by its attack on Egypt, cannot afford to stand before the world as having also broken its solemn promise to the U.N. to withdraw.

The hotheads in Tel Aviv may not understand this, but Prime Minister Ben-Gurion evidently does. He is to be admired for making a decision of such political unpopularity, and we hope his integrity and disinterested devotion to Israel's welfare will persuade the most responsible elements of both government and public to sustain him.

The hitch that caused the Israeli cabinet to reconsider between Friday and Monday evidently centers on uncertainty as to the United States stand on the Gaza strip. Israel, as Mrs. Golda Meir told the Assembly, "expects and anticipates" that the U.N. will retain civil and military control of the strip until there is a full Israeli-Arab peace settlement or at least a definitive agreement on the future of the strip itself.

Ambassador Lodge told the U.N., however, that the American view is that "from a juridical standpoint" the future of the strip must be worked out "within the framework of the armistice agreement"—which provided for Egyptian control. Does this mean that the United States expects Egypt to take over at once from the UNEF? Many Israelis evidently feared that it did. Yet Ambassador Lodge had also said that the United States "entertains the hope" that the U.N. could retain control until there is a definite agreement on the strip or a general peace settlement.

Whatever the reason for this ambiguity, we trust that American policy on the point will be based on common sense and equity. It would not make sense for the U.N., having with such great effort saved the peace by persuading Israel to withdraw, immediately to endanger the peace by trying to restore the situation as it was before the attack.

Ambassador Lodge, indeed, specifically emphasized the American belief that after troop withdrawal "there should be established conditions different from those which had previously prevailed." That can only mean, with respect to the Gaza strip, no quick turnover to Egypt.

But for the moment one requirement for Middle Eastern peace takes precedence over all others: complete withdrawal of Israeli troops in favor of the UNEF.

If his death by the disease from which he sought to save others underscores his warnings, Dr. Evarts A. Graham would have considered it the final, if involuntary, contribution of his long and eminent career in surgery, medical education and public service.

Dr. Graham died of lung cancer, a disease he had been combatting even before he became the first man to remove a human lung to save a life. That was in 1933. It was more than a decade later that careful observation persuaded him that the smoking of cigarettes was a factor in making lung cancer alarmingly common. He spoke of this first to his fellow surgeons. But in 1953, after laboratory work had made him more positive, he courageously spoke out for the world to hear. And in 1954 the Public Health Cancer Association, following his lead, advised the public to stop smoking cigarettes. The basis for the warning was questioned. But Dr. Graham knew what he knew; it was being confirmed by others; he did not lower his voice.

This was characteristic of the man. He set the highest standards of competence and integrity for his profession. That is why he was a steadfast opponent of fee-splitting, "ghost" surgery and other abuses. That is why he insisted on careful, intimate instruction by full-time medical men instead of the more haphazard methods of earlier days. That is why he worked vigorously for higher standards of medical care, and continued his research even after his retirement. That is why men who studied under him head departments of surgery all over the world. It is why he was honored all over the world.

While the whole world has been the beneficiary of his improvements in the surgical art, this community has been the chief beneficiary of his personal services. Here not only those of his own profession found inspiration in his devotion and his integrity. Here, for almost four decades, men in every field knew him and had the opportunity to emulate his unselfish courage.

Repassing a Passed Buck

The so-called budget-cutting drive in Congress is as amusing, in its way, as the Administration's stern admonition that somebody else should do the trimming job it failed to do.

If a man wants to reduce weight, the direct way to go about it is to eat less. If Congress wants to cut the budget, the direct way to go about it is to enact smaller appropriations for the various departments and agencies.

But this, apparently, is too simple—or too painful—for some Congressmen who are a little bothered by the heavy mail they are said to be receiving from citizens who don't like the Administration's heavy spending plans for next year. And so the economizers are falling back on an old stratagem—the mandatory expenditure ceiling. A move to limit total expenditures to 65 billion dollars—as compared with estimated spending under the Eisenhower budget of 71.8 billion—is taking form in the House.

The over-all budget ceiling is a device by which Congress can adopt appropriations to satisfy all the agencies and interests that want to spend the money, and then turn around and effectually forbid the carrying out of its own laws.

The procedure, in short, is just another "let-George-do-it" evasion of responsibility. Where the Administration recommended spending of 71.8 billion and piously advised Congress to vote less, Congress by this device would vote 71.8 billion and piously instruct the Administration to spend less.

Budget ceilings have been tried before, and they never work well. The best and most effective ceiling is the sum of the appropriation bills themselves. If Congress is serious about budget-cutting it ought to do the job item by item, bureau by bureau, department by department, function by function. That is the hard way, but the only honest way.

The Criminal Docket Shrinks

The once substantial backlog of felony cases pending in Circuit Court here is rapidly being cut down to manageable proportions—from 706 cases on Jan. 1 to 425 on March 1, or a net reduction of 281 cases. This is good news. A cluttered docket invites delay, and delay all too frequently leads to frustrations of justice as witnesses die, or memory fades. The clear progress of the last two months reflects most favorably on Circuit Judge Robert L. Aronson. As presiding officer in the criminal division since the first of the year, he is primarily responsible for making the docket move. Keeping up the pressure to dispose of cases, by trial or otherwise, is an onerous and frequently thankless activity. Judge Aronson's work of the last two months has earned commendation.

Raise Admission Standards?

Recently this page carried a letter suggesting that colleges generally should raise admission standards. The population is growing faster than the higher educational facilities, and it is becoming necessary for most colleges, and especially private ones, to limit entrants.

This situation poses a particular problem for state universities. These operate on the theory that a public school should be open to the public as far as possible, which in practice often means accepting almost any student with a high school diploma. But what would happen if a state school, like private schools, attempted to weed out most students before entrance, not after?

George B. Smith, Dean of the University at the University of Kansas, has studied the records of 1006 students who have been graduated and who had taken two standard entrance examinations—one psychological and the other in basic English. Of the 1006, 208 had made scores below the median.

Among these young men and women who might have been rejected were 40 teachers, 22 engineers, five journalists, seven lawyers, seven doctors, seven pharmacists, and 96 liberal arts graduates. One was a Phi Beta Kappa, a number had won other honors, and 46 had been on the honor roll for at least one semester. Dean Smith concludes that entrance examinations cannot measure personal qualities of hard work and patience which may serve to overcome inadequate preparation for college.

We would not say that the study is conclusive as to whether state universities should or should not raise entrance requirements. Their very physical limitations may compel them to do so. But obviously the public colleges have some reason to try to make college work the main test of whether a student belongs in college. They do not wish to cut short that fond American dream of higher educational opportunity for all, lest good material be lost.

STILL SMOLDERING

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Raymond Roche Tucker won the office on his own; many machine politicos hate and fear him; soft-spoken, he is tough with aldermen, takes no guff from business men, who like him for it; engineer, smoke abatement and charter expert, administrator.

William K. Wyant Jr. in the Washington University Magazine

Mayor Raymond Roche Tucker has earned the hatred and fear of some political hacks by his disdain for the traditional type of horse-trading, but it would be incorrect to think of him as a professor naive in politics, girded only in the shining armor of his honesty.

He is in fact an excellent politician, an Irishman, born and bred in South St. Louis, scrappy, quick-tempered and toughened by years of training in public life.

Raymond R. Tucker

He learned the political facts of life as Mayor Dickmann's secretary after Dickmann called on Washington University for a man who knew something about smoke.

In that period, he served as chairman of the Twelfth Ward regular Democratic organization, a post his father had held.

He was chairman of a committee that drafted a new ordinance for curbing the dense smoke then stifling the city. He became the first St. Louis Smoke Commissioner.

Tucker returned to Washington University in 1942 as chairman of the department of mechanical engineering. In 1951 Mayor Darst appointed him director of the Office of Civil Defense, a part-time assignment.

Beating the Organization

Tucker announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Mayor in February of 1953, long after most politicians had declared themselves for his opponent. He organized his own campaign, won the primary and the election without being in the slightest degree obligated to anybody.

"The Mayor," one astute admirer said of him, "is not so much non-political as non-political-organization. He had training in the brutal mechanics of patronage politics, but he was smart enough to see that it was not necessary to compromise to get things done."

The same observer noted that Mayor Tucker enjoys a solid measure of support from conservative Republican business men. The Mayor, this observer remarked, would quickly lose traction with the powerful people whose help he uses to such advantage if he were subservient to them. "The thing that fascinates them about Tucker," he observed, "is that he takes no guff from them."

Personally, Mayor Tucker is soft-spoken, courteous and quietly convivial. He has a hot temper which he controls well. He is a mediocre orator but convincing in conversation. Few mayors have spoken more bluntly to their boards of aldermen. He is capable of biting sarcasm.

The Mayor is not a rolling stone. He was born at 7019 Minnesota avenue, a half mile from the modest two-story brick house at 6451 Vermont avenue, where he has lived since 1908. He still attends St. Mary and Joseph Roman Catholic Church at 6320 Minnesota, where he was baptized. His father, William J. Tucker, ran a heating and plumbing business for years and later was an oil salesman. During five years, from age 16 through 21, Tucker worked from 4 to 6 every afternoon at the Carondelet branch library, shelving books.

"My father," he recalls, "had the theory that if I passed my courses I deserved the rest. He felt also that if I never had any money in my pocket I would never miss it, whereas if I worked in summer months I might get dissatisfied in winter."

There were two other sons in the family. One is Dr. William J. Tucker, a St. Louis University graduate now practicing medicine in Wisconsin. The other brother, Robert, died seven years ago after becoming vice president and sales manager of Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.

A 50 Per Cent Salary Cut

Some years after joining the university faculty, Tucker married Miss Edythe Leiber on Nov. 29, 1928. She is a charming and cultured woman who has avoided the limelight as much as possible. They have two children, a daughter, Joan, now Mrs. Leigh Doxsee, and a son, First Lt. John Thomas Tucker, a flyer in the Marine Corps. Both attended Washington University.

Mayor Tucker's early indoctrination in getting along without much money has been of value to him in politics. When he became Mayor, he was making about $20,000 a year, augmenting his university salary by advising on matters of smoke control in various cities.

The Mayor of St. Louis receives a salary of $10,000 a year and has the use of an official car, with a fireman chauffeur. There is a contingent fund of $20,000 annually, but this sum is sufficient for official purposes only with careful budgeting.

Thus in effect Mayor Tucker took a 50 per cent cut in salary on leaving private life. He says the adjustment was not difficult, but jokingly points out that the old city charter, now in process of revision, provides that the Mayor's office is a part-time job.

Quite A Working Day

Because of the routine of luncheons and banquets he must attend, Mayor Tucker has developed an abhorrence for green peas and string beans. Otherwise he enjoys eating, and he and Mrs. Tucker, when he has a free evening, frequently dine out alone.

The Mayor often lunches at the University Club, sometimes meeting people with whom he wishes to discuss some civic project close to his heart. Now and then, perhaps once a month, he takes along the City Hall reporters. He enjoys having a martini or two before lunch. He smokes filter-tip cigarettes.

Mayor Tucker estimates that he averages about 14 to 15 hours a day at his task, including of course the three or four evenings a week that he must represent the city at some function or other. He gets to his office about 9 a.m. and leaves, on most days, around 6 p.m.

"I am permitted to engage in other activities," he says, "but I have not found anybody interested in my services at 3 o'clock in the morning."

Georgia Scares Us

From The Kansas City Times

The Georgia House thinks that six Justices of the United States Supreme Court should be impeached for "high crimes and misdemeanors." Another stroke of legislative genius. But nothing new in Atlanta. The state Senate voted to do away with the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution.

The people of Georgia may not welcome advice from outlanders, but we detect here a trend which might go beyond the ridiculous. For, as The Atlanta Journal observes, the disturbed lawmakers might even go as far as to cut off the flow of federal money into the state. Or, unless the rest of us come to our senses, they might even kick the other 47 states out of the Union. This is cause for worry.

Between Book Ends

RAND McNALLY BIBLE ATLAS, edited by Emil G. Kraeling. (Rand McNally, 488 pgs., $8.95.)

The present tension in the Middle East—impassability of traffic on the Suez Canal, controversy over the Gaza strip, Russian intervention, and other situations affecting world peace—has almost obscured the religious significance of such places as the Sinai peninsula, Jerusalem and Israel.

However, a layman's knowledge of the Bible is sufficient to know that the state of unrest in the Middle Eastern area is not new, nor is it unique for this period of contemporary history. This volume, on the other hand, has been compiled to present a picture of the area about which the Bible relates and to correlate the present geography of the land.

In his foreword, Emil G. Kraeling clarifies the purpose of the Bible Atlas. He says:

"The Sacred Scriptures of Jews and Christians are read mainly for their religious and moral content. But they also can be read with an eye to what they tell us of the days in which they were written and of the events and conditions which they relate or reflect. To render that which they report geographically understandable is the task to which the author has addressed himself."

The Bible Atlas contains 40 pages of full-color maps, including 18 double-spread ones, which show the geographical divisions and changes in the ancient world from the days of the Patriarchs to the time of Paul. There also are about 200 photographs.

The book provides a course in geography of the era in which the Bible was written, yet it goes much farther by correlating Biblical areas in perspective with the present Middle East. The Bible Atlas also contains historical data which could be used as a reference by a student of the Bible or layman because of the notes and expository information.

Where the South Failed

This is the story of an internal conflict within the Confederacy at a time when all its efforts were needed at the front. This conflict between the civil administration on one side and the military command on the other, was a fundamental problem on the solution of which depended the eventual outcome of the war.

So far this problem has been hardly dealt with and Prof. Vandiver's book is therefore a most important addition to the existing literature of Civil War history.

Prof. Vandiver shows in a clear fashion how "decentralized centralization" could have been one of the main factors which wrecked the Confederacy. The division of the book into two main problems of "Civilian Administration" and "Command and Logistics" is of great help to the reader in distinguishing the two main sources of conflict.

Jefferson Davis and other civilian leaders receive adequate share of criticism and, when due, praise, but on the whole, the book shows the blatant shortcomings of those in whose hands lay the fate of the South. That the Southern leaders were incapable of making the necessary adjustments needed for a total war effort was the result of the individualistic character of the Southern states who only cared for the men and problems of each individual state, rather than for the Confederacy as a whole.

Because of the importance of this work it is perhaps a pity that the book is not footnoted for further guidance of those who may wish to enter into a further detailed study of any particular problem.

A bibliography at the end of the book, however, should be a useful guide to further research. All in all, this is an excellent book by one of our greatest experts in Confederate history.

THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON.

WHEN THE MAJORITY LEADER of the august United States Senate, who happens now to be a Democrat, Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas, has to stand up in a sparsely attended session and, like the master of a boys' school, admonish his colleagues to come and attend school sessions in the historic Senate chamber—well, when that happens, it suggests that something has happened to the Senate.

Whether it is something fundamental which, years hence, the historians will analyze as an important transition in the Democratic process this daily recorder will not attempt to say. What he can say, however, is that what used to be a lively and sprightly body has become, except for occasional drama of brief duration, dull, humdrum and colorless. Prof. Johnson's lecture to his pupils was the more pointed and, for the observer, poignant since the business for which he was trying to drum up a crowd for debate and action was certainly the most important issue to come before the Senate this session.

Johnson.

Perhaps it was the most important in a long time. Namely, the resolution setting out what has come to be designated "the Eisenhower Doctrine for the Middle East."

The Decline of Oratory.

Time was when no such reprimand was necessary, not even for a far less vital issue. You could get a full house, floor and galleries, and be sure generally of full-flavored oratory, wise, urbane, witty, or just plain demagogic for a change of pace.

Nor would the speakers of that other day painfully stumble through prepared manuscripts, as they often do now; but would stand up four-square and speak naturally and gracefully, usually without even notes. There was a time when a Senator would not dare show his face shoved into a manuscript. It was a matter of honor, Sirs.

Standing at his place in the first row, the tall, thin-faced Texas leader could see his complaint exemplified in the barren scene about him, with very few Senators present despite the fact there had just been a quorum call to try to round up the missing.

He gave words to his dilemma (and they were written down on paper before him) when he said he would continue to order quorum calls "to get Senators to come to the floor to speak, and to get Senators to listen to Senators who care to speak."

"Tumbled Out of Olympus."

Assuming the schoolmaster's posture, he said that even if Senators were attending important committee sessions outside the chamber, they must leave them and "should start to the chamber when they hear the first bells, so that they may arrive before the call is concluded."

This remonstrance had everything in it but the threat of demerits for the tardy and laggard.

Watching this scene, there came to mind a description in a letter written home to London by Thackeray's Clive Newcome, while an art student in Rome, about the ruins through which he roamed over a century ago now, thus:

"There are battered gods tumbled out of Olympus and broken in the fall, and set up under niches and over fountains; there are Senators namelessly, noselessly, noiselessly seated under archways, or lurking in courts and gardens."

It's not, of course, that distressing; but to one who has watched this body so long and has come to love it, something is missing. This has not happened suddenly. It has come about over a period of years.

Pressures of Time.

In casting about for reasons, you are aware right off of a basic one. This is the tremendous growth of Government during the busy and furious New Deal and the second World War so that its intimate contact with the lives of so many people has led to so many more requests and inquiries from constituents to Senators and thus piled up more and more work upon them and their staffs.

They have also their work on the two major committees to which each is assigned. There they must deal with important problems of domestic or foreign policy.

There is little time left for attendance in the Senate, and they limit that mostly to occasions when their committees have bills on the floor. That's why Majority Leader Johnson had to read his lecture during the Middle East debate.

The pressure of time also explains why so many Senators now read prepared speeches, and why the ghost-writing business is so flourishing here now, and why the speeches lack that warm, personal touch that gives piquancy.

But there is another reason for the dullness of proceedings, and for that Senator Johnson, the majority leader, must be assigned some responsibility.

Dullness of Statesmanship.

A man with a passion for moderation, a man anxious to keep conflict and controversy suppressed, he tries to settle everything possible off the floor and leave Senate sessions as far as possible to ratification of privately agreed upon solutions.

That is naturally welcome to Senators who have so much to do anyhow.

It may be "statesmanship," but it can be awfully dull, particularly for anyone who can remember exciting days in the Senate.

It may explain the Democratic party in the Senate, which Senator Johnson directs. Once alive with conflict and merriment, it seems very tame and respectable now, and so much like the Republican party that voters may lose sight of the difference before very long.

'ROMEO AND JULIET' A TV WORK OF ART

By JACK GOULD
© New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, March 5—Television had a glorious 90 minutes last night. The Old Vic Company's production of "Romeo and Juliet," with Claire Bloom and John Neville, was a work of art, alive with vitality and filled with tenderness. It was a privilege to sit in front of the home screen.

The Shakespearean romantic tragedy was brought before the cameras with impeccable craftsmanship and an unusually imaginative appreciation of the medium's needs. There was a flowing movement and a mastery of technique that endowed the total with impelling excitement as well as a searching understanding of the emotional turmoil of the star-crossed lovers.

"Romeo and Juliet" was seen over KSD-TV in St. Louis under auspices of Sol Hurok and the Producers' Showcase.

The Old Vic presented "Romeo and Juliet" as part of its repertoire earlier in the season on Broadway. By now there can be no doubt that television always benefits from a production that has had the advantages of a theater run. The faultless delivery and the perfection of interpretation can only be achieved with time. For that video will always be in debt to the stage.

But last night television displayed its incalculable worth in extending such a treasure to the millions; anybody who speaks about ratings should be expelled from civilized society. For the Old Vic's performance was pure electronic gold.

The virtues duly reported by the Broadway critics perhaps stood out even more in the close-up of television. For the Old Vic approached "Romeo and Juliet" not alone as a revered classic but also as a living story to be told with warmth and compassion. In the intimacy of television the program breathed a special suspense and sincerity.

Miss Bloom's Juliet was superb. Hers was the needed radiance of young love coupled with a mature emotional understanding of one of the theater's most difficult roles; it is a triumph that rises above media. As Romeo, Neville, too, has the advantage of youth plus a perceptive artistry. Together they constituted a couple whose heartbreak seemed at one and the same time both realistic and legendary.

Paul Rogers as Mercutio was beguiling, robust and forceful. Wynne Clark's nurse was a juicy characterization. The others in the company, including Richard Wordsworth as Tybalt and Jack Gwillim as Friar Laurence, were altogether right.

A lot of television's more maddening hours can be forgotten when there is an occasional work of the stature of last night's "Romeo and Juliet." To know that such supreme theater was enjoyed in city and village should give all concerned reason for pride and satisfaction.

DR. WILLIAM B. SPOTTS DIES, WAS ORAL SURGEON

Dr. William B. Spotts, an oral surgeon, died today, apparently of a heart attack, after collapsing at his home, 7361 Kingsbury boulevard, University City. He was dead on arrival at St. Louis County Hospital.

Dr. Spotts, 67 years old, who was former president of the St. Louis Dental Society, was preparing to leave for Deaconess Hospital on the advice of his physician when he was stricken. A graduate of the Washington University Dental School, he had offices at the University Club building.

JOSEPH BUHR'S FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE TOMORROW

Funeral services for Joseph Buhr, a stationary engineer for the Krey Packing Co. for 40 years, will be at 9 a.m. tomorrow at St. Barbara's Church, 1369 Hamilton boulevard. Burial will be in St. Peter's and St. Paul's Cemetery.

Mr. Buhr died Sunday at St. Joseph Hill's Infirmary, Eureka, Mo., of infirmities. He was 82 years old and had lived formerly for many years at 5892 Wabada avenue. He had retired from the packing firm 10 years ago.

Surviving are a daughter, Sister M. Perpetua of the Carmelite Order, and five sons, William, John, Joseph, Vincent and Henry Buhr.

William Willard Roberts Dies.

FIFE, Va., March 5 (AP)—William Willard Roberts, former New York and Connecticut newspaper man and photographer who turned to painting in his later years, died at his home here yesterday. He was 76 years old. He worked as a crime reporter on the New York Times and as a reporter and photographer on various Connecticut newspapers.

70 OBJECTS OF ART GIVEN TO MUSEUM

J. Lionberger Davis Presents Works of America, Europe and Far East.

City Art Museum has received 70 additional objects of arts as Gifts from J. Lionberger Davis, St. Louis art collector, it was announced today by Charles Nagel, museum director.

The gifts, on exhibit in various galleries of the museum, included enamels, prints and sculpture of Europe and America as well as enamels, carvings, sculpture and works in glass, enamel and lacquer from the Far East.

Among four objects of unusual interest, Nagel said, is a small cast bronze ornament of the late Chou dynasty in China (650-206 B.C.) The ornament represents a running tigress with a cub on her back.

A pair of tomb figures of the Wei period in China (220-265 A.D.), made of painted clay, depict women of the court. This is indicated, Nagel said, by the long-sleeved robes and projecting shoulders of the figures, and the style of the headdresses.

Another Davis gift is a French enamel plaque made at Limoges in the first half of the Sixteenth century. The plaque depicts four episodes from the life of Christ, and is believed to have been designed for a private chapel.

Fourth of the objects to receive special mention is an etching called "The Breaking Up of the Agamemnon," by Sir Arthur Seymour Haden, English printmaker. It was done in 1870 and depicts a British warship.

40 DAYS OF LENT BEGIN TOMORROW

Ash Wednesday Services to Be Held in Christ Church and Old Cathedrals.

Lent begins tomorrow, Ash Wednesday, with services in all Catholic churches and many Protestant churches. The 40-day period of fasting and penitence before Easter does not include Sundays.

Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter will preside at the 12:10 p.m. mass tomorrow at the Old Cathedral, Third and Walnut streets, speak briefly, and distribute blessed ashes.

Bishop Arthur C. Lichtenberger of the Missouri Diocese, Episcopal Church, will conduct a 30-minute service, starting at 12:10 p.m., at Christ Church Cathedral, Thirteenth and Locust streets. Noonday services will be held at the Cathedral Monday through Friday during Lent.

The noonday services at Christ Church Cathedral will be conducted by the Metropolitan Church Federation, beginning Monday.

At St. Louis Cathedral, Lindell boulevard and Newstead avenue, ashes will be distributed tomorrow after masses at 6, 7 and 8 a.m., and 12:05 p.m. Ashes will be distributed also at 3 and 7:30 p.m. During Lent, the Cathedral will have a noonday mass at 12:05 p.m., Monday through Friday. On Saturdays the schedule of morning masses will be held, with an evening mass at 5 o'clock.

Lenten services also will be held daily, Monday through Friday, 12:15 to 12:30 p.m., in the chapel on the first floor of the Lutheran Building, 210 North Broadway. These services are sponsored by the 80 churches of the St. Louis Lutheran Council.

A dramatization of the famous Leonardo da Vinci painting, "The Last Supper," will be given at two churches tomorrow and Sunday. St. Peter's Evangelical and Reformed Church, St. Louis and Warne avenues, will present the dramatization, with a cast of 12 men, at 8 p.m. both days.

Bellefontaine Methodist Church, Bellefontaine road and Belgrove drive, will present "The Last Supper" dramatization at 7 p.m. tomorrow and Sunday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 5—The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra played a concert for the first time here last night to a capacity audience of 900 persons. The crowd called for four encores.

The orchestra, currently on a Southern tour, plays tonight in Jackson, Miss. It will return to St. Louis Friday.

Conductor Vladimir Goldschmann's program featured Brahms's Second Symphony, Beethoven's "Egmont" Overture, Tschaikowsky's "Romeo and Juliet," "The Afternoon of a Faun" by Debussy and "Colas Breugnon" by Kabalevsky.

PHILIP CUTS UP AT HOME SHOW, QUEEN DELIGHTED

LONDON, March 5 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth spent a lighthearted two hours last night watching Prince Philip upset the pomp of a royal visit to Britain's ideal home exhibition. Instead of a formal inspection and polite chit-chat as arranged, Philip insisted on poking behind the scenes and upsetting the show.

Guided to a new kitchen exhibit, he looked behind the slick show-front and found the place in a mess.

"Darling," he purred to the Queen, "I'm glad other cooks are as untidy as we are."

At a stand where Britain's newest electrical gadgets were shown, he asked: "Why is it that we are always behind the Americans in producing these things?"

Walking past an exhibit of automatic dishwashers, the Prince spotted the Bishop of Kensington studying one of the machines. "Are you selling these now?" Philip quipped.

A salesman demonstrating a new potato peeler wisecracked with the Prince about the product, then held up the gadget and announced: "Just the thing for the wife!" The Prince and "the wife" laughed delightedly.

THE REV. W. B. CLEMMER'S FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW

Funeral services for the Rev. William B. Clemmer, circulation manager for the Christian Evangelist magazine for 30 years before retiring in 1950, will be at 3 p.m. tomorrow at the Union Avenue Christian Church, 733 Union boulevard. Burial will be at Lanark, Ill.

The Rev. Mr. Clemmer, 90 years old, died Sunday at St. Luke's Hospital. He also was book sales representative for the Christian Board of Publication, which publishes the weekly Christian Evangelist. A minister of the Christian Church, he previously had been a pastor at Rockford, Ill., for 10 years. He lived at 8 Sassafras lane, Ferguson.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Laura White Clemmer; two daughters, Mrs. Mary DeMaris and Mrs. Lew Bates; four stepdaughters, Mrs. Pauline Noonan, Mrs. Wellington F. Scott, Mrs. Lyle Willits and Mrs. Dorothy Doerr; a step-son, Dr. Charles White, and a brother, Dr. Franklin B. Clemmer.

SURVIVAL TRAINING COURSE

A free course in survival training will be sponsored by the civil defense wardens of Maplewood Thursday and March 21 from 7:30 to 10 p.m. at Maplewood Senior High School. The public has been invited.

George Klein, assistant county civil defense director, will be instructor. Certificates will be issued by the Red Cross to persons completing the course.

QUARTETTO ITALIANO CONCLUDES SERIES

Concert Is Disappointing in That It Lacks Group's Usual Emotional Fire.

By FRANK T. MENENDEZ

The third and final concert in the series of Chamber Music sponsored by the Ethical Society of St. Louis was held last night in the Sheldon Auditorium, when the Quartetto Italiano played works by Mozart Prokofieff and Schubert. In spite of some fine string playing this was a disappointing concert, without the emotional fire for which this Quartet is so rightly famous.

The Mozart Quartet in C Major, the "Dissonant," with which the program opened, had little of the tone quality that distinguished the other works and the first violin seemed particularly thin and unsatisfactory. The musicians remained entirely outside the music, lacking the scintillating precision without which the music of Mozart soon becomes a mere shadow of itself.

Prokofieff wrote his second string quartet, Op. 92 in F Major, in 1941 after he had been evacuated from Moscow and was living down in the Caucasus, in Nalchik at the foot of Mount Elbruz, and this particular quartet shows the influence of the folk songs and dances of this region. It was in the lyrical quality of these tunes, and the strongly syncopated rhythms of the dances that the Quartet gave us the best playing of the evening. Its members seemed completely at home with the music.

Schubert's C Major Quartet, which completed the program, is one of the lesser works of that composer, and the frequent unison passages in the first movement soon become tiresome.

It was unfortunate perhaps that the best work on the program, the Mozart quartet, received the poorest performance, and that neither of the other works provided the opportunity for the ensemble to display depth of feeling and emotional intensity.

PATRICK J. PHELAN FUNERAL

Funeral services for Patrick J. Phelan, a fireman with Engine Co. 42, will be tomorrow at 9 a.m. at St. James the Greater Catholic Church, 1349 Tamm avenue, with burial in Jefferson Barracks National Cemetery.

Mr. Phelan, who was 59 years old, died Sunday of cancer at St. John's Hospital. He was with the Fire Department for 29 years. Surviving are his wife, Buranetta Phelan, and three brothers, John, Joseph and Michael Phelan.

Cardinals to Begin Spring Exhibitions With Mid-Summer Lineup

Soft Spot In Center Is Single Exception

By J. Roy Stockton
Post-Dispatch Sports Editor

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 5—The Cardinal team that is likely to open the National League season, with the exception of the wide open center field spot, will take the field Saturday afternoon when the Redbirds open their spring exhibition game schedule in a game with the world champion Yankees at Al Lang Field.

Manager Fred Hutchinson, before a heavy rain prevented his athletes from working out yesterday, made up his batting orders and named his pitchers for the varsity game with the Yankees and for the B game the same day with secondary Redleg players at Tampa.

Herman Wehmeier, counted on as an important member of the staff of starters, will share the opening game pitching duties with R. G. Smith, lefthander drafted last December from the San Francisco club, and Lindy McDaniel, the bonus pitcher who has made most pleasing progress since joining the Cardinals in 1955.

The Center Field Gang.

Harmon, who hit a robust .360 for Omaha last year, will compete for the center field job with Bobby Del Greco and Bobby Gene Smith.

Three younger pitchers will do the pitching in the B game at Tampa. Marty Kutyna, Ted Wieand and Phil Clark were named for that contest by Manager Hutchinson.

For the A team, Blasingame will lead off, with Dark second, Musial in his old familiar third spot and Del Ennis hitting fourth. Boyer, Moon, Harmon and Smith will follow in the batting order.

Hutchinson has expressed a desire to get his team "set" for the pennant race and he's getting an early start. As he disclosed previously, he will send in Kasko to relieve Dark at half time and Kasko and Dick Schofield will alternate as Dark's understudy.

Meantime, Hutchinson will make certain that infielders and outfielders striving for places on the roster see as much active duty as possible. Schofield will play short for the B team Saturday, with Bobby Gene Smith, one of the center field candidates, playing that field against the Redlegs. Gene Green, a promising rookie catcher, will be behind the bat in the B game.

Pitching Assignments.

Hutchinson also named his pitchers for the second and third exhibition games of the spring. Against the Yankees in Sunday's contest Vinegar Bend Mizell, Billy Muffett and Willard Schmidt will do the hurling, while on next Monday, against the Braves at Al Lang Field, Tom Cheney, Jim Davis and Lloyd Merritt will be the St. Louis pitchers. Merritt is the former Beaumont high school athlete who was drafted last December from the Birmingham club.

When it was apparent that rain would prevent any action on the field, Manager Hutchinson assembled his squad in the grandstand and talked baseball. One of the points he made, for the benefit of the pitchers, was that there was no need for a player to think he didn't have to try to get base hits just because he happened to be a pitcher. He urged the hurlers to practice in the batting cage as much as possible, and to drill at the bunting machine. He recalled pitchers in the major leagues who added a few victories to their string each year because they were able to get an occasional base hit or lay down a sacrifice to put base runners in better scoring position.

Conzelman to Head Committee to Aid Cards' Home Opener

To help the Cardinals set a record opening-night crowd again, the Chamber of Commerce once more will campaign on behalf of the St. Louis major league ball club, Richmond C. Coburn, chairman of the Chamber's board of directors, has announced.

Coburn said Jim Conzelman, well-known local sports figure, had agreed again to be chairman of the Cardinal Night committee, which last year helped the Redbirds set an opening-night home attendance record of 23,984.

"The Cardinals," said Coburn, "continue to be one of our greatest civic assets and, as such, merit the continued all-out support of the whole community."

The Redbirds' National League opener at Busch Stadium will be Thursday night, April 18, against Chicago, two days after their first league game at Cincinnati.

Hoad Plans World Tour—As Amateur

SYDNEY, Australia, March 5 (AP)—Tennis Star Lew Hoad said he will leave on a world tour at the end of April and plans to play a full circuit—Rome, Paris, Wimbledon, the United States.

Hoad said his strained back is progressing well and he is keeping his weight down by diet.

New Pitch: The Double Duster

EMMETT KELLY, the always-intentional clown hired by the Brooklyn Dodgers to install gaiety around the place, has begun work. The former circus star is shown as he operated upon the principle that what's good for the plate, is good for the umpire. The umpire is JESS COLLYER, and he and Kelly were photographed in action at Vero Beach, Fla., where the Dodgers are training. A circus fan is entitled to the belief that the action was not posed. The Kelly brand of gaiety feeds upon established dignity, such as an umpire's, which always has seemed vulnerable during plate-dustings.

Series Replay? Dodgers Worry Over Newk's Arm

VERO BEACH, Fla., March 5 (AP)—The entire Brooklyn Dodgers camp here was holding its collective breath today wondering just how badly ace pitcher Don Newcombe had injured his arm.

The towering 27-game winner twisted his elbow making a hurried throw to second base during pickoff practice yesterday and 10 minutes later abruptly left the mound because, he said, the arm was bothering him.

"He will have to rest and take heat treatments," said Harold (Doc) Wendler, Brooklyn trainer. "There's no way of telling how long he will be out. We'll have to wait and see how much it tightens up. It could mean trouble, though."

Newcombe, named the Most Valuable Player of the National League last year, said he wasn't worried.

"I felt a twinge and quit," Big Newk commented. "Certainly it's nothing like it was last September."

He was referring to an injury to his arm at the end of the '56 season. He subsequently was knocked out of the box in two starts against the New York Yankees in the world series.

Only yesterday, Newcombe said in a signed story in the Saturday Evening Post that when he started the final game against the Yanks in the series "My arm was so sore I could hardly lift it."

Clemente's Aching Back.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 5 (AP)—Outfielder Roberto Clemente, who reported last year that he had back trouble then proceeded to hit at a .311 clip, is causing some concern at the Pittsburgh Pirate training camp as he declares he still has an ailing back.

When Clemente complained last season, the word around the clubhouse was to watch out—Roberto would have a good day. And he usually did.

But Clemente told Pirate officials yesterday the trouble is more serious and that he is beginning to doubt he can play unless he can be helped.

General Manager Joe Brown said the club physician has not been able to find any ailment but added that X-rays have been ordered.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 5 (AP)—Jim Hearn, who was sold to the Giants in 1951 by the Cardinals and found the change in scenery a tonic, hopes his shift to the Philadelphia Phils in last fall's trade will work the same magic on his 33-year-old right arm.

Hearn won five and lost one last season with the Giants, pitching in only two complete games. He blamed the decrease in effectiveness on a pulled hip muscle, suffered, he says, in an early season game at Ebbetts Field.

"I think they built the mound (at Brooklyn) for (Don) Newcombe," he said, "and it fell off sharply. I don't stride as far as he does and I kept hitting the drop-off spot with my front foot."

At any rate he feels healed now and said he thinks "I can do a job" for the Phils.

SARASOTA, Fla., March 5 (AP)—Ted Williams, the 38-year-old Boston Red Sox slugger, is hustling as never before in spring training.

Ted has been setting a terrific pace for the younger ballplayers and is amazing observers who know his distaste for the pre-season "grind."

"He knows the competition is getting keen as he gets older," Trainer Jack Fadden said of Williams.

"And he isn't taking any chances of slipping. He's a very proud guy. He wants to be at his best when he steps up to the plate."

Courtney Signs for $16,500.

ORLANDO, Fla., March 5 (AP)—Catcher Clint Courtney erased the Washington Senators' holdout list by coming to terms with Club President Calvin Griffith for a reported $16,500. Courtney had talked previously of heading back to his Louisiana ranch if he couldn't get something like $19,500.

TAMPA, Fla., March 5 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox are beginning to wonder about infielder Tom Brown, who has yet to sign his contract.

The strange thing about the case is Brown was offered the salary he had requested.

Brown played for Nashville the last two seasons and recently married a young woman from that city. It is suspected he wishes to live in Nashville

"How anyone could prefer Nashville to the major leagues baffles me," said Vice President John Rigney. "He bounced around the majors before but he's only 29 and a good hitter."

Outlook Bright for 1000 Boys in Lemay Baseball

By Neal Russo

About seven years ago a rugged former amateur boxer and Muny catcher, making his insurance rounds, watched boys at play at Hancock Junior High. He organized them as a Muny midget baseball team and became the manager.

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.
JOE SCHOENBERGER

Joe Schoenberger didn't know what he was getting into, of course. He and his fellow leaders of the Lemay Baseball Association now have about 1000 boys to look after.

Even though all three of his own children are girls—12, 10 and three months—Joe has put in more and more time with the boys in south St. Louis and the south county areas.

The Lemay group's growing pains became acute. Meetings were held in basements and store rooms and the places were too crowded. There was a crying need for a lighted diamond.

Low Rent, High Cost.

So, just a few weeks ago Schoenberger and his lieutenants took the plunge. They obtained an option on the five-acre tract of Heine Meine, former Pirates' pitcher, and brother Charley, who leased their well-manicured diamond, clubhouse and meeting rooms to the group for $1 a year.

Then they bought 115 light-units to go with the 45 which the City of St. Louis had turned over to the group. The City of St. Louis had received the 45 lights from the Cardinals. The Lemay group also bought seven 90-foot poles and three 70-footers, plus underground wiring. Stands going up will seat about 400. Total cost of lighting the field which will be ready soon, will run about $12,000.

Schoenberger said the group had gone into debt but was optimistic about exercising its option to purchase the Meine tract at 156 Lemay Ferry road within a few years.

To finance the project that will enable kids from seven up to play under lights six nights a week and use the clubhouse for dances and other forms of recreation, the non-profit Lemay group is offering $10-a-year memberships. These entitle the member and his entire family full use of the facilities on the entire five-acre tract.

Memberships may be obtained through Ralph Huelsebusch (TW 2-4203), treasurer, or any other member. Other officers are: Schoenberger, president; John Carney, vice president; Oscar Hartmann, corresponding secretary, and Joe Rosso, recording secretary.

Sparring Partner.

The Lemay group, which also has a women's auxiliary that sponsors boys' teams and will operate two girls' softball leagues, plays on four diamonds at the Titanium Field as well as in several parks.

Schoenberger, a native of Evansville, Ill., sparred with Lou Ambers, Bob Olin and other ring greats during the five years he worked at Harry Cook's downtown gym. Then came the war and six years in the air force. He went in a private, came out a captain, after running the athletic programs at Jefferson Barracks and Chanute Field.

Then he saw those kids playing without a leader at Hancock.

Soells Upset, McDonnell Five Also Eliminated

The favored Bob Soells lost to Sanford-Brown, 71-68, and McDonnell was eliminated by the Collegians, 72-68. Other games went as expected, Fix Mix winning over the Riondos, 56-46, and Clayton beating Glasgow, 59-30.

Don Wright was the hero for Sanford-Brown. He canned a fielder, on which he was fouled, in the final second of the game, and then made the free shot to give his team its margin of victory.

Second-round games in the one-defeat-and-out tourney, being held at Sherman Park, will be played Thursday night.

Russia, Sweden Meet For Ice Hockey Title

MOSCOW, March 5 (UP)—Russia, the defending champion, and Sweden won their games yesterday at the World Amateur ice hockey championships and were to meet today for the title.

Russia shut out East Germany, 12-0, and Sweden defeated Finland, 9-3. Czechoslovakia crushed Japan, 25-1. Sweden leads in the round-robin standings with 12 points while Russia is second with 11.

Gonzales Has 16-7 Lead in Tennis Series

HOUSTON, Tex., March 5 (UP)—Pancho Gonzales poured on the pressure in the third set yesterday to salvage the twenty-third singles duel of his international tennis series with Australia's Ken Rosewall.

The match was interrupted by rain Sunday with Gonzales leading by a set, but trailing three games in the second.

Rosewall won the second set, 6-2, but crumbled before the powerful strokes of Gonzales, as Pancho ran out the third set 6-2. Gonzales won the match 6-1, 2-6, 6-2, to make the series standing 16-7 in his favor.

After the singles encounter, Gonzales and Pancho Segura from Ecuador, polished off the Australian doubles team of Rosewall and Dinny Pails, 6-3, 7-5.

The tour moves to Kansas City for its next exhibition tonight.

Attendance Increased.

Attendance on the professional tennis tour has increased 40 per cent over last year, it was announced here yesterday by Myron McNamara of Los Angeles, advance man for Jack Kramer's World Tennis, Inc. The troupe, which this year features Australian Ken Rosewall against Richard (Pancho) Gonzales, will be in St. Louis Thursday night, for a program starting at 8 o'clock at the Washington U. field house.

McNamara, a former player, who has competed in Triple A events, said that crowds, for the first 23 matches, were running close to the attendance figures of the Kramer-Sedgman tour of 1953, which was best in history.

"We had over 11,000 for the opening program at Madison Square Garden, New York," McNamara said, "and better than 12,000 for two nights in Los Angeles. At Dallas the 4300 crowd was the best we ever had in that Texas city.

"Rosewall, a little fighter on the tennis court who seems highly respected by Gonzales, seems to be catching the fans' fancy. You'd be surprised how many times they've had to stop the Rosewall-Gonzales matches, while spectators were giving the players standing ovations."

Good Pay for Pancho.

Gonzales, now the No. 1 professional in the game until somebody else proves otherwise, earned $50,000 on the tour last year in which Pancho soundly trounced Tony Trabert, 74-27. This time he's working on a percentage and in the first 11 matches Gonzales made in the neighborhood of $25,000, according to McNamara.

Promoter Kramer, who is suffering arthritic pains in his right shoulder, is not likely to be with his troupe on the St. Louis stop. But Dinny Pails, the veetran Australian professional, has been a colorful campaigner in Kramer's place, McNamara said. Pails was Rosewell's professional coach in Australia and teams nicely with the 5-6 retrieving star in doubles against Pancho Segura and Gonzales.

Pails is singled out as the Australian pro who usually works out with the United States Davis Cup team when it arrives in the land Down Under. Dinny also has helped to coach the Italian and Belgian Davis teams. He'll play Segura in singles to open Thursday's program here.—H. F.

Three-I to Operate As Six-Club Circuit

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., March 5 (UP)—The Three-I League will play a 130-game schedule this year in its fiftieth anniversary season.

The league, the oldest Class B baseball circuit in the country, will operate with six teams, a reduction of two from last season.

The season will open April 28 and close Sept. 8. The openers will find newly-returned Davenport at Cedar Rapids, Burlington at Keokuk and Peoria at Evansville.

Davenport has taken over the franchise dropped by Waterloo after last season, Terre Haute, Ind., dropped out of the league at mid-season last year. Quincy, Ill., closed up shop after the New York Yankees canceled their long-time working agreement there.

March 18 Is Deadline for Archie Moore

DETROIT, March 5 (UP)—Lightheavyweight Champion Archie Moore has until March 18 to sign for a June title fight against the winner of the Chuck Spieser-Tony Anthony fight.

Floyd Stevens, president of the National Boxing Association, laid down the law yesterday and ordered Moore "to get something in writing without any further talks or postponements."

Moore originally was scheduled to meet Spieser here in April, but the 175-pound titleholder said he needed more time to train and the Spieser-Anthony bout was arranged for April 5 with the winner to meet Moore for the crown.

Stevens sent a telegram to Moore and his manager, Charley Johnson, yesterday "requesting" them to come to a written agreement. The telegram read:

"It is requested that you personally sign, along with your manager, your contract to fight the winner of the Spieser-Anthony fight at Detroit in June. The contract must be signed before March 18, as previously agreed to."

Stevens said it is now up to Moore and Johnson to work out details of the contract with the International Boxing Club and Olympia Stadium at Detroit, which have already announced co-promotion of the June 7 fight.

Mizzou Scholarship For Columbia Athlete

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 5—William (The Rocket) Richardson, who wrote new scoring records as a Douglass High School student here, has been awarded an athletic scholarship to the University of Missouri.

Richardson, 190-pound halfback, scored 139 points in six games last fall, carrying for 838 yards rushing for an average of 17.7 each try. One of his most impressive performances was against St. Louis U. High, which defeated Douglass, 46-26, in a game that found Richardson rushing for 155 yards in 13 carries, completing three of five passes, catching four passes, scoring three touchdowns and kicking two conversions.

His prowess is not limited to football as he averaged 21.9 points in basketball this season.

FIGHT RESULTS

BOWLING
by John J. Archibald

Chicago Sets Plans For Invitational Meet.

CHICAGO has abandoned hope of retaining the annual All-Star Tournament, the national individual match game championship event sponsored by the Bowling Proprietors Association of America, and has announced plans for running its own tournament. It will be an invitational meet for the "match game championship of the world."

Apparently the event will be run similarly to the All-Star, with a field of 160 men and 64 women being whittled down to 16 in each division for four days of match play. The proprietors association of Chicago will sponsor the tournament, just as it saw the All-Star through its first 16 years.

Jim Kearns, who directed the All-Star and will now operate the new tournament, points out that the invitational system of obtaining entrants will make sure that none of the game's top stars is left out through some unfortunate scoring during a qualifying test.

First prize in the men's tournament will be $4000, and the women's champion will receive $2000. The total prize money will be at least $23,000.

The dates of the Chicago meet will be Dec. 6-15, about the same as those the All-Star event is accustomed to occupying. It will be interesting to see what dates the national proprietors' selects for its tournaments.

With the qualifying rounds requiring many weeks, the national can hardly select an earlier date than December. Because of the severe physical strain involved, bowlers couldn't compete in two such tournaments in the same month. If the national decides to hold its tournament in January it would be necessary to hold the team match game competition at another time. When? December? If so, bowlers would again have to choose between that and the Chicago tournament. And so it goes.

The B.P.A.A. will name the city that will hold the individual match game tournament when the organization convenes in Fort Worth in April. Buffalo and Detroit are strong bidders.

Good Old 7 and 8—

Well, Most of the Time.

IN HIS first six appearances on Alleys 7 and 8 at Floriss Lanes this season, the Budweisers' Ray Bluth averaged a fantastic 245. He had totals of 687, 689, 802, 734, 718 and 794. Then last week he shot on that pair in a Masters League match against Fix Mix and totaled only 590.

A few weeks ago the Plazas' Vic Suhling had his season's high and low games in the same series, starting with a 112 (!), improving with 180, then shooting his best, a 248. Suhling has a 201 average in the Masters League.

The Buds have made a joke out of the previous all-time A.B.C. record for consecutive series of 3000 or better in league play. The record was 12. In both the Masters loop and the All Star League, the Budweisers have strings of 27 in succession.

An outdoor rosary at the Kundig Center for the Aged in Detroit is made up mostly of retired bowling balls. One of the balls was used to shoot a 299 game in the American Bowling Congress tournament in Detroit in 1948. Capt. William Brooks of the Detroit Fire Department shot the almost-perfect score—there have been 15 in the history of the tournament—and then donated the ball to the home.

A 298 game was rolled in Detroit recently by a woman, 29-year-old Lucille Kers. Mrs. Kers, who has a 123 average, opened with a game of 86. She began to get the hang of it in the second game and totaled 193. Then came 11 successive strikes, most of them "Brooklyns," before she left the Nos. 4 and 7 pins on the final throw.

"When she was finished," reported the league secretary, "Lucille was shaking like a leaf. She just sat there for about 10 minutes trying to recover."

Topolski and Beckerle Leading Metro Bowlers

Richard Topolski's 267 single and Tom Beckerle's 699 total took individual scoring honors in the Metropolitan Classic Scratch League last night at Bowl-Mor Lanes. Luigis, with 3300 total, and Phelim O'Tooles, with 1126, had top team scores. Team results: Parentes 3, Griesedieck Bros. 0; Lugis 2, Monnigs 1; O'Tooles 2, Sun Crest 1; Kutis 2, Pellins 1.

Scores were higher in the Ashworth Memorial Doubles League, with Bob Roberson rolling 782 total for a new league mark. Bob Dierkes had 760 and Stan Sutton an even 700. The Dierkes brothers, Paul and Bob, had a combined 1456 for another league record Team results: Sun Crest 3, Monnigs 0; Luigi 3, Griesedieck 0; Parente 2, O'Tooles 1; Pellins 2, Kutis 1.

Shirley Majors New Coach at Sewanee

SEWANEE, Tenn., March 5 (UP)—Shirley Majors, father of Tennessee's All-America Tailback, Johnny Majors, was named head football coach at the University of the South yesterday.

Majors, now a high school coach at Huntland, Tenn., will take over his new post April 1.

Majors will succeed Ernie Williamson, who left Sewanee in January to join Jim Tatum's coaching staff at the University of North Carolina. Williamson's record at Sewanee was two victories, 22 losses and one tie. Sewanee has no athletic scholarship program.

Virgil and Franz Cut Near Eyes In Sizzler

By W. J. McGoogan

Virgil Akins is looking for more middleweights to conquer today and has his eye on Joe Giardello but hopes Joe won't be as tough as Franz Szuzina of Bremen, Germany, proved at the Auditorium last night.

Akins won a unanimous decision over the plodding, determined German boy but only after he knew he had been in a battle for ten rounds.

There were no knockdowns but Virgil suffered a cut over his left eye in the seventh round, then came right back to slash the right eye of the German in the next session. Neither cut was serious but the one suffered by Szuzina hampered him through the last two rounds.

Franz fought gamely every step of the way, however, but he couldn't get away from the snappy left jab which Akins kept throwing to his face and which reddened the German's nose.

German a Strong Fighter.

Szuzina lived up to his advance billing as a sturdy, rough competitor. Those who saw him lose a close fight to Giardello in Milwaukee said that he had taken much more punishment from Akins than he did from Giardello.

One judge, Howard Hess, saw it 49-43 for Akins, the other judge, Fred Connell, called it 47-43 for Akins and Referee Bob Ingham scored it 46-43 for Akins. The writer had it 47-41 for Akins.

In a breakdown of the rounds, Hess called it six for Akins, one for Szuzina, three even; Connell, six for Akins, two for Szuzina, two even; Ingham, five for Akins, three for Szuzina, two even.

Akins, in close, landed many punches which were mighty close to being kidney blows. Ingham said that he warned Virgil about them but said that Szuzina also was guilty of some low punches.

If so, it is no wonder because the action was rough and rugged most of the way.

Szuzina proved able to take a good punch and he had to take many of them as Akins, in addition to his lightning lefts, drove home many good right-hand blows, some of them landing solidly on the German's jaw.

Akins a Difficult Target.

In defeating his second middleweight foe here in a little more than a month, Akins showed that he's very hard to hit. He protects himself very well and took the punches which Szuzina landed, then came back fighting.

Again, as against Al Andrews, Virgil fought one of his better fights. He gave away 4¾ pounds, weighing 152 to 156¾ for Szuzina, but was in splendid condition and the weight advantage was of no advantage to Franz.

Szuzina didn't get into real contention until the seventh round when he opened a cut over Virgil's left eye and won the round handily. It appeared then that he had a chance to pull a big upset, as Akins rated the favorite.

The eighth round started, however, when Szuzina's right eye was cut and became such a red smear that Referee Ingham called Dr. Harold Freedman into the ring to examine it. The doctor permitted the match to go on and in the ninth round each swung hard and often, trying to bring the other down. Szuzina suffered further damage in the tenth round but he fought strongly to the closing bell trying to pull the match out of the fire. Akins, boxing coolly, staved him off.

Knockouts in Two Bouts.

Joe Reynolds stopped Don Jose, Chicago, in the seventh round. Jose, something of a clown, backed away from Reynolds and it took Joe six rounds to catch up with him. The clever St. Louis lightweight dropped Jose with a left hook to the body.

In the two preliminaries, Jerry Gray outpointed Al Jones in five rounds and Tempo Temple scored a four-round decision over Willie Anderson in a rousing scrap.

Attendance was 2553 and receipts $6467.

Auditorium Results

Joe Reynolds, St. Louis (138¼) knocked out Don Jose, Chicago (138¾), seventh round. Jim Parker, referee.

Tyra Married.

DAYTON, O., March 5 (UP)—Charles Edward Tyra, 21, University of Louisville basketball center, and Sylvia Saunders, 19, were married yesterday in a Catholic church here.

Immediately after the ceremony the newly-weds left for Louisville, Ky., where Tyra had afternoon basketball practice scheduled. The Cardinals close their season tomorrow against Detroit.

Hawks Need Win Over Celtics Here in Bidding for Top Spot

By Harold Flachsbart

Red Auerbach's Boston Celtics, sporting a brand new Eastern Division championship in the National Basketball Association, will be the Hawks' opponents at Kiel Auditorium tonight at 8:30, and Coach Alex Hannum is trying to fire up the St. Louis team for an all-out effort against a bitter rival.

No matter what the Celtics or other Eastern clubs do in their remaining games, Boston will finish on top of the heap but the hungry Hawks, struggling for the past few weeks without much help from master-scorer Bob Pettit, could finish anywhere from first to last in the Western race.

Fort Wayne leads the Western Division with a 32-34 record and St. Louis is second with 31-36, one and a half games behind. The Hawks, two full games ahead of third-place Minneapolis and two and a half ahead of fourth-place Rochester, could clinch a playoff spot with victories in three of their last five games.

If Coming.

Hannum's men, who scored a convincing 112-102 decision over the Pistons at Fort Wayne Sunday, could clinch a playoff spot with only two wins, if one were over Rochester in one of two remaining meetings with the Royals. To clinch second, they need a combination of four victories or Minneapolis defeats.

Naturally after such a rousing victory at Fort Wayne, where the Pistons have lost only four times in 25 contests, the optimism is high in the St. Louis camp. And even without high-scoring jobs by Pettit, the Hawks still believe there's a chance to finish first in the Western Division, which would mean a $4000 purse added to much more money that could be earned in playoffs.

It's really easy to get into first place—on paper. First of all, the Hawks need a victory over Bob Cousy, Bill Russell, Bill Sharman & Co. tonight and another win over Rochester on Fort Wayne's neutral court Friday night. Meanwhile, Fort Wayne is playing Philadelphia tonight on a neutral court and the Warriors at Philadelphia Thursday.

If the Warriors should defeat Fort Wayne twice and the Hawks beat the Celtics, the Hawks and the Pistons would be tied when both play in a doubleheader at Fort Wayne Friday night. In this, a Hawks victory over Rochester and a defeat for the Pistons at the hands of the Minneapolis Lakers would give the Hawks first place in the Wtseern division. Victories that night for both St. Louis and Fort Wayne would leave them tied for the lead and the St. Louis team could regain first place by beating the Pistons at Washington U. field house Saturday afternoon.

Hawks Remember Injuries.

Pettit was hurt the last time the Celtics were in St. Louis, suffering a wrist fracture when fouled on a lay-up attempt by Boston's Jim Loscutoff. In Boston two weeks ago the Hannum, declared the Celtics were unusually rough on one play on which Slater Martin was fouled—a play similar to that on which Pettit went down.

"It's because of these incidents and also because we think we deserve a much better record against the Celtics than one victory in eight games that we want this one so badly," said Hannum. "Three or four games they've won over us this year could have and should have gone the other way."

It is planned to use Pettit sparingly, bringing him along gradually until he builds his confidence, said Hannum. "We're looking for more use of Pettit each time we play and we know we 'must' have him if we're going any place," the coach emphasized.

Mickey Wright Is Golf Victor

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 5 (UP)—Mickey Wright, playing the best golf of her career despite cold wind and rain, came from behind with a terrific last-day surge to win the $5000 Jacksonville women's open for the second straight year.

The San Diego, Calif., professional played a deadly game with her irons and came in with a four-under-men's-par 68 in yesterday's final round over the soggy Hyde Park course. This enabled her to overcome a five-stroke deficit and win with a 72-hole total of 295.

Miss Wright, who won the tournament last year with 294, finished three strokes ahead of Mrs. Marlene Bauer Hagge of Delray Beach, Fla., whose game fell victim to the tricky traps on the course. Mrs. Hagge slipped to a 76 in the final round and had a total of 298. She was tied for the lead at the end of the third round with Louise Suggs of Sea Island, Ga., Miss Suggs finished in a tie for eighth place at 303.

Kelley Re-elected.

WASHINGTON, March 5 (UP)—Claude D. Kelley of Atmore, Ala., has been elected to his eighth one-year term as president of the National Wildlife Federation. F. Ross Brown of Albany, Ore., is the group's new vice president.

N.B.A. Playoff Champs Could Win $18,500

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—The National Basketball Association playoff pool has been increased to $50,000 this year, with $10,000 going to the winning team, President Maurice Podoloff announced.

The playoffs begin March 16 with the top three teams in each division participating. Under the system of dividing the pool, a team could collect as much as $18,500 by finishing on top during the regular season and then going all the way through.

The teams finishing first in each division will receive $4000 each with an additional $1000 going to the one which has the highest percentage (Boston has this added bonus assured). The second - place teams receive $1500 each and the third place teams $1000.

The second and third place team in each division play a best-of-three series in which each team gets $2250.

The winners face the first place teams in best-of-five playoffs with $3500 going to the winner and $2500 to the loser.

The best-of-seven championship series is worth $10,000 to the winner and $5000 to the loser.

Jesse Brown Is Stopped in 3rd By Bud Turner

TYLER, Tex., March 5 (UP)—After being staggered in the first round, Buddy Turner fought back for a third-round TKO over Jesse Brown of St. Louis, before 1500 fans in the Mayfair Arena here last night. Both fighters weighed in at 187.

It was Turner's twelfth straight knockout, and his twenty-second win in 24 professional fights. Early in the first round, Brown stung Turner with a hard right that almost knocked the east Texan off his feet for the first time in his professional career.

Turner held on through the rest of the first round, though, and from there on it was hardly a contest.

Turner sent Brown down for a count a minute after the third round opened. The fight was stopped when Turner began hitting Brown at will.

Illinois Is Beaten by Hoosiers

CHICAGO, March 5 (AP)—Indiana gained its revenge and Michigan State didn't. As a result the two teams share the Big Ten basketball title in one of the Big Ten basketball conference's daffiest cage races.

Michigan State last night fell before arch-rival Michigan, 81-72, and Indiana avenged its most humiliating defeat of the season by whipping Illinois, 84-76. Ohio State, which also could have grabbed a share of the crown, was forced to settle for a third place tie with Minnesota by dropping a 76-69 decision to the Gophers.

Michigan State goes to the NCAA championships because Indiana had last represented the Big Ten in 1954.

Badgers Tame Wildcats.

Wisconsin stumbled out of the Big Ten cellar with a 82-69 victory over Northwestern and Purdue finished in a tie for fifth by beating Iowa, 72-63.

As expected, all of the home teams were victorious. Only one game remains in the Big Ten season schedule, a regional television game Saturday afternoon with Wisconsin at Iowa.

Michigan State, riding a 10-game winning streak after three initial losses, went to Ann Arbor to avenge an earlier 70-69 loss to Michigan. But the Spartans were never in the running as Michigan took a 52-34 halftime lead and coasted into a fifth place tie with Purdue.

7-7 for Illinois.

Indiana, defeated earlier by Illinois, 112-91, came from behind in the second half to tumble the Illini to their first second division finish in 13 years. Favored to win the title, Illinois finished with a 7-7 record.

Illinois held a 41-35 halftime lead but the Hoosiers finished with five players scoring in double figures as Archie Dees, the Big Ten's "big man" led all scorers with 25 points. Harv Schmidt topped Illinois with 22.

Ohio State had to settle for a third-place tie rather than a share of the crown mainly because of Minnesota's free-throw accuracy. The Buckeyes topped the Gophers from the field, 27 goals to 26, but Minnesota canned 24 of 34 free throws while OSU could only hit on 15 of 26.

Wisconsin yielded the cellar for the first time this year, exchanging places with Northwestern. However, the Badgers will have to beat Iowa Saturday or they will finish in a tie with Northwestern.

Dons Shoot for Berth.

NEW YORK, March 5 (UP)—The San Francisco Dons "ain't what they used to be," but tonight they can at least earn the right to defend the N.C.A.A. basketball championship they have held for two straight years.

The Dons, with an 18-6 record that is a far cry from their perfect 24-0 of a year ago, can clinch the California Basketball Association title and an N.C.A.A. tourney berth by beating runnerup St. Mary's of California in the season finale for each.

Another N.C.A.A. berth may be settled tonight if Bradley, runner-up in the Missouri Valley Conference, loses to Wichita. That would give the league title and tourney berth to idle St. Louis, which already has clinched at least a tie for the crown.

And it undoubtedly would mean that Bradley would receive a bid to the National Invitation Tournament. Then the two remaining N.I.T. berths are expected to go to Utah and either St. Joseph's of Philadelphia or Duquesne, which last night trounced Temple, 68-54.

Pittsburgh became the sixteenth team picked for the N.C.A.A.'s 23-team tournament yesterday when it was selected as a "member at large." The Panthers (15-9) will meet Morehead St. in a first-rounder at Columbus, O., March 12, and the same program will feature a first-rounder between Miami of Ohio and Notre Dame.

Howell Named President.

Elmer Howell, former boxer and promoter of amateur boxing, has been named president of the Old-Timers Club, an organization made up of retired fighters. He succeeds Joe Lehbold.

Favorites Win In Regional Tourney Games

By John J. Archibald

Rarely does the No. 1 seeded team in a regional tournament expect to have much trouble in its opening game, but Maplewood, the favorite in the meet at its own gym, has reason to fear its first-round foe tonight. Opposing the Leafs, runners-up to Beaumont in the Class L tournament last year, will be DuBourg High, a team that has shown well against some of the best in the district in recent weeks.

There were no surprises in the state eliminations that began last night in both Missouri and Illinois. First-seeded Webster Groves and University City won by wide margins in their St. Louis regionals, while unbeaten Collinsville and East St. Louis Lincoln breezed through on the other side of the river.

Regional play begins tonight at St. Louis University High, Ferguson, Hadley Tech and Maplewood, while the first round will be completed at Webster Groves and Normandy, as well as at Granite City and Cahokia.

Maplewood had an 8-3 record in the Suburban League, but all of its losses came in the last four games. DuBourg, on the other hand, finished strong in the Catholic Athletic Conference, although losing a one-point game to champion McBride. The Cavaliers had a 7-3 league record. In non-league play during February DuBourg defeated St. Louis U. High and Southwest, and lost to Beaumont after leading the Jackets at the three-quarter mark.

University City's Sandy Pomerantz scored 26 points as the Indians rolled over Fairview, 72-46, at Normandy. Amanuel Brooks's 25 helped Ritenour stop Lutheran, 73-45.

Webster Groves had everybody in the act, except ailing center Bob Barker, as it defeated Eureka, 66-46. Barker was not in uniform, but he is expected to be ready when Webster plays in semifinal Thursday. Sullivan downed Mehlville, 70-45.

Tom Jackson had 29 points and Terry Bethel 20 for Collinsville as the Kahoks made Roxana their twenty-seventh consecutive victim, 74-47. Alton hit seven field goals in seven tries and sank 13 out of 16 free throw attempts in the third period for 27 points as the Redbirds defeated Granite City, 79-69.

A 6-4 sophomore, Art Easterly, made 10 field goals and 22 points and teammate Bennie Lewis had 20 points as Lincoln ran its unbeaten string to 26 with a 71-42 victory over Cahokia in the regional on the losers' floor. Dupo held Catholic League champion Cathedral to four points in the first quarter and beat the Belleville team, 54-41.

Referees to Meet.

Referees of the C.Y.C. Soccer League will hold their final meeting of the season at 8:15 o'clock tonight at St. Francis de Sales Hall, 2638 Iowa Ave.

Joe Brown Begins Training for Savoie

HOUSTON, Tex., March 5 (UP)—World Lightweight Champion Joe Brown began training yesterday for a March 12 non-title fight with Canadian Veteran Armand Savoie.

Brown, a New Orleans Negro who now makes Houston his home, appeared here last August to outpoint Wally (Bud) Smith in a nationally-televised non-title bout. He later took the title from Smith in New Orleans, and stopped Smith in defense of the title at Miami Beach last month.

Richardson

Dittmer, Mo., in Jefferson county.

He is the first Negro attorney in Missouri to be named a member of the American Law Institute. Membership in this organization is by invitation only and is considered a professional distinction in the legal fraternity.

A "citation for progress in human relations and civic achievement," awarded to him in 1953 by the Urban League of St. Louis, decorates the wall of his office in Washington, together with a photograph of Brownell.

Richardson has been praised in judicial circles for his part in the National Conference in Parole last year and for improvements made under his chairmanship in the operation of the Parole Board. These included publication of the board's rules, regular hearings in Washington for the benefit of friends and attorneys of prison inmates, issuance of annual reports and closer co-operation with state parole officials.

About one-third of his time on the parole board has been taken up with hearings, at 31 federal institutions. He has visited 27 of these—all but four of the youth institutions, which are under a special division of the board.

In addition, he is a member of the Justice Department advisory council on corrections and chairman of its subcommittee on legislation. In this capacity, he reviews pending bills in Congress.

He also belongs to a new special committee named this year to study the problem of disparity of sentences in the federal judiciary.

His Service to G.O.P.

He served as executive assistant to the assistant to the chairman of the Republican National Committee in the 1948 campaign, a position he says involved mainly office work and no real politicking. That was when he first met Brownell, then managing Thomas E. Dewey's campaign for President. Richardson has been a member of Citizen's for Eisenhower since 1952 but made no political speeches in either the 1952 or 1956 campaigns.

Richardson says his work has taken up most of his time since he came to Washington. But he does get in an occasional set of tennis with his eldest daughter and sometimes a game of bridge or whist with the family in the evening.

In college, the broad-shouldered Richardson was a boxer, but he no longer engages in this sport.

In the summer, the rest of the family generally spends a few weeks at a rented cottage at Highland Beach near Annapolis, in Maryland, and Richardson sees them there on weekends.

Richardson told the Post-Dispatch he wanted to express his appreciation to President Eisenhower "for this great honor" and to Brownell for making the recommendation.

"If the Senate confirms my appointment, I will do my best to make a good judge," he said.

The Customs Court was created in 1890 and consists of nine judges, who usually hear cases in panels of three. It sits mainly in New York but sometimes in other ports of entry.

It deals mainly with disputes between travelers and business men and the Customs Service. It reviews appraisals of imported merchandise, decisions of collectors of customs, including orders on rates of duty, the exclusion of imported merchandise and the seizure or confiscation of goods.

FOUND SHOT TO DEATH, HAD COMPLAINED OF PAIN IN HEAD

Police were called early today to 2866 Missouri avenue where they found the body of James C. Pratt, 34 years old, lying in a doorway. He had been shot in the head and a .22 caliber rifle was beside the body.

Mrs. Ruby Barry, who lives at the Missouri avenue address, said Pratt came to her house shortly before midnight complaining of pains in his head. He obtained the rifle, she said, and shot himself. She said he had not been well since he was injured in an automobile accident about a month ago.

Pratt, a cabinet maker, was reported in good spirits earlier in the evening. He lived at 2229 Park avenue.

MAGISTRATE GABBERT NAMED MEHAN-FOR-MAYOR CHAIRMAN

Appointment of Magistrate Thomas Gabbert, Twelfth Ward Republican committeeman, as chairman of the Mehan-for-Mayor Committee was announced yesterday by Richard J. Mehan, who is unopposed in today's primary for Republican nomination for Mayor.

BRENTWOOD BLVD. PROPOSAL REJECTED

The Richmond Heights recommendation that Brentwood boulevard, between Clayton and Eager roads, be made part of the proposed Inner Belt Highway for St. Louis county was rejected yesterday by Harold L. Lien, consulting engineer on county bond issue projects.

Lien said he saw no economic justification for the proposal, adopted by the Richmond Heights City Council and submitted to the County Council.

The consulting engineer said inclusion of that part of Brentwood boulevard within Richmond Heights as part of the Inner Belt Highway would necessitate construction of a series of separations and interchanges.

As a consequence, the "present high-value frontage along Brentwood boulevard would be practically wiped out," Lien stated.

Construction of an Inner Belt Highway, which would give the county a much-needed north-south route through its heavily populated section, was one of the projects included in the $39,712,000 bond issue program approved by county voters in 1955.

A total of $16,100,000 was to be used for acquiring 18 miles of right-of-way for the Inner Belt route before property costs go up and for building about 4½ miles of the highway.

CONGRESS PAYS JOINT TRIBUTE TO SAM RAYBURN

WASHINGTON, March 5 (UP)—Democrats and Republicans in Congress joined yesterday in paying tribute to House Speaker Sam Rayburn on the forty-fourth anniversary of his entry into Congress.

Rayburn, talking to newsmen said the country and the government had grown tremendously during his career in Congress. But he said the biggest change could be summed up in one word—money.

When he came to Congress in 1913 the population probably was not half what it is today, he said. There had not been any big wars, and there were not as many things to spend money on.

But now the country is big and the government is big. Taxes and spending are high and are going to stay high, he said. He said he would not want to speculate on whether they ever would be substantially cut.

AUTHOR DISCUSSES IMPACT OF TRAINS ON U.S. FOLKLORE

American folklore has included many stories about railroading because Americans are interested in the conquest of time and space, author Lucius Beebe told a dinner meeting of the American Railway Engineering Association last night at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson.

Beebe contrasted this attitude with European ones, in which religious symbolism and military heroes have figured prominently in folklore. "It is improbable that any other agency of transport ever exerted so immediate an impact on so many people at once," he told his convention audience.

Even the folk dreams of tramps and hoboes have been a part of the railroading legend, Beebe said, pointing out that "riding the rods" underneath the freight cars was their preferred means of locomotion.

ROY J. WAKEFIELD CLEARED OF CHARGE OF NON-SUPPORT

A charge of non-support, brought against Roy J. Wakefield after his nine children were found in squalor in a rented home in Maryland Heights last Jan. 5, was dismissed yesterday by St. Louis County Prosecuting Attorney, Edward W. Garnholz.

Garnholz said an investigation by his office revealed that the $75-a-week steelworker had been steadily employed for the last 13 years, had made funds available for his 32-year-old wife and children and had done everything he could to establish a home.

Dr. Edwin H. Schmidt of his psychiatric department of St. Louis County Hospital was quoted by Garnholz as saying Mrs. Wakefield was non-competent. The children have been staying with a relative.

STOCK LEVELS BEST IN ABOUT A MONTH

By ELMER C. WALZER
United Press Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, March 5 (UP)—Stocks moved higher again today and touched their best levels in about a month.

Trading was moderately active and the market was a bit broader than in recent sessions. However, the trading element moved slowly to celebrate what appeared to be a real effort of the Israeli forces to leave Arab territory around Egypt.

Most of the oil issues rose fractions to a point. The international oils which should have been first to celebrate an early opening of the Suez canal were irregular.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 1.40 points higher at 472.88 at the close. The 20 rails gained 1.09 at 144.14 and the 15 utilities rose .31 of a point to 71.28.

Railroad issues registered small gains in the group used to calculate the averages. Others of the division made gains of a point or more with Katy preferred the feature.

Steels were little changed. Some of the metals moved ahead. Drug stocks gained and so did some of the chemicals, notably Union Carbide which rose more than 2 points. Motors held steady. Special issues showed gains of 1 to more than 2 points.

Demand for the carriers was predicted on anticipation of higher car loadings ahead. The group moved up slowly but its percentage gain was wider than other leading groups. Advances ranged to more than a point.

Elsewhere the market ruled strong on hopes for an early opening of the Suez canal. Oil issues were in demand most of the session. The metals also were firmer, notably the lead stocks where St. Joseph ran up 3 points.

Oil issues were strong with gains ranging to more than a point.

Gains of 2 ponts or better appeared in such stocks as Katy Raidroad preferred, and a few others. A long list rose a point or more. Steels perked up with gains ranging to fractions in some of the leaders. Motors were steady to firm with Studebaker Packard active.

Issues to rise a point or better included Aluminum, Ltd., Douglas Aircraft, Ingersoll-Rand, Kerr McGee, J. C. Penney, Spencer Chemical and L. A. Young Spring & Wire.

A rise of more than a point in Peoples Gas helped lift the utilities. Cement issues were firmer under the lead of Penn Dixie which rose better than a point. Tires ruled firm. So did steels, mercantiles, chemicals and glass issues.

The Associated Press said that of 1119 issues traded, advances outnumbered declines by 550 to 318. There were 13 new 1956-'57 lows and six new highhs.

Volume totaled 1,860,000 shares, compared with 1,890,000 yesterday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 60 cents to $174.30 with the industrials up 90 cents, the rails up 50 cents and the utilities up 10 cents.

Day's Review Of Business And Finance

UNION ELECTRIC CO. probably will earn about $2.02 a share this year up from $1.70 last, J. W. McAfee, president, told the New York security analysts Monday. He said two-thirds of the anticipated boost in share earnings came from the sale March 1 of the Popular Ridge Coal Co., a subsidiary, which would result in a non-recurring profit of $3,400,000. The utility plans to spend $330,000,000 on expansion over the next five years.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER FUEL Corp. reported net income for 1956 was $8,162,183 equivalent to $2.33 a common share, compared with $6,847,734 or $2.02 a share for 1955. The 1955 net was adjusted for share for share stock split in June of that year. Gross revenues for the year were $72,092,663, against $48,730,519 for 1955. The company said it is budgeting $12,000,000 this year for exploration and development, compared to $8,000,000 spent for that purpose last year.

JOHANSON-STEPHENS & Shinkle Shoe Co. declared a dividend of 10 cents a common share, payable April 1 to record March 23. Bradford Shinkle Jr., a vice president of First National Bank of Clayton, was elected a director of the shoe company filling a vacancy due to death.

ADMIRAL CORP. directors have deferred action on a dividend on the capital stock until the meeting usually held in the second quarter of the year. Admiral has paid 25 cents dividends in previous quarters, and paid a total $1.00 last year.

Colorado Fuel & Iron Corp. reported its net income for three months ended Dec. 31 were $3,646,170 equal to $1.04 a share compared with $4,075,842 or $1.27 a share in like period of 1955. The 1956 quarterly net would have been $4,759,889 had it not been for a special non-recurring adjustment net of taxes of $1,113,719.

ALUMINUM, LTD. issued a preliminary report showing net earnings in 1956 of $55,600,000, equal to $5.56 per common share, compared with $48,193,000, or $4.83 a share, in 1955. (INS).

INTERNATIONAL HARVester Co. reported net income of $8,571,000 for the three months ended January 31, the first quarter of the firm's 1957 fiscal year, compared with $12,406,000 in the first quarter of the 1956 fiscal year. Total sales for the first quarter were $253,135,000, compared with $275,279,000 in the initial quarter of 1956, a decrease of 8 per cent.

BOEING AIRPLANE CO. sales were $1,006,356,000 and net income amounted to $32,134,989 in 1956. Revenue was more than $152,000,000 ahead of the previous year and the net, equal to $4.82 per common share, compared with $4.57 a share in 1955. Backlog of orders on Dec. 31, 1956, amounted to a little more than $3,000,000,000 a rise of $400,000,000 over the previous year. (INS).

KAISER STEEL CORP. REports sales climbed in 1956 to $201,490,000 from $155,354,000 a year earlier. Net income amounted to $23,571,852, or $6.57 a share, compared with $7,610,843 or $1.57 a share, a year earlier. (INS).

LOWER RATE PAID BY U.S. ON BORROWING

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—Industrials and rails advanced narrowly today to boost the bond market mildly higher. Investment quality issues and utilities were soft.

U. S. government bonds reversed their earlier upward drift to ease fractionally in dull dealings. Intermediates were off 2-32 while long range issues retreated 3-32 to 4-32.

The latest issue of short-term Treasury bills was sold at a price equivalent to an average yield of 3.246 per cent. Last week a similar issue drew a rate of 3.288 per cent. The Treasury said bids exceeded the latest offering by nearly one billion dollars.

WHAT IS HUMIDITY?
Very simply, humidity is the degree of moisture contained in the air. It can have just as much effect on our comfort and our good health as the temperature around us. If you were to measure the relative humidity in your home, some winter day when it is heated to about 70° F., you would probably find it about 25% —drier than any natural climate on earth, including the Sahara Desert.

WAGE AND PRICE NEWS SWEET AND SOUR

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP).

ON APRIL 1 the soft coal mines will start paying miners 80 cents more a day. At the same time the mines in the South will raise the price of coal 25 cents a ton and those in the North may take like action.

Sam Dawson

The cost of living—as measured by the Government's consumer price index—has just risen to another new record high. Automatically about 1,500,000 workers got a raise in hourly wage scales.

The sweet and the sour are closely blended in these two news items. A fatter pay envelope is a thing of joy. Higher monthly bills aren't.

There's nothing unique about these two news items, either. The Labor Department reports that existing labor contracts call for 5,000,000 workers to get pay increases this year. Other contracts are up for negotiation this year.

President Eisenhower has urged that both management and labor use voluntary restraint in the matter of seeking higher wages and raising prices. His plea set off again a debate as to what causes the rise in the cost of living. It is the steady climb in wage scales? Or is it a drive to fatten corporate profits?

THE FIRST NATIONAL CITY BANK OF NEW YORK, in its March letter, points out that this debate always crops up during periods of upward price pressures. Management's argument: Rising prices are due to rising costs. It charges that wages have risen faster than productivity, which is the amount of goods turned out per man hour of work. Management insists that its profit margins, therefore, are shrinking. It points to the 1956 earnings statements, many of which stress that sales volume rose but profits didn't—or, if they did, rose at a much slower rate.

LABOR'S ARGUMENT: PROFITS HAVE RISEN as fast or faster than wages. So wage increases could have been made out of profits without raising prices. It contends that higher wages should give labor a greater share in the returns of a business operation rather than be an excuse for hiking the price to the consumer.

THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE, in its national income series, reports that in the manufacturing industries total compensation of employes including fringe benefits rose from 44½ billion dollars in 1947 to more than 83 billion in 1956. Corporate income taxes in these industries rose from 6½ billion dollars in 1947 to more than 12 billion in 1956. Profits after taxes in the manufacturing industries rose from 10 billion dollars in 1947 to around 12 billion in 1956. Wage and tax totals almost doubled. Profits didn't.

THE BANK SAYS THIS SHOWS "that industry, instead of 'fattening its profit margins,' has been fighting a constant battle against rising costs." Labor leaders have other yardsticks to measure what has been happening and doubtless won't buy the bank's argument. As always in this debate both sides look to the Government "to do something." And the bank takes the opportunity to preach a little sermon: "Government is responsible, not to any one group, but to all the people—the shareholder, the worker, the consumer, the retired person living on a fixed income or savings."

THE BANK SAYS THAT, TO HOLD INFLATIONARY forces in check, the Government must hold back "on its own spending to avoid competing in the markets for scarce goods and services, setting an example of frugality." Its credit policies must "discourage unneccessary borrowing and encourage people to save more and to pay their debts." Self restraint, it seems, should be up to three groups: labor, management—and Government.

PRO-INDIAN PARTY WINS IN KASHMIR STATE ELECTION

SRINAGAR, Kashmir, March 5 (AP)—The pro-India National Conference party was assured an absolute majority in the Kashmir state legislature yesterday with 38 of the 75 seats declared filled without contest.

Followers of the imprisoned Sheikh Mohammed Abdullah, who was displaced in 1953 by the present prime minister, boycotted the election. Abdullah was ousted as an extremist for Kashmir independence from India.

India and Pakistan have been in dispute since 1947 over control of Kashmir. Although the U.N. ordered a plebiscite, such a vote has never been held. The Kashmir constituent assembly voted Feb. 6, 1954, to recommend that Kashmir become a part of India.

Abdullah and 30 other government officials were jailed in August 1953 on charges of corruption and intrigue with foreign powers.

EDWARDSVILLE MAN HELD IN KILLING OF SON-IN-LAW

Madison county authorities said that in a signed statement Mondy, told of a quarrel between his son-in-law and daughter, Mrs. Hazel Chastain, on Thursday, after which she went to Mondy's home in Edwardsville with her three children.

After a telephone call from Chastain Saturday night, Mondy and his wife and daughter went to St. Jacob to see him. When Chastain saw them, Mondy said, he attacked Mrs. Mondy and then started for him. It was then that he took a revolver from his automobile and shot Chastain, the statement said.

tions between the United States and Egypt could take a turn for the better. Foreign diplomats here believe Nasser is about to take constructive steps to ease Mideast tension. The first and most obvious act would be to permit the United Nations salvage fleet to start work on the remaining obstacles in the Suez canal. Nasser has assured King Saud there will be no further stalling on reopening the canal.

As a sign of internal relaxation, Nasser is expected to announce the holding of general parliamentary elections. Nasser had promised these elections last year, but the Suez crisis and the British-French-Israeli invasion intervened.

Diplomats here believe that Nasser now is willing to accept United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold's six principles for a final settlement of the canal dispute. These principles contain a pledge of non-discrimination against any shipping and would insulate the canal operation from national politics.

Meanwhile, the press has been full of reassuring pronouncements that the "Egyptianization" of banks, insurance companies and foreign commercial agencies need not drive foreigners out of Egypt.

Nevertheless, there is a heavy emphasis on politics in these appointments. The ratio between career and political ambassadors has been retained about as it was in the first Eisenhower Administration, but there is a general feeling here that the President is adding quite a few new, inexperienced second term ambassadors just when some of the first term political diplomats were getting on top of their jobs.

In short, Mr. Eisenhower has, in an era of lively diplomatic negotiation, perpetuated the old political ambassadorial system and, if anything, made it more political than it was under former President Truman. This has been something of a surprise.

His commitment to the voters when he first ran for the Presidency was based on a statement, which he repeated in many parts of the nation: "We will call to the high offices of the Government the best men and women, the ablest and most reliable in the land . . ."

No President has ever achieved this ideal in this century, and Mr. Eisenhower is clearly no exception to the rule.

REFUSAL TO PAY EAST SIDE PROSECUTOR IS OVERRULED

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 5—Attorney General Latham Castle today ruled that the St. Clair county board of supervisors did not have authority to withhold State's Attorney John J. Hoban's salary on grounds he has not paid his personal property taxes.

Castle's opinion answered a query by Hoban who has received no salary since he took office as state's attorney last Dec. 3. The salary was withheld when Hoban refused to sign an affidavit saying he owed the county no taxes.

Hoban, the only St. Clair county Republican elected in last November's general election, made an issue of personal property taxes in his campaign. He said he considered the county's taxes unreasonably high and unfair and favored legislation changing the method of arriving at a tax figure.

Don McNeill Hails New Way For Deaf To Hear With Both Ears

CHICAGO (Special)—A fabulous new miracle invention that, at last, enables the deaf to hear clearly again with both ears—as nature intended—was announced by Don McNeill on his "Breakfast Club" last Thursday.

McNeill revealed that this radically different invention does away with the handicaps of trying to hear with just one ear.

"I urge everyone with a hearing problem to discover how this great invention . . . Beltone Hearing Glasses . . . may help them," McNeill said. "A powerful hearing aid is hidden inside the glasses. A tiny, almost invisible tube carries sounds to the ear. No receiver button, no cord."

To acquaint hard of hearing readers of this newspaper with facts about this new way to hear with both ears, an informative new book will be sent free on request. For your free book, write: Electronic Research Director, Dept. 2-319 Beltone Hearing Aid Co., 2900 W. 36th St., Chicago 32. A postcard will do.

GRAINS TURN HIGHER ON CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, March 5 (AP)—Wheat futures rallied on the Board of Trade today, partly on expectation of good export buying in the near future.

Soybeans started irregular and then moved upward in some cases due to short covering. Corn held steady to firm most of the session on buying associated with Government rejection of most corn bids by exporters.

Wheat and soybean gains ranged to around two cents or more at times.

Traders believed there is a good potential wheat demand, particularly for export. Brazil is expected to be in the market Thursday, and several other countries also are reported to have made inquiries for domestic wheat.

The wheat rally came despite continued favorable crop news from the Southwest. The Government weekly summary said rains further improved winter wheat prospects in Texas and Oklahoma, but the crop needs rain badly in Nebraska, western Kansas, eastern Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico.

SHROVE TUESDAY SPORT

Sandra Sibley keeps tight grip on her skillet as she crosses finish line to win the British end of the international pancake race in Olney, England, in record time today. The race was the first leg of the annual Shrove Tuesday competition between Olney and Liberal, Kan., which ran its leg later. The contest, in which competitors run a measured course while flipping pancakes in a skillet, has become a tradition between Olney and Liberal womenfolk since it was originated seven years ago by the Rev. Donald Collins, vicar of Olney. The British girl emerged winner in the contest, beating her American opponent's time by eight seconds. —Associated Press Radiophoto.

'Twenty-One' Is Out

By Jack Gould

NEW YORK, March 5.

IF there is one immediate test of success in television, it is winning a place among the "top ten" programs announced each month by Trendex, Inc., a research organization. Entering the charmed circle can lead to a fortune for a star and have profound repercussions in the worlds of advertising, broadcasting and publicity.

CHARLES VAN DOREN . . . POINTS UP A CONTRADICTION.

What a peculiar and often barren honor such a place really is—and how absurd the emphasis on ratings in TV can be—is vividly evident in the plight of "Twenty-One," which currently is featuring the battle of recall between Charles Van Doren and Mrs. Vivienne Nearing.

On the basis of the most up-to-date statistics "Twenty-One" is now at least the second most popular program on the air; it swamped "I Love Lucy" in its last appearance and is crowding Ed Sullivan for the top spot. But when the next Trendex "top ten" is announced the quiz will not be included. In terms of the statistics by which the TV industry and its breathless press agents place so much store, "Twenty-One" is a forlorn outsider.

THIS RIDICULOUS contradiction is born of a research limitation which Trendex itself is quick to acknowledge. Actually, the organization attempts to compare the popularity of television programs only during the first seven calendar days of each month. Programs which come on the air during the balance of the month—in other words roughly three-quarters of all individual shows—simply are not taken into account.

On Monday, Feb. 4, "Twenty-One" was dropped from the schedule of the National Broadcasting Co. and replaced by the special showing of "Mayerling." Last night, it was supplanted by the special showing of "Romeo and Juliet." Since both of these dates fall within the period during which the Trendex "top ten" are compiled, "Twenty-One" is out of the running.

THE PUZZLING IRONY is that this is no secret to the TV industry, yet the continuing acceptance of the Trendex "top ten" continues. At the request of specific networks or sponsors, the Trendex organization will make special overnight checks on the popularity of a given program outside its study during the first week. Thus it can be established that some programs which should be in the "top ten" are not there solely because they are not on the air during the right period.

If the Duke and Duchess of Windsor had appeared on Ed Murrow's "Person to Person" program one week later than they did, they would have made the Trendex "top ten" handily. This season Bob Hope has been at a special disadvantage. He consistently has registered ratings high enough to be within the "top ten." But since he has not appeared during the "Trendex week" he has not been publicly included among the TV elite.

NBC, which has specialized in irregularly scheduled spectaculars, has been particularly hard hit. Dinah Shore, "Jack and the Beanstalk" and "Holiday on Ice" scored high individual ratings but were left out of the master compilation. Jerry Lewis had the misfortune to appear on Jan. 19. If he had appeared during the first week of January, his rating would have put him in the fourth position or, during the first week of February, in first place.

THERE ARE two other classic examples. The second performance of Mary Martin in "Peter Pan" scored a rating that would have put it second to "The $64,000 Question"; it was seen two days too late to be eligible for the "top ten." In 1952, "I Love Lucy" was pre-empted during the first week of the month by a campaign speech delivered by President Eisenhower. So that month Lucille Ball's show was not listed by Trendex as the most popular on the air.

The emphasis in television on the "Trendex week" has not gone unnoticed by stars. Producers of variety shows often save their biggest names for the one week that counts the most in television's business circles.

The Trendex organization does not attempt to conceal the limitation of its method. Actually, Trendex scrupulously labels its report for what it is—the most popular shows in one week. But because its report is issued once a month the document is generally interpreted both in and out of the trade as a barometer of success over the longer period.

Trendex explains that it simply would be uneconomic to try to check the percentage of viewers tuned to all individual programs throughout the month.

A. C. Nielsen, Inc., another major service which rates the popularity of TV shows, does check all programs. But its handicap is that its results are not announced until three weeks after a given show has left the air. In the extremely fast-moving and nervous TV industry interest in the Nielsen figures is not as great as the Trendex "top ten," which are published one week after the critical "Trendex week." Among his other accomplishments, Van Doren has highlighted the weakness of TV ratings; if this leads to some sensible reform, many people in the industry would gladly double his winnings on "Twenty-One."

Exercise Is 'Doc' Eberhardt's Life

By Mary Kimbrough

PROF. WALTER C. EBERHARDT, HEAD OF THE DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION AT ST. LOUIS UNIVERSITY, COUNTS OUT EXERCISE INSTRUCTIONS OVER THE AIR ON HIS RADIO PROGRAM.

"DOC" EBERHARDT, who probably can claim credit for taking more pounds off more St. Louisans than any other single individual, hasn't lost a one of his own 154 for the past 30 years. What's more, he hasn't added an ounce to his weight.

The slim, little professor, head of St. Louis University's department of physical education, is so conscientious about listening to his own advice that he hasn't given his muscles a chance to get out of condition or his waistline a chance to get out of shape. He stays away from fattening foods and gets plenty of exercise. And that, said "Doc," is the pure and simple secret of not putting on pounds today that you'll have to take off tomorrow.

Known formally as Prof. Walter C. Eberhardt, the German-born physical educator not only is responsible for keeping university students in good condition, but has taken on the same chore for adult men and women, thousands of whom he has never seen and who know him only as the stern voice of reality barking over the airways to "bend-down-stand-up-1-2-3-4."

For 25 years, "Doc" has taught night classes for women at St. Louis University, and he estimates that some 90,000 have gone through the course in that time, leaving behind an assortment of aches and pains and not a few thousand melted-away pounds of flesh.

And since 1929, he has been conducting a five-mornings-a-week exercise program over the radio and there's no way of knowing how many housewives have laid aside their brooms and mops and that extra cup of coffee to do deep knee bends and listen to such unnerving remarks from the radio as "Madame, I am lookng in your window and you are not bending; you are drooping."

"The battle of the bulge," says Eberhardt, "will never be won by diet alone. Exercise is the great stabilizer.

"It's inactivity that causes our aches and pains. The average person doesn't know how it feels to be in condition. We must keep active for the game of life. The Lord gave us these bodies to use and keep in condition.

"When people are active, they feel better, they lead a happier, more wholesome life."

Eberhardt, a bouncy 5-feet-8, has been taking exercises himself ever since he knew the difference between a dumbbell and an Indian club. His whole family was enthusiastic about physical education, so it was natural that he should think about it for a career.

BROUGHT to the United States when he was 3, he grew up in Lawrence, Mass., attended the Normal College of American Gymnastic Union, University of Indiana and St. Louis University. He came to St. Louis in 1927 as physical education director at Tower Grove Turner Hall. His radio program began two years later on station KWK, and in 1931, when he joined the faculty of St. Louis University, where he holds a full professorship, the broadcast was transferred to station WEW. Father of one girl, Jean, and a son, Dick, he lives with his family at 4045 Oleatha avenue.

On the campus, in addition to supervision of the students' physical education program, he conducts six night classes for women, with enrollment running up as high as 150 a class. Many are repeaters, coming back every year to take off the pounds they put on during the summer.

"Why are most people fat?" he asks. "They eat too much. Why? Usually force of habit, or maybe they're just bored. People with nothing to do just sit and nibble—and put on the pounds."

He advocates five basic rules for losing weight: Determine your daily required caloric intake; compute your diet accordingly; keep a record of what you eat and drink, your measurements, your weight; exercise daily; wear loose clothing when you exercise; follow exercise with a warm and then cooling bath or shower.

And he has another set of rules dealing strictly with exercise: Exercise every day at a given time; exercise by the clock, not by guess. And don't overdo.

"We're going to get fat if we just sit down," he said. "We must have something to replace our former activity. Today, man can go farther, cover more ground than ever before in his history, and consume less energy. So he has to plan something to take up the slack.

"Although exercise doesn't make you live longer, it does make you live better. Your appearance and posture are definitely affected by the strength of your muscles. Proper co-ordination means more skill and added poise. Feeling fit and looking well go hand in hand."

The radio program, which is broadcast from 9 to 9:30 a.m. Monday through Friday, is called "Mother's Health Class," and many women actually enroll in it as they would a campus course, following the routine as assiduously as a Phi Beta Kappa listens to a Latin professor. However, Eberhardt is sure that many others—including a number of men—are tuning in without placing their names on the class rolls.

Stern but tactful, "Doc" is apt to tell his radio audience (hoping the right ones will take it to heart): "This next exercise is dedicated to the spare tire. No, Madam, I know YOU haven't one, but the lady next door has."

Or he will say: "The going down is easy. It's the climbing up that's difficult. Well, life is like that, too."

A psychologist, he sometimes throws this in: "Now everyone over 30 can stop this exercise."

"I doubt," he said, "that any woman would stop with an instruction like that."

But a few are glad to admit their ages, according to the letters he receives. There's one, who is 68 and crippled, who says she listens in "to exercise my soul." And another, an 84-year-old St. Louisan, wrote in:

"I have to start doing your exercises every day because I have to get in shape to do my gardening."

Help Others And You Help Yourself

By Amy Vanderbilt

DR. WILLIAM C. MENNINGER, of the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kan., said recently that the Boy Scout credo, "Do a Good Turn Every Day" is a good rule, too, of mental health.

When our own lives seem depressing or futile, if we can make ourselves reach out to help some other person, we are not only helping that other person, but we are helping ourselves.

I REMEMBER when my eldest son lived with me in New York City as a little boy. In his class at school was a child on a scholarship. He was often our guest after school, for his mother worked and the boy otherwise would have had to go home to a lonely apartment and study by himself.

Often on Saturdays, this boy would invite my son to come to his house to play when his mother was home. At first, I felt this was an imposition on a woman who had so little free time. But then in a Parent-Teachers meeting it was brought out that for a child always to be on the receiving end and never allowed to give, was a stultifying thing.

IT WAS GOOD for this boy to be able to entertain my son and other boys from his class in his own home in any way he could and without apology.

It was good for my son and the other boys, who had more of the world's possessions than this boy, to join in the social activities he was able to offer in his home. They thereby learned that the quality of a human being has nothing to do with the quality of his possessions and that everyone must be allowed to give what he can to other people with warmth and graciousness.

Contract Bridge

By Sam Fry Jr.

IT'S A LOT of fun to make a bid as an intended sacrifice and then pick up just enough material in dummy to actually make your contract. Fun for the declarer that is—the defense doesn't like it a bit. South fell into such a situation on today's deal, but had to abet his own cause by very good "guessing" in the play.

Neither side vulnerable,

	♠J8542 ♥A764 ♦AQ3 ♣5
	♠— ♥5 ♦J952 ♣KJ1097642

East	South	West	North
1♠	Pass	2♥	Pass
4♥	5♣	Pass	Pass
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

South didn't know just what number of clubs to pre-empt with on the first round so adopted the strategy of "passing and listening" instead. When the bidding got around to him again the decision had been made for him. He just had to try five clubs.

The heart jack was led by West, dummy's ace winning. South made good decision number one when, after he led the club from dummy and East followed low, he went up with the king, dropping West's queen. East was pretty well marked with the ace on the bidding and if East had both the ace and queen there was no second club in dummy to lead through again.

South proceeded to drive out East's club ace and then trumped the latter's spade ace. He now temporized a bit by playing out some clubs but this obviously was not a real squeeze situation. It was clearly a matter of determining or guessing what was what in the diamond department and then managing to lose only one trick in the suit. On the clubs South ran, he did get one low diamond discard from West.

Eventually tiring of club leads (a couple were still held in reserve) South led a diamond to dummy and played the ace. The king dropped, the fourth round of diamonds was later conceded to West and five was made. South hadn't really expected to catch that diamond king but he was providing for that possibility. Had he finessed the queen he still would have had to lose to the ten and gone down.

He arrived at his ace play by simple arithmetic and logic. East had shown up with three clubs and had to have eight or nine cards in the majors on the bidding. That left him with either one or two diamonds. If he had two the contract was assured on any play as West had thrown one diamond and the diamond ace followed by the queen would clear the suit with only one loser. But what about the singleton possibility? If East had a low singleton, leaving West with four to the king-ten-eight the latter had to make two tricks by force. If East's singleton was the ten either the ace play or queen finesse would bring in the contract. But if East had the lone king the ace play would take care of it and the queen play lose the hand. So the ace had to be correct.

Chocolate Banana Malted Milk

Ingredients: Two small or medium-sized fully ripe bananas, two tablespoons instant chocolate-flavored sweetened malted milk powder, two cups homogenized milk.

Method: Make sure bananas are speckled with brown and are not green at the tip. Peel and mash fine with a fork. Add malted milk and milk; beat well. Pour into glasses. Makes three medium-sized servings.

Brain Game

1. For how many years was our country governed by the Articles of Confederation?
2. How many tasks were imposed upon Hercules?
3. Cerberus had how many heads?
4. What date became famous as "D Day"?
5. For how many pieces of silver was Joseph sold?

ANSWERS

1. Eight. 2. Twelve. 3. Three. 4. June 6, 1944. 5. Twenty.

No Mystery

By Ruth Millett

AMERICAN men are forever complaining in print that to gain equality with men, women have ceased to be women. What they mean, of course, is that women are no longer mysterious creatures to be put on pedestals and admired from afar.

RUTH MILLETT

Well, it works both ways. If women no longer hold any mystery for men, men don't hold much mystery for women. If Mama spends as many hours a day at breadwinning as Papa, how can she look up to him as the family's breadwinner? If Mama worked in an office before marriage, the whole business world is not an exciting mystery to her. When Papa comes home from the office at night, how can she be expected to treat him like a weary warrior when she knows good and well that she has put in as hard a day as he?

How can Mama stand back and admire Pape extravagantly for painting the house or refinishing the furniture or whatever if she has done half of the work herself? A do-it-yourself project shared by husband and wife may be fun but it doesn't do much to build up Papa in Mama's eyes. It's much more likely to build up Mama.

Back in the days when women stayed home when men went hunting and fishing, man could throw out his chest when he brought back a nice string of fish or 12-point buck. Now, likely as not, Mama got the biggest deer or caught the most fish.

So women aren't mysterious creatures any more. So what? Men aren't either.

But is that anything to complain about? All it actually means is that instead of living in different worlds, they're sharing the same world. And if they know each other so well that they know each other's weaknesses and faults as well as strengths and virtues, what does it matter?

Trip to Taxco

By Stan Delaplane

TAXCO, Mexico.

EVERY Mexican tour agency advises you to see Taxco, the mountain silver town.

There is a standard tour—Cuernavaca for lunch, Taxco overnight, Acapulco and return. Five days for $57.

STAN DELAPLANE

"Suppose I wish only to ride to Acapulco?"

"But it is a tour," said the tourist man unhappily. "Where will you sleep?"

"With friends. Or under the stars."

The tourist man looked worried and looked to the Mexican skies for inspiration. He said it would cost $50 to ride to Acapulco.

I said such a price was fantastico. He said stubbornly it was a tour. Why didn't I go on a nice tour and not make problems?

When you run into this problem in Mexico, take what they call a turismo. All over Mexico they run fast eight-passenger limousines. They are comfortable and cheap.

I went over to Los Galgos—Greyhound Lines of Mexico.

THE BIG LIMOUSINE was filled. Three in the back, three in the middle. Two up with the driver.

The driver gave me a front seat where I could see the hairpin twists in the road and measure how close we came to wandering burros.

The road runs high over the mountains where the old stage coach ran to Cuernavaca. You can see part of the cobbled road. Maximilian and Carlota rode it in gilded Imperial carriages.

There is a new two-lane superhighway to Cuernavaca now. But Galgos takes the colorful old road.

He had each turn taped. The curves marked purely right angle, he slowed to 60. (It shows 100 on a kilometer-marked speedometer. It takes constant mental translation to keep your heart flutter down.)

YOU CLIMB OUT of the valley of Mexico at 7500 feet and rise to about 13,000.

From there it is all downhill to Acapulco at sea level. The driver shut off the key and slipped it into neutral. The speedometer rose gradually to 120. He slid around a burro and took a bending curve along a canyon.

"Free wheeling," he said happily. "Nervous?"

"I have a defect of the heart."

"Tequila," said the driver. "Tequila cures the heart. How unfortunate we do not have a bottle. It gets boring going downhill."

The speedometer was climbing to 140—about 84 miles per hour. I wished we had a bottle, too. But I was not a bit bored.

The road intercepted the old cobbled road on the edge of Cuernavaca. The driver started the engine and roared into gear. Regretfully. And after coasting an hour or so more on the other side, we swerved around several dogs and climbed the cobbled street of Taxco. All for $1. And not a boring moment.

Family Secrets

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

IF you have any family skeletons, how can you keep your children from telling the neighbors about them? That's a question many a family faces, and Mr. G. wants help with his.

DR. PAUL POPENOE

"My problem is epilepsy," he explains. "Naturally, I don't care to have everybody know it. It's none of their business. Our children are getting to the age where they can understand a little, but not enough. I want them to know all the facts before they are old enough to think about marriage, because I wouldn't want them to decide to marry some person with a similar heredity. But right now, it seems to me they don't need to know anything about it. Am I wrong in this?"

IT'S NOT CLEAR to me, Mr. G., whether you yourself are the epileptic, or whether it is merely in your family. If it's your personal problem, it might be hard to keep the children from knowing about it. In any event, epilepsy, or a nervous breakdown, or something of the sort, should certainly not be looked upon as a disgrace or a guilty secret. But I think most of us would feel, as you do, that there are certain family matters which need not be talked about outside.

This is true of the family's financial affairs and also applies in sex education. We discuss things in the home that we do not expect the youngsters to carry out into the neighborhood.

IT SEEMS TO ME this is the line for you to follow. Let the children understand that there are certain matters which belong in the family. Let them be guided by discretion rather than by ignorance. You do not have to make a great mystery out of these matters, I think, but simply let the children know that each family is free to talk about its personal affairs, but that it is good taste not to talk them outside. Of course, you and your wife will then have to live up to this principle yourselves.

This is the sort of topic that can be discussed when the family is together, and you can try to give the children a full understanding. Epilepsy is not highly inheritable, although there is a little tendency that way. I think you should help the children to realize just what it means, without getting any unwarranted fears.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

SAMUEL CHOTZINOFF, authority on long-hair music, took his wife Pauline to a dinner in Princeton some years ago, and noted that she was to be seated next to the late Prof. Albert Einstein. "None of your usual banter," pleaded Chotzinoff. "The Professor may not understand your type of needling." The peppery Mrs. Chotzinoff promised to hold her fire, and did nobly, too, until Einstein asked her, "Are you particularly interested in mathematics?" Chotzinoff, knowing that his bride had trouble adding two and two, was startled by her reply, "Yes, I am—very deeply. I'm particularly interested in geometry."

"Plane geometry?" asked Einstein.

"Naturally," agreed Mrs. Chotzinoff. "Is there a fancy kind?"

Chotzinoff ended this exchange by feigning a nosebleed.

'The Heart Has Its Reasons'

Return to England as War Begins

Duchess Says Royal Family Never Acknowledged She Was There; Duke Gets Post in France

Twenty-first installment condensed from the book, "The Heart Has Its Reasons," the autobiography of the Duchess of Windsor.

By the Duchess of Windsor

SEPT. 3, 1939, was a hot and humid day, even for the Cote d'Azur at that season. The morning news broadcasts over the French radio left no doubt of the imminent disintegration of the Polish forces.

Now convinced that Britain and France would be at war with Germany in a matter of hours, David tried to reach his friends in London, but the French telephone circuits were hopelessly clogged. Giving up the struggle, he shrugged his shoulders, saying "I'm sure that I shall hear from my brother the moment any decision is taken. Let's go for a swim."

David's old equerry, Maj. Edward Metcalfe, was staying with us. Just before noon, as we all started for our swim, a servant hurried after David to tell him that the British Ambassador was calling from Paris. Ed and I went on. About 10 minutes later, David joined us. Walking to the edge of the pool, he said in a quiet voice:

"Great Britain has just declared war on Germany, and I am afraid in the end this may open the way for world Communism."

From this moment on, the question uppermost in David's mind was how he might serve. When he finally got through to Walter Monckton in London he said, "I want to offer my services in any capacity my brother deems appropriate, and I must return to Britain."

Next day Walter telephoned to say that he had had promising discussions and would be seeing us presently. He appeared at La Croe three days later, having flown from London in a Government airplane.

From the King he brought word that David and I were to return to London at our earliest convenience and that David could have the choice of two jobs—either as a member of the British Military Mission attached to the French General Headquarters at Vincennes, or as Regional Commissioner of Wales, a civil-defense job.

Yet even so simple a matter as David's return in time of war to the service of his country was made difficult by the family cleavage that was to us the most unforunate consequence of the abdication. Ed Metcalfe, who was still with us, invited us to stay with him and his wife—who was Lady Alexandra Curzon—at their home, Hartfield House, in Sussex.

Arrangements were made for us to proceed as quickly as possible to Cherbourg, there to be picked up by a naval vessel being sent from Britain. There followed an afternoon and night of feverish preparations. Because of the danger of France's being overrun, I was determined to take advantage of the expedition to transport certain valuable possessions, mostly David's, to England for safe storage. To save weight and space I had them wrapped in brown butcher's paper and put into cardboard boxes.

We started north on the afternoon of Sept. 8, David, Ed Metcalfe, and I, in our car, with our three cairns and our baggage in a station wagon. I included the dogs with some misgivings, but neither David nor I could bear to leave them behind.

At Cherbourg the Admiral Commandant of the Port was on the lookout for us, but he was obviously demoralized by our unsightly array of baggage. Unwilling to have his neat drawing room encumbered with my cardboard cartons, he suggested politely that they might better be stored in the garden until the British officer responsible for us put in an appearance.

David was supervising the unloading of the two cars when into the garden strode Dickie Mountbatten, in the uniform of a captain in the Royal Navy. In his wake clattered and clanked another martial figure, Randolph Churchill, in the uniform of the lieutenant of the Fourth Hussars.

Both were old friends, and the reunion was heart-warming. The choice of Dickie and Randolph to escort David back to England meant to us that Winston Churchill wanted David's return to go off well and smoothly; and David was grateful, on his account and mine, for this sign of regard.

Dickie had crossed the channel under cover of darkness the night before in H.M.S. Kelly—the destroyer in which he was presently to achieve fame in the fierce fighting off Crete. His orders were to make the return run at night, so as to avoid risk of possible interception by German aircraft or submarines.

David assured Dickie we should be ready to leave just as soon as our "things" had been stowed aboard the Kelly.

"Good," said Dickie. "Where are your things?"

David waved an apologetic hand at the pile on the Admiral's lawn—suitcases on one side, the cardboard boxes on the other.

"Do you mean to tell me," Dickie demanded, "that those things are yours?"

I KNEW enough about naval customs to appreciate how irritating it was to a commanding officer's sense of fitness to have his tidy vessel cluttered up with what must have looked to him like the odds and ends of a rummage sale. Moreover, Dickie protested that David was to be piped aboard the Kelly, and for David to arrive at the gangway with that collection would ruin the effect.

"Well, Dickie," I finally said, "just because we're the first refugees you have seen is no reason for the Royal Navy to turn up its nose at us. These are my clothes and David's things. You can arrange this any way you want—take David out first and then, when nobody's looking, send the launch back for me. But these things go with us."

Dickie capitulated. Dusk was darkening the western sky as the Kelly moved out of the harbor. Soon we were rushing through the night at high speed, zigzagging to evade any U-boat that might be lying along our course. Dickie asked David if he would like to join him on the bridge. David was delighted. He was gone some time.

When David returned, he was thoughtful and abstracted. It was not hard for me to guess what must have been passing through his mind. It was not quite three years since he had left England in another destroyer, in the night.

He was wondering what he would find on his return, and how his family would treat him and me, and whether it would be possible for him to find a really useful job in his country's service. The coldness that had settled down between him and his family had hurt him more than he could bring himself to admit.

As we entered the harbor of Portsmouth, David came to the divan on which I was sitting. "I don't know how this will work out," he said quietly. "War should bring families together, even a Royal Family. But I don't know."

He pressed my hand, turned quickly, and walked out of the cabin.

Although Portsmouth was completely blacked out, David was accorded full honors as he stepped down the gangway. A red carpet was spread for him; a naval guard of honor, at the foot of the gangway, snapped to attention. Even in the pitch darkness the little ceremonial was beautifully carried off, as only the British can manage such things.

David was stirred. He remarked later, "Of course, I have seen hundreds of guards of honor, but I don't think I was ever prouder of inspecting one."

Adm. Sir William James, Commander in Chief at Portsmouth, and his wife, put us up for the night at Admiralty House. They were very nice to me, almost desperately polite. However under the politeness, I became aware that I was the object of a covert but intense curiosity. When I was chatting with one, I could feel the sidelong glance of the other, charged with speculation, roving searchingly over me.

In the oblique scrutiny there hovered the unasked question: Can this really be the Mrs. Simpson who caused it all? Can this be the woman who took from us our King?

So much depended upon the outcome of our trip—David's future and mine with his. If only the rift between him and his family could be healed! I privately sought the answer to our dilemma in the Admiral's bright blue eyes. But there was no way of telling what he or his wife really thought of me. And deep in my heart I knew that I would never know what they or any other Britisher thought.

Next day we motored to the Metcalfe's house. While I stayed behind with Lady Metcalfe, David drove to London the following afternoon for a talk with his brother at Buckingham palace. David had decided that he would prefer the Regional Commissioner's job in England to the one with the military liaison group in France.

When David returned from the Palace he was sanguine. His brother appeared to agree with him that the regional Commissioner's job was the right choice. In any case, the King had observed that there was no hurry about making a decision.

As far as David's family or the court were concerned, I simply did not exist. The fact that our love had withstood the test and trials of three difficult years made no difference. Neither did his desire to share, however humbly, the wartime burdens of the Royal Family and the hazards that war would present to us all. Nothing was ever said. It was simply a case of our being confronted with a barrier of turned backs, rigid and immovable.

SOMETIMES I drove up to London with David for the day. On our trips in and out of town, David was often recognized by passers-by on the sidewalks. They lifted their hats to him. There were occasional cheers and heartening echoes of the familiar nickname going back to his Edward, Prince of Wales, days: "Good old Ted; good to see you back."

Perhaps reports of these small but heartfelt demonstrations of affection reached the Palace. In any event, David one day was suddenly summoned to the War Office, to be informed by Field Marshal Sir Edmund Ironside that he was to be assigned to the British Military Mission at Vincennes and was to report for duty as soon as possible.

David heard nothing more from his brother. The civil defense job was never mentioned again. David and I suspected—perhaps unfairly—that some of the older members of the Court had recommended that, rather than encourage any possible revival of the former King's popularity, he be posted safely and obscurely outside the country.

Naturally, David was disappointed, but he chose not to make an issue of the matter. He still retained the rank of Admiral of the Fleet and of Field Marshal in the Army, and Marshal of the Royal Air Force. Rather than confront the War Office with an awkward problem, he cheerfully agreed to waive temporarily his rank and accept that of Major General.

We remained in England only long enough for David to be briefed on his new duties. One forenoon late in September, we left Portsmouth in the destroyer Express and were put ashore at Cherbourg in the late afternoon.

Notes on Expanding an Attic

WHEN persons get the urge to expand an expansion attic, they often do things that they may later regret. Here are a few of these regrets for you to keep in mind when and if you ever expand an attic.

Regret number one is going ahead and putting down a finish floor without making any provision to keep the noise from the attic going down to the rooms below. Even if there is insulation between the attic floor joists you need additional soundproofing. The best way to accomplish this is to put down ¾ inch thick rigid insulation board over the attic subfloor and apply hardboard over this. The floor tile or linoleum can then go on over the hardboard.

Another regret is to allow the attic ceiling to run right up to the peak of the roof. This produces a hot attic during the warm weather. There should always be a space of a foot or more between the attic ceiling and the roof peak and this should be ventilated to the outside at each end so there will be a flow of air above the ceiling to remove heated air in summer.

A big regret is not to install larger windows in the attic. A normal attic has only two windows, one at each end, and these are usually small. Unless you install a dormer these two windows will have to supply all the ventilation and usually they don't supply enough. If you don't want to put in a dormer then increase the size of the two existing windows as much as possible to provide adequate ventilation to the attic rooms.

Those Belisha Beacons

THE recent death of Lord Leslie Hore-Belisha, one-time head of the British War Office, calls to mind the fact that, among his other notable accomplishments, he succeeded in making his name a part of the language. It was not in connection with his labors as War Secretary in the Chamberlain Cabinet that he won his fame, linguistically speaking, however. Rather it was during his tenure as Minister for Transport in the early thirties.

ALWAYS a controversial figure, blessed with a flair for publicity that rivaled that of our own Mayor LaGuardia, Hore-Belisha burst into print soon after his appointment to office with the brash announcement that he was going to bring a halt to the "mass murder" of pedestrians on British roads and highways. Soon the country was flooded with leaflets and pamphlets carrying on his crusade—always, of course, with Hore-Belisha's name prominently displayed and, more often than not, with his slightly pop-eyed countenance staring out at the reader.

But these were not the contributions that assured his name a place in British dictionaries. That resulted from his invention of a special pedestrian warning signal, an amber light mounted on a black-and-white striped post, which was supposed to warn drivers that they were nearing an intersection where pedestrians had the right of way. With characteristic modesty, the Minister of transport named them Belisha Beacons. Indeed, the man in the street, more often than not, called them "Hore-Belishas."

AND THUS Lord Leslie has attained a sort of immortality, for that peerless chronicler of the English tongue, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary, now devotes six lines to Belisha and his beacon—as much space as is given to Queen Victoria's consort, Prince Albert, and the coat named after him.

That's quite a distinction for a chap of relatively modest birth who was once described by a contemporary as "no beauty but a dandy fighter, snapping energetically at festoons of red tape and through it all remaining the comedian who never forgot to grin broadly, usually towards the camera, before nipping another august shin."

Numerous St. Louisans At Southern Resorts

By Peggy Johnson

SEA RANCH at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., will be the meeting-place of many St. Louis families in the next month and a half. Many of the same people meet there year after year to enjoy the sunny climate while winter blows itself out in St. Louis.

—Jules Pierlow Photograph.

MISS HAGER . . . TO VISIT IN FLORIDA.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell E. Lortz, 12 Carrswold, Clayton, will fly to the resort. Their daughter, Miss Ann Lortz, will join them about the middle of this month when Mary Institute students will have a spring vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Hickok, 42 Fair Oaks, Ladue, are planning to join friends some time this month at the resort, as are Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Hager, 7048 Westmoreland avenue, University City. Their daughter, Miss Alice Hager, will accompany her parents. Miss Hager and Miss Marilyn Hichew, daughter of John O. Hichew, 941 South Skinker boulevard, will go to Nassau the first of April.

Two other Mary Institute students who will join their parents at Sea Ranch during spring vacation are Miss Lila and Miss Linda Osterkamp. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Osterkamp, will leave St. Louis within the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Spoehrer, 6 Arbor road, Olivette, will also spend part of the month at the resort. They will be joined by their daughters during spring vacation. Miss Susan will fly down from Smith College, and Miss Sally will fly down from St. Louis at the beginning of the Mary Institute vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Wesseling, 11 Dartford avenue, Clayton, will meet their St. Louis friends sometime this month at Fort Lauderdale, as will Mr. and Mrs. William Clabaugh, 38 The Orchard, Olivette.

Popular members of the St. Louis colony at Sea Ranch who will be missing this year are Mr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Schroth, 30 Southmoor drive, Clayton, who will be unable to join their many St. Louis friends this year because of the wedding of their daughter, Miss Bettie Bush Schroth to James Lee Johnson Jr., which will take place on April 6.

Spending Winter at Palm Springs.

MR. AND MRS. MILLARD WALDHEIM, 23 Carrswold, Clayton, are spending the winter in Palm Springs, Calif., where they have a cottage on the grounds of the Racquet Club. They have as their guests at present Dr. and Mrs. P. D. Stahl of the Oxford Apartments, 320 Union boulevard, and Mrs. Erwin Bry of the Park Plaza Hotel.

Also vacationing in California are several St. Louisans who are guests at Del Monte Lodge, Pebble Beach. They are Mr. and Mrs. Alvin F. Griesedieck Jr., 2605 Geyer road, Kirkwood, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Griesedieck, 9851 Litzsinger road, Ladue; Mr. and Mrs. Darwin R. Howard, 51 Westmoreland place, and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert C. Moog, 7 Sheraton drive, University City.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Greensfelder, 23 Southmoor, Clayton, are headed south to spend the next few weeks. Leaving St. Louis today, they will go to Edgewater Gulf Hotel, Biloxi, Miss., and later to New Orleans. Their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Calme L. Lazard, and the Lazards' youngest daughter, Cecilia, who live in New Orleans, will motor to Biloxi to meet the Greensfelders on their arrival. Mr. and Mrs. Lazard's elder daughter, Miss Lucille Carrie Lazard, a senior at Pine Manor Junior College, Wellesley, Mass., will be in New Orleans with her parents for her spring vacation. She was entertained here by Mr. and Mrs. Greensfelder at Christmas time.

Webster Groves Activities in Early March

SEVERAL parties are being given for members of the Heintz H. Wollthan family, 311 Bristol road, who will leave Webster Groves, where they have lived the last two years, on March 13. They will sail aboard the Constitution from New York a few days later. Landing in Italy, they will go to Duesseldorf, Germany, to live. The Wollthans were originally from Germany.

In addition to parties given for Mr. and Mrs. Wollthan, their children—Miss Sijrid, a high school senior; Miss Antge, a junior in high school, and Dieter and Klaus, elementary school students — were also honored by their respective contemporaries.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ben Knight, 571 Westborough place, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth C. Baker, 4 Radnor road, Huntleigh Village, have arrived at Clearwater, Fla., where they will spend the month of March. The four departed 10 days ago and visited Miami and Florida fishing resorts before arriving at Clearwater.

The Knights' son, Jim, a student at St. Louis Country Day School, and a classmate, Richard Nelson, son of Mrs. Irene Taylor Nelson, 221 North Brentwood boulevard, Clayton, will fly to Clearwater March 15 to spend their two-week spring vacation.

While the Knights are away, her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Everett H. Smith Jr., 1008 Bompart avenue, are staying at their home.

Comment on Plan for the Middle East

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON

I WAS very much disturbed over the weekend to find that the plan for settlement of the Middle East problem had been delayed because of a statement made to the United Nations Friday by Henry Cabot Lodge, the United States delegate.

Israel apparently felt that Mr. Lodge's statement did not fully cover the points of settlement as they had been agreed to by Secretary of State Dulles.

Technically, it is true that no promises on this point have been made, no rewards given. But I think everyone realizes that Israel must have felt she had the firm backing of the United States, Great Britain and France in seeing that U.N. forces moved into the Gaza strip and that the Gulf of Aqaba would be open to the navigation of her ships.

I STILL have hopes that the arrangements will go through. For while I think Israel is quite reasonable in asking for certain guarantees, I believe that a peaceful settlement of this question will strengthen the U. N. and make it easier to settle future questions in the Middle East.

THE VISIT of Premier Guy Mollet of France to Washington has brought a satisfaction to all of us who have a warm affection for the French and have been grieved by the misunderstandings which were permitted to arise between our countries.

Of course, the main subjects of conversation were the economic situation in which France now finds herself and the Middle East question, which has contributed to this economic situation.

But I hope there was some talk on how to strengthen the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. We have been interested so much lately in areas outside of Europe that we have tended to forget the importance of keeping our Western alliance strong and giving to its visible armed strength the maximum efficiency.

The solidarity of this alliance is the most important factor in controlling aspirations of the Soviet Union in all of Europe and in making it more difficult for the Russians to suppress the growing desire for greater freedom in some of the Communist satellite nations.

Women's Clubs

Party To Aid Student Loan Fund

By Fay Profilet

MRS. ADOLPH J. SINNWELL will serve as chairman for the annual card party to be given by the Women's Organization of the National Association of Retail Druggist, St. Louis Chapter No. 8, Saturday, March 16, at 1 p.m. The party will be held in the St. Louis College of Prahmacy auditorium, 4588 Parkview place.

Proceeds will go towards the student loan fund of the college. Mrs. Herman P. Winkelmann is president of the sponsoring group.

Mrs. David L. Tzinberg will assist Mrs. Sinnwell as co-chairman. The following will serve on the various committees: Mrs. Chris K. Brandt Jr., Mrs. Clem J. Dowling, Mrs. Glenn R. Dreppard, Mrs. Louis J. Gagnepain, Mrs. Francis Fillingim, Mrs. Gerard M. Igel, Mrs. Walter A. Krukenkamp, Mrs. Harry Morris, Mrs. George Reich, Mrs. Clarence Reis, Mrs. Howard F. Riffey, Mrs. Edward Schroer, Mrs. Peter L. Speckart, Mrs. Roy Thompson, Mrs. Gus P. Weiss and Mrs. Chris A. Winkelmann.

The Sisters of Loretto will benefit from a card party to be held tonight at 8 o'clock, in the gymnasium of Nerinx Hall, Lockwood and Big Bend boulevards, Webster Groves. The Webster College Women's Club and the Mothers' Club of Nerinx Hall will sponsor the affair.

Mrs. Bob Bearden and Mrs. J. J. Correnti are chairman and co-chairman, respectively, for the college group while the high school group is headed by Mrs. Harry G. Erbs and Mrs. Manson Gilbert. A feature of the evening will be a Mardi Gras booth. Refreshments will be served during the card games.

A meeting of the Desk and Derrick Club of St. Louis will be held on Thursday at 6:00 p.m. in the new Standard Oil Co. Building at 8400 Maryland avenue, Clayton. A buffet dinner will be served. Sterling Ross will present "A Brief Case for Business."

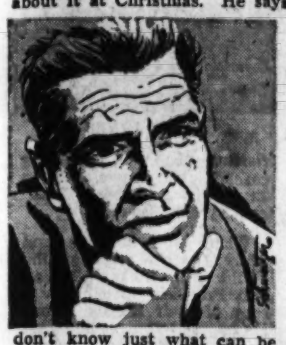
Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

I HAVE been married 18 years and have a daughter 13. Last summer my husband met a woman at a bar and has been seeing her constantly. I finally found out about it at Christmas. He says it is strictly business and none of my business. Incidentally, he comes home at 2 a.m. He says I should ask no questions as I am "hounding" him.

MRS. T. H.



It certainly is your business and the sooner he realizes that, the better. However, as long as he takes the attitude that you are "hounding" him just because you ask where he has been until 2 a.m., I don't know just what can be done. To keep after him when he is this defiant would probably make the situation that much worse, so if you can wait it out until this infatuation has faded and he is able to talk with you about it sensibly, you probably will accomplish more. Professional counseling also will help.

Dear Martha:

IN A RECENT COLUMN you published a letter from A. L. M., who had accepted an invitation from a doctor to attend a party even though her husband didn't wish to go. She was embarrassed by the doctor's introduction of her as the baby-sitter. Did she expect to be put on a pedestal and lauded in the highest degree of respect? Her evening was ruined the moment she accepted the doctor's invitation. I wonder if she would have been so delighted to see her husband go out with the doctor's wife? I think the doctor was right in his introduction, as crude as she thought it was. So always remember, A. L. M., "Do unto others as you would have them do to you."

SERIOUS.

Dear Martha:

I HAVE READ ABOUT silly young girls falling for their bosses. This problem makes me ill. My problem is the same, but from the man's side. A young girl has been constantly staring at me, going out of her way to do things for me and so on. I overheard her telling her friend she thinks a lot of me. This is making me a nervous wreck. I feel it isn't my place to tell her of her foolish actions. How do I go about letting her know I think it's disgusting.

G. D.

Give her time—and no attention—and she'll get over it. You will just embarrass yourself and her if you make an issue of it. You can be polite to her without showing any personal interest. In fact, to be coolly courteous, always businesslike and apparently taking no notice of her stares and obvious crush, would be the most effective way of curing her of it. Chances are, she'll be working there long after this has faded out of the picture, so don't say anything to her now which would only make your relationship awkward in the future.

IN ANSWER TO M. J. B.: This is a question which requires specialized counseling. I would suggest that you talk with your physician.

If you are planning a party for the youngest members of the family, Martha Carr's leaflet, "Let's Have a Party," will help you decide on entertainment and refreshments. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

The Little Woman

By Clarissa Start

TWO WEEKS AGO this column dealt with the constant quiz conducted by the 5-year-old at our house, whose intellectual curiosity is commendable but exhausting. We've had various comments, most of them from mothers who simply said, "How true—how true," some from enterprising encyclopedia salesmen and women who suggested that such precocity should be encouraged.

CLARISSA START

One mother of three quizzers advanced the practical idea that the reference books be kept in the dining room since most debates come up at the dinner table. She has a dining room bookcase with a set of encyclopeda, a dictionary, World Almanac, Information Please Almanac, and Pratt's "History of Music," and is thinking of adding French, Greman and Spanish dictionaries. Having an out-of-town husband, too, she points out that father's travels can broaden mother's education, because she can't fall back on the old dodge, "Ask your father."

THE MOST INTERESTING reaction to the question column, however, came from Carol Hanks of Ladue. Carol is 13 years old, an eighth grader at John Burroughs School, and she volunteered to supply the answers to the questions that baffled us.

On gold. "It's against the law to keep gold because if the Government kept both gold and paper money in circulation they couldn't tell if they had more paper money than gold, and if they got a whole lot more paper money than gold, paper money would lose its value.

"Also, one time a few men tried to buy up all the gold in the United States and that, if they had been allowed to succeed, would have thrown the U.S. into bankruptcy. As long as we have gold in Fort Knox, the people of the U.S. know that their paper money is worth its equivalent in gold. In answer to another question, the Government gives new money to banks to distribute. They take the same amount of old money in return and burn it. But if more gold has been added to the supply at Fort Knox, the Government prints the same amount of money as gold and gives it to the bank without taking any old money. They print as much new money each year as they need to replace old money."

ON LINCOLN: "He was 56 years old when he died. He was shot in the evening and died the next morning. Booth leaped to the stage below and broke his leg. He managed to escape and mounted a horse and rode to Virginia. He was overtaken at Bowling Green and trapped in a barn. He refused to surrender and was shot.

"Extradite means to give up a fugitive or prisoner to another nation or authority. In carbonated beverages they use liquid carbon dioxide. Carbon dioxide changes from a gas to a liquid at 5 degrees Fahrenheit below zero. I suppose that when liquid carbon dioxide is put it soda, it mixes thoroughly with the other gas substances so that it doesn't change back to a gas when the temperature is above 5 degrees Fahrenheit below zero.

My guess is that Carol is getting a lot more out of that "stuff at school" than many a 13-year-old. I applaud her intelligence and appreciate her interest. There are still two questions unanswered, though. Who did take George Washington's picture (for the dollar bill)? And How do you know when a fish is dead?

Personalized Pattern

High Style for the Diminutive Figure

BEN BARRACK, big man in the fashion business, likes to cater to little women, the large group who stand at or under five foot, four. The pattern, which features exclusive designer sizing so that proportions are accurate, is easy to make, and since the style is one that can be as dressy or as casual as your choice of fabric, you'll use it over and over as the year progresses.

A step-in model with a wide neckline and a notched center, it has welted tabs that button on to the top closing, again over the hips ending off shaped darts that give bulk just below the waist and thus minimize it. For graceful walking and motion, there is a small pleat in the skirt back.

Choose shantung, slubbed silks, linen, novelty cottons, faille, ottoman or sheer wools. The wearing possibilities of any material can be added to by buying both fancy and tailored buttons. From this chart select the one size best for you.

12	35	26	36	16¼
14	36½	27½	37½	16½

Foresight

FORESIGHT is looking ahead. It is possessed by mature and responsible members of the family who, by using it, hope to keep less mature and less responsible members of the family out of trouble.

Thus, if a less mature and less responsible member of the family suggests going out to dinner downtown and following the dinner with a movie, the member of the family possessed with foresight will bring it into play.

He will foresee that the weather will be bad and that people going downtown will be wandering about for a long time with wet feet. He will foresee this leading to a bad cold, probably involving a doctor's call and several days in bed.

He will foresee streets lined with automobiles and not a single vacant space for parking.

He will foresee the necessity of eventually going into a parking lot. He than will foresee the search for a place to eat where a queue is not already stretching out into the street, the likelihood of a long wait and after that a meal not half so good as one to be had at home.

He will foresee the same trouble of contending with a crowd at the movie and the probability that they will be disappointed with it.

Foresight may keep members of a family out of trouble. It is too bad that it does so only by showing the folly of going out in search of amusement and the wisdom of staying at home.

Television Notes and Gossip

THE CBS-TV network had planned to resume telecasts of "My Friend Flicka" at 6:30 Wednesday nights, as a replacement for "Giant Step," beginning tomorrow. However, "Giant Step" will be presented in that period on KWK-TV tomorrow night, with a possibility that it will continue indefinitely.

Edgar Bergen's "Do You Trust Your Wife?" series will end about mid-April. CBS-TV is planning a Spike Jones program as a replacement.

"Country Style," a musical program, will replace the Will Rogers Jr. morning program on CBS-TV starting April 8. The star of the new show will be a Texan whose name happens to be Jimmy Dean. He sings and plays the piano, accordion and guitar.

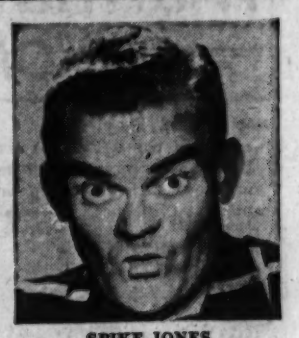
E. G. Marshall, who will play Alexander Hamilton in "The Duel" on "Kraft Theater" on KSD-TV tomorrow night, thought at first that he would play a man much older than himself. But Hamilton was 47, the same age as Marshall, when he was killed in the duel with Aaron Burr.

Ralph Faulkner, who will be seen crossing swords with Louis Jourdan on the "Ford Theater" play on KWK-TV tonight, is an international fencing champion. He has coached such movie stars as Errol Flynn, Robert Taylor and Tyrone Power.



SPIKE JONES

When Guy Madison and Andy Devine, stars of the "Wild Bill Hickok" series, sent President Eisenhower a copy of their Hickok record album, a letter came back saying, "I know my grandchildren will enjoy the record, and I suspect so will their grandfather."

Claire Bloom, who appeared in "Romeo and Juliet" last night, has a busy schedule ahead of her. She will play in "First Love" on the "Alcoa Hour" March 24 and on a Robert Montgomery show April 8.

TONIGHT: 8:30-9:30 P.M.— KSD-TV
TED MACK
In Another Great "On Stage In St. Louis" TV Spectacular

TED MACK, SHOW BUSINESS' BELOVED DISCOVERER OF NEW TALENT... the man who has helped more unknowns rise to stardom than any other, returns tonight for a special international revue starring St. Louis entertainers of many nationalities.

SEE "AROUND THE WORLD IN 60 MINUTES"

So plan to be watching when Ted Mack brings all of them "On Stage in St. Louis," this evening at 8:30, KSD-TV, Channel 5.

UNION ELECTRIC

JIM SYMINGTON, whose distinctive folk singing has taken him to New York's most famous supper clubs. A St. Louis favorite, he accompanies himself on the guitar, sings popular songs as well as ballads.

TONY AND CAROLINE MIRELLI, stars of the only international roller-skating show in the world, have toured Europe five times. In America, this talented couple starred on the Ed Sullivan Show and in night clubs, now live and work in St. Louis.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

Another letter about the sun has come from Danny Scala. He wrote:

"I am a pupil in the fourth grade. I was chosen to write this letter to you. I am nine years old today. I would like an answer to this question, and so would another pupil, Chuck Dempsey: Why does the sun never burn out?"

That indeed, is a good question. I discussed it several years ago, but shall enlarge on what I said then.

A sun made of wood or coal would offer little help for the future of the human race. The sun (in that case) would "go up in smoke" inside of a few hundred or a few thousand years.

AS IT IS, the sun is made of elements which are similar to those known on earth. Yesterday, I mentioned iron, copper and aluminum. In addition, the sun contains silver, gold, tin, tungsten, mercury, cobalt, nickel and platinum. Every metal is known to exist there in the form of gas.

Among the other elements on the sun are sulphur, radium, thorium, oxygen, chlorine, argon and plutonium.

Instead of burning like a bonfire, the sun is "converting its energy." There are constant explosions at the surface, and these are similar to atomic explosions.

THE SIZE of the sun helps to explain why the explosions do little if any, harm to our gigantic light of day.

It is fortunate that the sun is without people. If a human being could go to the sun, and could live through the heat, he would be destroyed by the explosions.

Astronomers say that the sun is at least three billion years old. They expect that it still will be shining three billion years from now.

For SCIENCE section of your scrapbook.
